The liner docked shortly after 10:30 P. M. (E.S.T.) and their Majesties planned to spend the night aboard, before proceeding up the river 14 miles to Quebec proper tomorrow morning.

It was the first night since they left Portsmouth ten days ago that they could sleep aboard the liner without the possibility of disturbance from the throbbing of the giant turbines.

Quebec, Que., May 16 (AP) — Jammed with crowds in holiday mood, this old French-Canadian city was all ready tonight to extend tomorrow morning its long-planned official welcome to King George and Queen Elizabeth, who will be the first reigning British Monarch and Consort ever to set foot on Canadian soil.

The King and Queen were prepared to sleep tonight in the sheltered waters below The Isle of Orleans, three miles from Quebec Harbor and, with their liner Empress of Australia at anchor, rest for the first time since their departure from Portsmouth ten days ago.

The liner was sighted at 5 p. m., E.S.T., at Riviere Du Loup, South Shore town 200 miles from Quebec. She was expected to reach the Isle of Orleans at 9:30 a. m., E.S.T. tomorrow.

Dominion Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King arrived late in the day from Ottawa and dozens of other notables registered in the city's hotels.

Ship Canal in Florida Assailed As "Pipe Dream"

Sen. Vandenberg Makes Two Hour Speech against the Project

Washington, May 16 (AP)—The Senate heard Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) assail the Florida Ship Canal as "a pipe dream," while Senator Pepper (D-Fla) asserted that the project had been made "a symbol of opposition to the Roosevelt administration."

The Floridian, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich), and others disputed for hours as the Senate leadership pressed for a vote on legislation to authorize completion of the abandoned project. However, the Senate recessed late today until noon tomorrow without acting on the bill.

A wave of opposition developed in 1935 when President Roosevelt started the $200,000,000 waterway with $5,400,000 of relief money, and Congress the next year refused to appropriate for its continuation. The issue was revived early in this session.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, entered the controversy today by writing letters to all senators urging that the project be given "every support." Pepper told the Senate the AFL would not support any "money-grabbing, boondoggling project"—terms which Vandenberg had used in denouncing it.

In a two-hour speech, the Michigan senator served notice he would demand that Florida relieve the federal government of all damage which might result from the canal. Earlier, he had warned the Senate that claims resulting from injury to the peninsula's water supply might run into untold millions.

On the other side, Pepper declared there would be no substantial water damage, adding that this was the view of experts employed by the War department who spent months studying Florida's underground streams.

Vandenberg urged the Senate to "flash the red light against this needless expenditure of two or three millions of dollars," and added it would constitute "an insufferable affront to the public welfare."

Pepper charged that railroads opposing the canal had created the fear of water supply damage, and denied Vndenberg's assertion that railroads stood to lose a substantial volume of traffic if the Canal were built.

Dr. Pearce Offers Compromise Plan

Gives Three-fold Program for Those Who Demand Socialized Medicine

Baltimore, May 16 (AP)—A three-fold "compromise" program answering those who demand socialized medicine was proposed before the Maryland Academy of Surgery and Medicine tonight by Dr. William Herbert Pearce of Baltimore.

Declaring "the supreme objection to state medicine is that it undermines the personal element in practice," Dr. Pearce proposed:

State dispensaries for more widespread treatment of patients able to travel for treatments.

Central agencies through which physicians could be assigned for patients confined to homes.

Supplementary state hospitals.

Dr. Pearce said "organized medicine has been slow in recognizing the social trend of our period and in observing the glaring deficiencies in present-day medical service. If we are to preserve our sacred heritage, we shall have to adjust ourselves to the obligations imposed by changing conditions."

HARLAN MINERS IN MASS MEETING AS TROOPS ARRIVE

As Kentucky state troops pour into the troubled Harlan county, Kentucky, mining area, union miners there stage a gigantic open air mass meeting. William Turnblazer, United Mine Workers of America district president, one of the speakers at the mass meeting charged Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who ordered the troops into the area, with having "dreams of becoming vice president . . . and even president," alleging the governor's action was a political move. Harlan county, scene of previous mine strife, experienced its latest crisis when mine operators in the Harlan field refused to sign the New York agreement covering a "union shop." Woodring Urges Retirement of 2,300 Officers

Says Army Officers over Age Constitute Weakest Link in Defense

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Asserting that army officers who are over age for their rank constituted the weakest link in the national defense, Secretary Woodring recommended today that Congress adopt legislation to weed them out of the service.

Testifying before the House Military committee, Woodring declared that the possibility of the United States being called to defend the Western Hemisphere made it imperative that they be replaced by younger men.

He recommonded speedy approval of legislation which would force the retirement of about 2,300 officers.

Officials said that if the plan went into operation it would retire Brigadier-Generals over 62 years of age, Colonels over 60, Lieutenant-colonels over 58, majors over 55 and Captains over 50.

Change Needed at Once

Woodring said the problem of "vitalizing" the army's officer corps had become "acute" and should be remedied at once to "insure vigor-

Planning Survey Will Start Today

Baltimore, May 16 (AP)—Maryland's federal-aided highway planning survey, which exhausted its funds and stopped work late last year after spending $363,000 since 1936, started up again today on a nine-month budget of $57,000.

William F. Childs, new Director of survey, said a staff of 17 picked up immediately the work of finishing detail maps of each county. General highway maps will be prepared when the county maps have been completed, Childs said.

The rest of the year will be devoted to compilation of statistics based on the three years work already completed. Childs explained fiscal and road life studies, and tables of "roads priority" would be worked out.

Such information, he continued, would be turned over to the State Roads Commission for guidance in developing construction programs over long periods of year. The priority tables wil show highways which would be repaired or rebuilt before others.

In addition to $40,000 allocated by the state, the survey will have $17,000 in federal funds.

Patient Burns To Death In Oxygen Tent after Lighting Cigaret

Pittsburgh, May 16 (AP)—Eugene A. Boehm of Ambridge, 49-year-old patient at the Presbyterian hospital, was burned to death today when he tried to light a cigaret while he lay in an oxygen tent. His wife, who had come to visit him, stood outside the door of his room.

A fellow-patient attempted to drag Boehm from the tent, but failed. He said the oxygen burst into flame as soon as Boehm struck the match.

Boehm was admitted to the hospital for treatment of asthma.

Charles Backman Is Flying Solo Across Atlantic

St. John's, Newfoundland, May 16 (Canadian Press) — Charles Backman, slim young Swedish aviator, tonight followed the air trails blazed over the Atlantic by a select group of fliers with solo ocean crossings to their credit.

The 34-year old flier took off from Newfoundland airport 213 miles from here and near Botwood, at 5:10 a. m. (2:40 a. m. E. S. T.) today, hoping to land in Stockholm, capital of his native land.

He was flying a 90-horsepower, single-motored monoplane with a cruising speed of 110 miles an hour.

France and Great Britain Make an Offer to Russia

Guarantee Support to Soviet in Any Fight with Aggressor

London, May 17 (Wednesday) (AP)—Informed sources said today Britain and France had decided to offer Soviet Russia a guarantee of support if she were forced to fight any aggressor from the west in fulfilling guarantees to small countries on her border.

The decision was reported to have been made after a two-hour meeting of the foreign affairs committee of the cabinet. It represented a concession to Russian demands for reciprocal protection if she entered the British-led front.

It was understood from these reports that Britain planned first to ask an immediate joint declaration by France, Britain and Russia of determination to resist any aggression. Then the Soviet would be asked to guarantee all bordering states against aggression, including Poland, Rumania, Estonia, Latvia and Finland.

If called on to fight as a result of these pledges, the Soviet would be joined by Britain and France.

Military staff talks to arrange each country's part in any war resulting from these pledges would be provided, it was reported.

Britain originally had proposed that Russia give pledges to Poland and Rumania similar to those given by Britain and France, with the proviso that Russia would not be obliged to fight except to support British and French forces after they already had taken the field.

Russia replied that without similar pacts for Latvia, Estonia and

Investment Bankers Seek Tax Revision and Balanced Budget

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—A ten-point program for tax revision and a balanced national budget to "restore business confidence" were recommended today by the Investment Bankers Association.

Constant rates to permit business to calculate taxes several years in advance, simplification in regulations, and discontinuance of the undistributed profits tax were included in the proposals approved by the Iba board of governors.

Reductions were asked in several other levies, including surtaxes and estate taxes.

The Governors recorded a formal appeal to the treasury department for a balanced budget, terming the government's finances "the most important problem in our national life."

Urge Changes in Taxes

A letter written by C. Provost Boyce of Baltimore, Chairman of the IBA's Federal Taxation committee, set forth the changes urged in the tax structure and approved by the board.

Boyce's letter, addressed to under Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes, said:

"Some of the proposals, it is realized, may result in some temporary reduction in revenues. On the other hand, the effect on business will be salutary and consequently helpful to the entire country."

The recommonded changes were:

Simplify taxes and regulations so that they will be understandable to the average taxpayer.

Would Reduce Surtax Rates

Maintain constant taxation rates and methods of calculation to permit business to know for several years in advance what it must pay. "That certainly in itself would help restore business confidence," Boyce said.

Discontinue undisturbed profits taxes.

Permit carrying forward of net operating losses for at least four-year period.

More equitable regulations regarding carryng forward capital loss deductions.

Reduce surtax rates.

Simplify and reduce federal estate taxes.

Reduce tax on income received by corporations through discount purchase of their own bonds.

More equitable earned income credit.

Creation of more specific definition of earnings and profits.

Upon recommendation of the membership committee, eleven new members were admitted to the association in a closed session.

The board will hold its final session here tomorrow.

President Says Much of Nation's Savings Is in "Stagnant Pools"

ants To Know Why Funds Are Not in Productive Enterprise

Washington, May 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt proposed to the monopoly committee today that it try to determine why much of the nation's money and savings has found its way into "stagnant pools" instead of productive enterprise.

"It is our task," he wrote Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), the committee chairman, "to find and enthusiastically adopt those specific measures which will bring together idle men, machines and money.

"In proportion as we succeed, we will strengthen the structure of democratic economy."

O'Mahoney read Mr. Roosevelt's letter into the record shortly after the committee began a study of savings and investments arranged by the securities commission.

The Wyoming Senator said he interpreted the communication as indicating that the President was primarily interested in promoting the investment of private funds for private profit and in the develop of free, private, independent enterprise."

No Profit in Idle Dollars

Commenting that "idle dollars profit no man," Mr. Roosevelt said in his letter it was "common knowledge that the dollars which the American people save each year are not finding their way back into productive enterprise in sufficient volume to keep our economic machine turning over at the rate required to bring about full employment."

Whether this condition is due to the nation's economy "leaving an era of rapid expansion and entering an era of steadier growth, calling for relatively less investment in capital goods," or because of "lag, leak and friction in the operation of investment markets which pervert the normal flow of savings into non-productive enterprise," are questions for the committee to answer, the president said.

"I know of no more urgent ones in the country today," he added.

"The hearings before your committee, I hope, will assume the task

$5,000 Damages Awarded Parents for Death of Four Weeks Old Baby

Baltimore, May 16 (AP)—A Superior court jury today awarded damages of $5,000 to the parents of a four-weeks' old baby fatally injured in an automobile accident last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Evans sued N. W. Slacum and Edward Marshall, charging their truck slipped on a hill and struck the Evans automobile. The child died five days later.

British Troops On Duty as Jews In Holy Land Are Ready To Strike

British Plan Is Drawn up after Futile Conferences To Settle 20 Year Old Jewish-Arab Quarrel

Jerusalem, May 16 (AP)—British troops patrolled strategic points throughout the Holy Land tonight as part of extensive precautions to avert threatened disorders over the British Government's Palestine plan to be published tomorrow.

With the local press already printing reports of what the plan is believed to provide, both Jews and Extremist Arabs expressed bitter opposition and planned demonstrations which included a 24-hour Jewish strike schedule for Thursday.

(The British plan, drawn up after futile round table conferences to settle a 20-year quarrel between the Arabs and Jews of Palestine, is reported to provide for gradual creation of a Palestine state 60 per cent Arab and 40 percent Jewish.

(Britain was reported to have decided to free herself in 1944 from any obligation to facilitate a Jewish National Home in Palestine by further Jewish immigration.)

Standby Orders Given

Standby orders were telegraphed to all police posts in the country and volunteer fire brigades in Jerusalem, Haifa, Tel Aviv, and Jaffa were drafted into service to break up demonstrations.

Indications of the intense feelings of Jews were seen in an attempt by Revisionists to lower British flags from government buildings at Tel Aviv and in signs smeared on Jerusalem shop windows saying, "we are bringing illegal immigrants into the country, if necessary, under Jewish armed guards."

The Jewish Labor Federation, the strongest body in Palestine, commanding 100,000 workers, pledged its support to Central Jewish institutions to carry out any measures needed to defeat the British plan. All Jewish sports groups have their members "ready."

The Tel Aviv municipality, which rules 150,000 in the All-Jewish city, planned to cooperate with the Central Body. Manifestoes signed by such groups as the "National Army Association" and "Fighters for Liberty and the Homeland" called on Jews to be ready for "any sacrifice."

A manifesto of the second group declared: "If the British government continues this policy of destroying the Jewish National Home, we will unsheath our swords."

Jewish leaders have stated repeatedly that if Britain should deny Jews the right to migrate into Palestine and take up an equal share in governing the proposed independent state, they would consider themselves released from the policy of cooperation which they have proclaimed as theirs since 1913.

$200 a Month Old Age Pension Loses

Tallahassee, Fla., May 16 (AP)—The Florida senate tonight overwhelmingly defeated a state $200-a-month Townsend old age pension plan.

The vote on the bill was 28 to 8.

The bill would have levied a 2 percent transactions tax on every type of business to pay as nearly $200 a month to all persons over sixty years of age as the tax would produce.

It was debated for more than three hours before a chamber packed with elderly persons.

Senator S. L. Holland of Bartow said four senators had word from Dr. Francis E. Townsend, creator of the nationwide Townsend plan, that he opposed the bill.

"Utterly opposed to any scheme for pension for aged by single state," the telegram from Townsend read. "These efforts inevitably doomed to failure. Pensions to be effective and adequate to restore prosperity must be national in scope."

Senator Charley E. Johns of Starke, 34-year-old author of the bill told the senate his measure was the first before any state legislature embodying the Townsend plan.

Roosevelt Will Resume Discussions on Tax Revisions

Washington, May 16. (AP)—President Roosevelt indicated today that he soon would resume his discussions with congressional leaders on corporate tax revision.

The president reiterated that should the undistributed profits tax be repealed, some method to prevent legal tax avoidance must be found and substitute levies enacted.

Cause of Potter Palmer's Death Is Still Unknown

Inquest Testimony Raises Doubt as to the Effect of Blow

Sarasota, Fla., May 16 (AP)—Inquest testimony late today raised doubts a blow from the fist of meat cutter Kenneth Nosworthy fatally injured socialite Potter D'Orsay Palmer in a picnic brawl.

After witnesses had said Palmer was persistently quarrelsome at the stag affair last Saturday, and Nosworthy acknowledged striking the oft-married Chicago heir, Assistant State Attorney W. M. Smiley told the jurors an autopsy had not borne out the report the playboy's death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage caused by a "terrific blow" on the head.

Smiley said further medical examination would be necessary to determine the cause of Palmer's death in a Sarasota hospital yesterday.

The inquest was recessed indefinitely to permit this examination, which Smiley said would be made by six physicians he had summoned.

Before the inquest, Sheriff C. J. Hutches said he was convinced the six-foot Chicagoan was the aggressor in any trouble with Nosworthy and he saw no reason to lodge charges or arrest the young Bradenton man.

Palmer Was Quarrelsome

Val Campbell, owner of a Bradenton cocktail lounge, said he took Palmer to the barbecue picnic, held at a camp west of Bradenton to raise funds for a police radio system. Campbell said his guest engaged in two heated arguments prior to his encounter with Nosworthy and quarreled repeatedly with others at the affair.

Nosworthy also testified Palmer was in a belligerent mood at the picnic and he had tried to avoid him. He said he told a Bradenton policeman of difficulties with Palmer and the policeman told him to "forget it" and try to keep out of Palmer's way.

Palmer, Nosworthy asserted, struck him in the stomach and then tackled him around the legs, biting his left leg. Nosworthy said he hit Palmer "a couple of times" to make him let go and that when Palmer stood up he swung a full blow at him.

The young meat cutter said he did not strike with his full weight and did not believe Palmer was injured by the blow.

Jackson Begins His Fourth Term

Non-essentials Must Be Eliminated He Says in Inaugural Address

Baltimore, May 16 (AP)—Mayor Howard W. Jackson embarked upon his fourth term today and tagged as the Administration's No. 1 problem the financing of relief needs "without impairing the essential operations of government."

To this end, he said in his inaugural address, "we must eliminate non-essentials, and we must reduce expense of government to the lowest possible point consistent with the effort to give our people the protection and opportunities that go with American citizenship."

The mayor disclosed economic conditions of his previous administrations, running from boom times to depression. He paid tribute to his aides of the last four years and asserted that with their help, the city had been able to maintain outstanding school, health and welfare departments.

National Guard Protection in Harlan County Is Extended

Three Groups of Kentucky Operators Sign Contract with Mine Workers Affecting 14,000 Men

Union Official Wires President Roosevelt To Take Steps To Relieve Situation in Kentucky

Harlan, Ky., May 16 (AP)—State troops moved across the Harlan county line into the edge of Bell county today as soft coal operators along the Kentucky-West Virginia line signed a union shop contract affecting 14,000 men.

Brigadier General Ellerbe Carter, commanding the national guardsmen in the area, at his press conference late in the day, in answer to a question said:

The troops are under orders to shoot and shoot to kill when necessary.

"There'll be no pushing around of soldiers on this duty. None have been pushed around."

The general said he had an understanding with United Mine Workers' Union officials about picketing and that he believed the union "is sincere in their effort to prevent picketing disorders."

Peace Talks Started

General Carter said the troops sent into Bell county were with the consent of the sheriff, who had been reported as opposed to presence of the guardsmen. A mine re-opened in that area today.

The general asserted that he did not "feel there is much of a strain" in the general labor situation, adding: "But you never can tell when it will change."

Peace talks, started yesterday in Harlan, went unmentioned in any quarter today but the members of the Hazard Coal Operators' Association, another group out of the "Union Shop" agreement with the United Mine Workers, decided at Lexington to call a union representative into conference at 9 p. m. (Central Standard Time) to discuss a contract, with indications an agreement would be signed.

William Turnblazer, President of the Harlan District of the United Mine Workers' Union, in a telegram to President Roosevelt asked him to take steps "to relieve the situation in Harlan county and that protection of coal miners and their families be accorded, that rights and civil liberties of these people be preserved."

Turnblazer protested, in the message, against Governor A. B. Chandler sending troops, saying:

"The situation brought about by Governor Chandler of Kentucky sending Harlan 800 state militia to be used as a strike-breaking agency is hourly creating a most tense situation among citizens and miners of this county."

Governor Chandler from the state capitol at Frankfort said his order calling out the guardsmen covered Harlan "and environs" and that the soldiers at one mine in Bell county were a part of the troops sent here.

Three Groups Sign Contract

George S. Ward, Secretary of the Harlan County Operators' Association, said 21 mines were operating today with 2,100 men back on their jobs. Six mines were opened yesterday, the first time since the old contract expired March 31.

The first of three groups of Kentucky operators, who walked out of the New York conference last Saturday refusing to sign a union shop agreement with the United Mine Workers, announced at noon that

Mental Troubles Called Greatest Unsolved Medical Problem in U. S.

Feeblemindedness Termed One of Worst Mental Curses

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

St. Louis, May 16—Evidence is available that at least 10,000,000 of the 130,000,000 people in this country bear in their bodies the seeds which may occasionally result in a feebleminded child.

This assertion was made to the American Medical Association today by its new president, Dr. Rock Sleyster, of Wauwatosa, Wis., one of the nation's foremost brain authorities.

He said mental troubles are the nation's greatest unsolved medical problem and that an understanding of the human mind and the human way of thinking may aid in solution of problems of government.

He sketched medicine's miracles in prolonging life, but he asserted if protection against hazards of sickness brings unwillingness to battle against economic troubles, then the price paid is "far more than the goods are worth."

These declarations were made during Dr. Sleyster's presidential address, at a meeting to which the public was invited.

On any one day, he said, one percent of the population is in mental hospitals. About 13,000,000 adults, or 10 percent of the population, will at some time in their lives be more or less incapacitated by mental illness.

Feeblemindedness, one of the worst mental curses, must look to the scientists investing genetics and heredity for hope in limiting production of children unable from birth to meet the mental needs of civilization.

"There is no panacea," Dr. Sleyster said. "Certainly it has not yet been established that modern methods of the prevention of conception in their application to mankind as a whole can control the production of such specimens.

"Neither is there any evidence that laws regulating sterilization of the parents of the feebleminded will in any serious manner diminish the total number of feebleminded."

Baltimore, May 16 (AP)—Maryland's federal-aided highway planning survey, which exhausted its funds and stopped work late last year after spending $363,000 since 1936, started up again today on a nine-month budget of $57,000.

William F. Childs, new Director of survey, said a staff of 17 picked up immediately the work of finishing detail maps of each county. General highway maps will be prepared when the county maps have been completed, Childs said.

The rest of the year will be devoted to compilation of statistics based on the three years work already completed. Childs explained fiscal and road life studies, and tables of "roads priority" would be worked out.

Such information, he continued, would be turned over to the State Roads Commission for guidance in developing construction programs over long periods of year. The priority tables wil show highways which would be repaired or rebuilt before others.

In addition to $40.000 allocated by the state, the survey will have $17,000 in federal funds.

Patient Burns To Death In Oxygen Tent after Lighting Cigaret

Pittsburgh, May 16 (AP)—Eugene A. Boehm of Ambridge, 49-year-old patient at the Presbyterian hospital, was burned to death today when he tried to light a cigaret while he lay in an oxygen tent. His wife, who had come to visit him, stood outside the door of his room.

A fellow-patient attempted to drag Boehm from the tent, but failed. He said the oxygen burst into flame as soon as Boehm struck the match.

Boehm was admitted to the hospital for treatment of asthma.

Charles Backman Is Flying Solo Across Atlantic

Left Newfoundland at 2:30 a. m. Yesterday on Hop to Sweeden

St. John's, Newfoundland, May 16 (Canadian Press) — Charles Backman, slim young Swedish aviator, tonight followed the air trails blazed over the Atlantic by a select group of fliers with solo ocean crossings to their credit.

The 34-year old flier took off from Newfoundland airport 213 miles from here and near Botwood, at 5:10 a. m. (2:40 a. m. E. S. T.) today, hoping to land in Stockholm, capital of his native lahd.

He was flying a 90-horsepower, single-motored monoplane with a cruising speed of 110 miles an hour.

France and Great Britain Make an Offer to Russia

Guarantee Support to Soviet in Any Fight with Aggressor

London, May 17 (Wednesday) (AP)—Informed sources said today Britain and France had decided to offer Soviet Russia a guarantee of support if she were forced to fight any aggressor from the west in fulfilling guarantees to small countries on her border.

The decision was reported to have been made after a two-hour meeting of the foreign affairs committee of the cabinet. It represented a concession to Russian demands for reciprocal protection if she entered the British-led front.

It was understood from these reports that Britain planned first to ask an immediate joint declaration by France, Britain and Russia of determination to resist any aggression. Then the Soviet would be asked to guarantee all bordering states against aggression, including Poland, Rumania, Estonia, Latvia and Finland.

If called on to fight as a result of these pledges, the Soviet would be joined by Britain and France.

Military staff talks to arrange each country's part in any war resulting from these pledges would be provided, it was reported.

Britain originally had proposed that Russia give pledges to Poland and Rumania similar to those given by Britain and France, with the proviso that Russia would not be obliged to fight except to support British and French forces after they already had taken the field.

Russia replied that without similar pacts for Latvia, Estonia and

Investment Bankers Seek Tax Revision and Balanced Budget

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—A ten-point program for tax revision and a balanced national budget to "restore business confidence" were recommended today by the Investment Bankers Association.

Constant rates to permit business to calculate taxes several years in advance, simplification in regulations, and discontinuance of the undistributed profits tax were included in the proposals approved by the Iba board of governors.

Reductions were asked in several other levies, including surtaxes and estate taxes.

The Governors recorded a formal appeal to the treasury department for a balanced budget, terming the government's finances "the most important problem in our national life."

Urge Changes in Taxes

A letter written by C. Provost Boyce of Baltimore, Chairman of the IBA's Federal Taxation committee, set forth the changes urged in the tax structure and approved by the board.

Boyce's letter, addressed to under Secretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes, said:

"Some of the proposals, it is realized, may result in some temporary reduction in revenues. On the other hand, the effect on business will be salutary and consequently helpful to the entire country."

The recommonded changes were:

Simplify taxes and regulations so that they will be understandable to the average taxpayer.

Would Reduce Surtax Rates

Maintain constant taxation rates and methods of calculation to permit business to know for several years in advance what it must pay. "That certainly in itself would help restore business confidence," Boyce said.

Discontinue undisturbed profits taxes.

Permit carrying forward of net operating losses for at least four-year period.

More equitable regulations regarding carryng forward capital loss deductions.

Reduce surtax rates.

Simplify and reduce federal estate taxes.

Reduce tax on income received by corporations through discount purchase of their own bonds.

More equitable earned income credit.

Creation of more specific definition of earnings and profits.

Upon recommendation of the membership committee, eleven new members were admitted to the association in a closed session.

The board will hold its final session here tomorrow.

British Troops On Duty as Jews In Holy Land Are Ready To Strike

British Plan Is Drawn up after Futile Conferences To Settle 20 Year Old Jewish-Arab Quarrel

Jerusalem, May 16 (AP)—British troops patrolled strategic points throughout the Holy Land tonight as part of extensive precautions to avert threatened disorders over the British Government's Palestine plan to be published tomorrow.

With the local press already printing reports of what the plan is believed to provide, both Jews and Extremist Arabs expressed bitter opposition and planned demonstrations which included a 24-hour Jewish strike schedule for Thursday.

(The British plan, drawn up after futile round table conferences to settle a 20-year quarrel between the Arabs and Jews of Palestine, is reported to provide for gradual creation of a Palestine state 60 per cent Arab and 40 percent Jewish.

(Britain was reported to have decided to free herself in 1944 from any obligation to facilitate a Jewish National Home in Palestine by further Jewish immigration.)

Standby Orders Given

Standby orders were telegraphed to all police posts in the country and volunteer fire brigades in Jerusalem, Haifa, Tel Aviv, and Jaffa were drafted into service to break up demonstrations.

Indications of the intense feelings of Jews were seen in an attempt by Revisionists to lower British flags from government buildings at Tel Aviv and in signs smeared on Jerusalem shop windows saying, "we are bringing illegal immigrants into the country, if necessary, under Jewish armed guards."

The Jewish Labor Federation, the strongest body in Palestine, commanding 100,000 workers, pledged its support to Central Jewish institutions to carry out any measures needed to defeat the British plan. All Jewish sports groups have their members "ready."

The Tel Aviv municipality, which rules 150,000 in the All-Jewish city, planned to cooperate with the Central Body. Manifestoes signed by such groups as the "National Army Association" and "Fighters for Liberty and the Homeland" called on Jews to be ready for "any sacrifice."

A manifesto of the second group declared: "If the British government continues this policy of destroying the Jewish National Home, we will unsheath our swords."

Jewish leaders have stated repeatedly that if Britain should deny Jews the right to migrate into Palestine and take up an equal share in governing the proposed independent state, they would consider themselves released from the policy of cooperation which they have proclaimed as theirs since 1913.

$200 a Month Old Age Pension Loses

Tallahassee, Fla., May 16 (AP)—The Florida senate tonight overwhelmingly defeated a state $200-a-month Townsend old age pension plan.

The vote on the bill was 28 to 8.

The bill would have levied a 2 percent transactions tax on every type of business to pay as nearly $200 a month to all persons over sixty years of age as the tax would produce.

It was debated for more than three hours before a chamber packed with elderly persons.

Senator S. L. Holland of Bartow said four senators had word from Dr. Francis E. Townsend, creator of the nationwide Townsend plan, that he opposed the bill.

"Utterly opposed to any scheme for pension for aged by single state," the telegram from Townsend read. "These efforts inevitably doomed to failure. Pensions to be effective and adequate to restore prosperity must be national in scope."

Senator Charley E. Johns of Starke, 34-year-old author of the bill told the senate his measure was the first before any state legislature embodying the Townsend plan.

Roosevelt Will Resume Discussions on Tax Revisions

Washington, May 16. (AP)—President Roosevelt indicated today that he soon would resume his discussions with congressional leaders on corporate tax revision.

The president reiterated that should the undistributed profits tax be repealed, some method to prevent legal tax avoidance must be found and substitute levies enacted.

Cause of Potter Palmer's Death Is Still Unknown

Inquest Testimony Raises Doubt as to the Effect of Blow

Sarasota, Fla., May 16 (AP)—Inquest testimony late today raised doubts a blow from the fist of meat cutter Kenneth Nosworthy fatally injured socialite Potter D'Orsay Palmer in a picnic brawl.

After witnesses had said Palmer was persistently quarrelsome at the stag affair last Saturday, and Nosworthy acknowledged striking the oft-married Chicago heir, Assistant State Attorney W. M. Smiley told the jurors an autopsy had not borne out the report the playboy's death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage caused by a "terrific blow" on the head.

Smiley said further medical examination would be necessary to determine the cause of Palmer's death in a Sarasota hospital yesterday.

The inquest was recessed indefinitely to permit this examination, which Smiley said would be made by six physicians he had summoned.

Before the inquest, Sheriff C. J. Hutches said he was convinced the six-foot Chicagoan was the aggressor in any trouble with Nosworthy and he saw no reason to lodge charges or arrest the young Bradenton man.

Palmer Was Quarrelsome

Val Campbell, owner of a Bradenton cocktail lounge, said he took Palmer to the barbecue picnic, held at a camp west of Bradenton to raise funds for a police radio system. Campbell said his guest engaged in two heated arguments prior to his encounter with Nosworthy and quarreled repeatedly with others at the affair.

Nosworthy also testified Palmer was in a belligerent mood at the picnic and he had tried to avoid him. He said he told a Bradenton policeman of difficulties with Palmer and the policeman told him to "forget it" and try to keep out of Palmer's way.

Palmer, Nosworthy asserted, struck him in the stomach and then tackled him around the legs, biting his left leg. Nosworthy said he hit Palmer "a couple of times" to make him let go and that when Palmer stood up he swung a full blow at him.

The young meat cutter said he did not strike with his full weight and did not believe Palmer was injured by the blow.

Jackson Begins His Fourth Term

Non-essentials Must Be Eliminated He Says in Inaugural Address

Baltimore, May 16 (AP)—Mayor Howard W. Jackson embarked upon his fourth term today and tagged as the Administration's No. 1 problem the financing of relief needs "without impairing the essential operations of government."

To this end, he said in his inaugural address, "we must eliminate non-essentials, and we must reduce expense of government to the lowest possible point consistent with the effort to give our people the protection and opportunities that go with American citizenship."

The mayor disclosed economic conditions of his previous administrations, running from boom times to depression. He paid tribute to his aides of the last four years and asserted that with their help, the city had been able to maintain outstanding school, health and welfare departments.

National Guard Protection in Harlan County Is Extended

Union Official Wires President Roosevelt To Take Steps To Relieve Situation in Kentucky

Harlan, Ky., May 16 (AP)—State troops moved across the Harlan county line into the edge of Bell county today as soft coal operators along the Kentucky-West Virginia line signed a union shop contract affecting 14,000 men.

Brigadier General Ellerbe Carter, commanding the national guardsmen in the area, at his press conference late in the day, in answer to a question said:

The troops are under orders to shoot and shoot to kill when necessary.

"There'll be no pushing around of soldiers on this duty. None have been pushed around."

The general said he had an understanding with United Mine Workers' Union officials about picketing and that he believed the union "is sincere in their effort to prevent picketing disorders."

Peace Talks Started

General Carter said the troops sent into Bell county were with the consent of the sheriff, who had been reported as opposed to presence of the guardsmen. A mine re-opened in that area today.

The general asserted that he did not "feel there is much of a strain" in the general labor situation, adding: "But you never can tell when it will change."

Peace talks, started yesterday in Harlan, went unmentioned in any quarter today but the members of the Hazard Coal Operators' Association, another group out of the "Union Shop" agreement with the United Mine Workers, decided at Lexington to call a union representative into conference at 9 p. m. (Central Standard Time) to discuss a contract, with indications an agreement would be signed.

William Turnblazer, President of the Harlan District of the United Mine Workers' Union, in a telegram to President Roosevelt asked him to take steps "to relieve the situation in Harlan county and that protection of coal miners and their families be accorded, that rights and civil liberties of these people be preserved."

Turnblazer protested, in the message, against Governor A. B. Chandler sending troops, saying:

"The situation brought about by Governor Chandler of Kentucky sending Harlan 800 state militia to be used as a strike-breaking agency is hourly creating a most tense situation among citizens and miners of this county."

Governor Chandler from the state capitol at Frankfort said his order calling out the guardsmen covered Harlan "and environs" and that the soldiers at one mine in Bell county were a part of the troops sent here.

Three Groups Sign Contract

George S. Ward, Secretary of the Harlan County Operators' Association, said 21 mines were operating today with 2,100 men back on their jobs. Six mines were opened yesterday, the first time since the old contract expired March 31.

The first of three groups of Kentucky operators, who walked out of the New York conference last Saturday refusing to sign a union shop agreement with the United Mine Workers, announced at noon that

Mental Troubles Called Greatest Unsolved Medical Problem in U. S.

Feeblemindedness Termed One of Worst Mental Curses

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

St. Louis, May 16—Evidence is available that at least 10,000,000 of the 130,000,000 people in this country bear in their bodies the seeds which may occasionally result in a feebleminded child.

This assertion was made to the American Medical Association today by its new president, Dr. Rock Sleyster, of Wauwatosa, Wis., one of the nation's foremost brain authorities.

He said mental troubles are the nation's greatest unsolved medical problem and that an understanding of the human mind and the human way of thinking may aid in solution of problems of government.

He sketched medicine's miracles in prolonging life, but he asserted if protection against hazards of sickness brings unwillingness to battle against economic troubles, then the price paid is "far more than the goods are worth."

These declarations were made during Dr. Sleyster's presidential address, at a meeting to which the public was invited.

On any one day, he said, one percent of the population is in mental hospitals. About 13,000,000 adults, or 10 percent of the population, will at some time in their lives be more or less incapacitated by mental illness.

Feeblemindedness, one of the worst mental curses, must look to the scientists investing genetics and heredity for hope in limiting production of children unable from birth to meet the mental needs of civilization.

"There is no panacea," Dr. Sleyster said. "Certainly it has not yet been established that modern methods of the prevention of conception in their application to mankind as a whole can control the production of such specimens.

"Neither is there any evidence that laws regulating sterilization of the parents of the feebleminded will in any serious manner diminish the total number of feebleminded."

esident Says Much of Nation's Savings Is in "Stagnant Pools"

ants To Know Why Funds Are Not in Productive Enterprise

ashington, May 16 (AP)—Presi- Roosevelt proposed to the opoly committee today that it to determine why much of the on's money and savings has d its way into "stagnant pools" ead of productive enterprise.

t is our task," he wrote Sena- O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), the com- ee chairman, "to find and en- tically adopt those specific mea- s which will bring together idle machines and money.

n proportion as we succeed, we strengthen the structure of ocratic economy."

Mahoney read Mr. Roosevelt's r into the record shortly after committee began a study of gs and investments arranged he securities commission.

e Wyoming Senator said he in- ted the communication as in- ting that the President was arily interested in promoting the investment of private funds for private profit and in the develop of free, private, independent enterprise."

No Profit in Idle Dollars

Commenting that "idle dollars profit no man," Mr. Roosevelt said in his letter it was "common knowledge that the dollars which the American people save each year are not finding their way back into productive enterprise in sufficient volume to keep our economic machine turning over at the rate required to bring about full employment."

Whether this condition is due to the nation's economy "leaving an era of rapid expansion and entering an era of steadier growth, calling for relatively less investment in capital goods," or because of "lag, leak and friction in the operation of investment markets which pervert the normal flow of savings into non-productive enterprise," are questions for the committee to answer, the president said.

"I know of no more urgent ones in the country today," he added.

"The hearings before your committee, I hope, will assume the task

Roosevelt Names Armistead Dobie A Federal Judge

Senators Byrd and Glass of Virginia Approve the Nomination

Washington, May 16 (AP)—The fight between President Roosevelt and the two Virginia senators over the appointment of a federal judge in that state came to an end today.

The chief executive named Dean Armistead M. Dobie of the University of Virginia law school to the post. Senator Byrd said he and his colleague, Senator Glass, were "consulted" and gave their approval before the nomination was sent to the senate. President Roosevelt told a press conference that his secretary had informed both senators the nomination was coming to the senate a half hour before it was sent.

Last winter President Roosevelt nominated Floyd H. Roberts for the same judgeship. Glass and Byrd told the senate that the nomination was "personably obnoxious" to them and asked that it be rejected. The senate voted 9 to 72 against confirmation.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the Dobie nomination today, Mr. Roosevelt entertained at luncheon Governor James H. Price of Virginia, leader of the faction in the Democratic party in Virginia opposed to Glass and Byrd. Price told reporters he first heard of the Dobie nomination at the luncheon.

Both Byrd and Glass gave the Dobie nomination their enthusiastic endorsement. The former, speaking for both, said the nominee was an old friend, and "unusually well qualified" for the post and was "one of the ablest lawyers in Virginia."

The Roberts nomination was sent to the senate after an exchange of letters in which Glass asked whether Price was controlling federal appointments for Virginia. Mr. Roosevelt asked Glass and Byrd to make recommendations for the appointment. They did so but, they said, Mr. Roosevelt disregarded their wishes and named Roberts.

Dobie is 58, a native of Norfolk, a graduate of the University of Virginia and a member of that institution's faculty since 1907. In 1920, he was a member of the Virginia delegation to the Democratic National Convention supporting Glass for the presidential nomination.

ceive weather reports and check his course, which he told Bangor, Me., airport attendants, he had mapped at 2,300 miles.

He estimated a full fuel load in extra gas tanks gave him seven additional flying hours after the Newfoundland-Stockholm distance was spanned.

Fair Weather Over Atlantic

His plane was equipped with a directional indicator, a periodic compass, cabin heater and usual standard equipment, but without some of the elaborate devices of some ships set to cross the Atlantic.

Meteorologists said Backman was favored by "fair" weather for the hop.

Backman landed at the Newfoundland airport last night after a hop from Bangor, Me. He arrived at Bangor Sunday night after a non-stop hop from St. Louis.

More than twelve hours after his little "flying gas tank" had lumbered into the dawn, there was no word from Backman.

The North Atlantic shipping lanes are little used at this time of year because of the danger of ice, so reports from ships sighting him were likely to be few.

Delivering New Plane

Chicago, May 16 (AP) — Charles Backman, the aviator who is over the Atlantic enroute to Stockholm, Sweden, is making a transoceanic delivery of an airplane to a Swedish buyer, his brothers, Gust and Andrew, said tonight.

Backman, a 34 year old partner in a Chicago painting and decorating concern, had planned an Atlantic flight for more than a year, his brothers said, but had been unable to get permission for such a flight from the Department of Commerce.

The brothers said it was their understanding that Backman, in trying to find another way in which he could have the flight sanctioned, sold and agreed to deliver a plane to Gunnar Prossel, a pilot friend, living in Liksand, Sweden. The ship then was entered in Swedish registry and permission for the flight was obtained from Sweden, they said.

Ora W. Young, Senior Aeronautical Inspector for the Chicago area, said Backman had made no application here for a permit to fly the Atlantic.

"If Backman is really making a delivery on the ship," Young commented, "it is probably the first time a land ship has ever been delivered by flying it across the ocean."

Crew Escapes as Navy Blimp Is Damaged

Lakehurst, N. J., May 16 (AP) — Commander Jessie L. Kenworthy and a crew of eight men escaped injury today when the Navy's newest lighter-than-air ship, the K-2, was damaged while landing at the Naval Air Station.

The blimp struck the ground and the gas bag was torn, causing it to deflate on the field.

National Guard Protection In Harlan County Is Extended

the Union shop contract had been signed.

This was the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators' Association, which met with U. M. W. representatives at Ashland. The conference began yesterday. Plans were made immediately for most of the miners to return to their jobs tomorrow with all operating by Thursday. Observers said this also would mean many railroad men, laid off since the stoppage of mine work, would return to work within a few days.

No Serious Disturbance

There was no serious disturbance in the Harlan area during the day.

At Brookside several hundred miners and their wives protected against the location of a machine gun set up to command a sweep of the town. The gun, which the protesting group claimed was on a miner's property, was moved and the crowd dispersed on request of Turnblazer.

Brigadier General Ellerbe Carter, commanding the militia, said a national guard officer had been relieved of the command of a machine gun company for failure to show "the proper aggressiveness."

The officer was in charge of a detachment at Totz where C. V. Bennett, Manager of the Harlan Central Coal Company, reported miners in automobiles returning from work yesterday were stoned by pickets.

All power to the Harlan Central mine was cut off when a power line pole carrying electricity to the plant was sawed in two shortly after noon. This stopped the fans blowing fresh air into the mine tunnels and the miners were forced to come to the surface. Company officials said repairs could not be made until tomorrow.

Chandler Defends Action

Frankfort, Ky., May 16 (AP) — Gov. A. B. Chandler said today in a statement "I do not believe John L. Lewis or anybody else has the right to make" any person "join the CIO union or be deprived of a job."

Replying to Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, who had called Chandler a "madman" in a speech at Philadelphia last night, the Bluegrass Governor asserted:

"Lewis said he personally would take charge of Kentucky. The people of Kentucky do not want John L. Lewis to run the affairs of this state and they are not going to be bullied by him."

Chandler said the "sole issue" before Kentucky was "are you ready to surrender your right of citizenship to the dictatorship tactics of John L. Lewis? x x x I shall continue to fight any threat of the people of our state coming under control of such a man."

Referring to Lewis' critical remarks of his order dispatching troops into Harlan county during the coal mine controversy, the Governor said:

"The County Judge of Harlan county requested me to send troops to give all miners who wanted work and who did not desire to join the union a chance to work free of molestation.

"In the present controversy we are not trying to force men to go back to work but, if they want to work, the state of Kentucky can and will protect them from molestation from John L. Lewis or anyone else.

Louisville, Ky., May 16 (AP) — Alexander Jeffrey, president of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor, in a statement tonight, said the organization "condemns in no uncertain terms the action of our governor in restoring to the use of troops in the coal fields of our state, as it will, the action of any governor in such instances.

Roosevelt Announces "Hands Off" Policy

Washington, May 16 (AP)—A hands off policy was announced by President Roosevelt today in the dispute over Governor Chandler's order sending Kentucky National Guardsmen to the Harlan county coal field.

The president said at his press conference he had not yet received a protest from the United Mine Workers against use of the troops. He added in response to a question that the calling of guardsmen was primarily up to the Kentucky governor.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had no intention of intervening in the controversy.

Meanwhile the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation said it had shipped food to Harlan county for distribution among families on relief and that it was "probable" that some of the products went to miners involved in the labor dispute in the Harlan district.

Officials said the commodities were sent at the request of the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration, an agency of the Kentucky Works Progress Administration.

Officials explained that determination of who should receive surplus commodities furnished by the FSCC was left up to state and local relief officials.

Scotland Yard Agents from London worked with local and Provincial police and the Royal Mounted men to make a final check of every suspicious character in the city.

Enthusiasm Is Great

The two-day delay in the arrival of their majesties — originally scheduled for Monday but set back because the Empress was held up by fog in the North Atlantic ice fields—did nothing to dampen enthusiasm.

The great majority of visitors here for Monday stayed on, and other thousands poured in today by special train and automobile. Many motor cars had United States license plates.

Formal opening of the month-long visit of the King and Queen to Canada and the United States will be signalled by a 21-gun salute fired from the heights above the river as his Majesty steps on Canadian soil.

The Empress will weigh anchor in the morning at 7 A. M. (Eastern Daylight Time) (6 A. M., E.S.T.) and dock at Wolfe's Cove at 8:30 A. M. At 10:25 Prime Minister Mackenzie King will go aboard and five minutes later, with the guns booming, the Premier will escort the King and Queen ashore.

Federal, provincial and municipal officials will be presented to the Royal couple and the King will inspect a guard of honor in a 25-minute ceremony that will precede departure for the Quebec Parliament Building.

Leaving at 12:15 P. M., the King and Queen will then spend 30 minutes at the Citadel, summer residence of the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Tweedsmuir.

Then comes a luncheon given by the Dominion Government at the Chateau Frontenac, and an afternoon crowded with a demonstration by school children at Battlefields Park and a tea at Spencer Wood, residence of the Lieutenant Governor.

In the evening the King and Queen will leave for the Chateau Frontenac for a banquet given by the Quebec Government at which they will eat snowbirds, caught on the Island of Orleans, and drink rare vintage wines.

They are to spend the night at the Citadel, closing the Quebec trip with departure at 9:30 A. M., Thursday after a parade.

Edward Brown Dismissed As Guard at House of Correction

Baltimore, May 16 (AP) — State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones dismissed Edward Brown, a House of Correction guard, today after Brown failed to answer charges of neglect of duty.

Commissioner Jones said the guard asked for a hearing, which was set for yesterday, but failed to appear. The dismissal followed automatically.

Brown was charged specifically with continual tardiness in reporting for work.

Pennsylvania Legislature To Adjourn May 27

Leaders Decide To Concentrate on Four Major Subjects

Harrisburg, Pa., May 16 (AP)—Leaders of the Pennsylvania legislature decided today to concentrate on four major subjects, shelve all insignificant measures, and adjourn the 1939 session May 27.

The adjournment resolution was drafted for presentation to the house and senate.

Singled out for action in the final days were:

1—Relief revision as proposed in the Van Allsburg bill, passed by the house. It was sent to a subcommittee in the senate today for deletion of certain objectionable features. One senator said it would have been "killed" if brought up for a vote today. The bill would remove 5,000 unemployed relief workers from civil service.

2—Workmen's compensation. Five bills revising the schedule of payments to injured employees have been approved by the house and are before a senate committee.

3—Liquor control. The house sent the senate yesterday three bills to set up local licensing boards, reduce the number of hotel licenses, mark up the licenses fees and increase the size of the "dry zones" around churches and schools.

4—Appropriations. Many of the sums asked by the governor to operate the state government in the next two years have been sanctioned by the house and several dozen have been sent to the senate. This topic is the last major issue before the house.

Republicans are one vote short of the 26 needed to assure passage of legislation affecting these principal subjects. At times, two Democrats—William J. Eroe and Joseph P. Dando—have voted with them, however.

of analyzing the financial machine in its relation to the creation of more needed wealth. We know that the mechanism can be improved. Improvement can only be made on a basis of clear analysis. Having made that analysis, I hope that your committee will then be able to indicate ways by which the machine may be made to function more efficiently.

Wants Wealth To Move

"The problem is to use our added savings and increased credit to get this wealth moving, that is, to get it now in productive enterprise; and, at the same time, to make savings available for use in all categories of private enterprise, as well as for the great and recognized enterprises which can command capital, but have less actual need of capital than many smaller but equally deserving enerprises.

"There is also the problem of determining how credit can best be made available for instrumentalities of local government and for those quasi-public enterprises which must do the work which cannot be done by private enterprises."

In commenting on the letter, O'Mahoney expressed the opinion that "big business," which he defined as business owned by one group and operated by another group, "has not suffered anthing like little business."

President Defends Purchase of Beef

Washington, May 16. (AP)—President Roosevelt defended the purchase of Argentine canned corned beef for the Navy again today with an assertion that the South American country the best cuts of beef are used for canning.

In the United States, he added, the best cuts are sold on the fresh meat market and other grades used for ground meat products. In the Argentine, on the other hand, he said, there is not a sufficient market to absorb the supply of best cuts, a surplus exists, and it goes into cans.

An order approved by the president for the purchase of 48,000 pounds of the South American product has aroused a storm of controversy in congress.

The president's statement today was made at a press conference.

At a previous conference he had defended the purchase as involving both a cheaper price and better beef.

Earlier in the day, Senator Capper (R-Kas) laid before the senate protests against the order by D. M. Hildebrand of Seward, Neb., President of the United States Livestock Association, and by Governor Payne Ratner of Kansas.

O'Conor Is Studying 236 Bills; Will Veto about Ten

Annapolis, May 16 (AP)—Gov. O'Conor tonight studied 236 legislative acts, last of the 778 signed by the legislature, which he has calendared for executive action tomorrow.

O'Conor said he would veto about ten measures and sign the rest. His action will "button up" the work of the 1939 legislature.

Only measure definitely ticketed for the gubernatorial ax is the Jones Bill, which would have ousted Harry C. Jones, State Employment Commissioner, from office.

Maryland Labor Group Re-names Present Officers

Only Election Contest Is for Delegate to AFL Convention

Hagerstown, Md., May 16 (AP) — Delegates to the thirty-fourth Annual Convention of the Maryland-District of Columbia Federation of Labor today renominated all present officers, headed by President Joseph McCurdy of Baltimore, and adopted a resolution supporting all present policies of the American Federation of Labor.

The only election contest appeared in the choice of a delegate to the annual convention of the AFL. Miss Anna Neary of Baltimore and Frank J. Coleman of Washington, Secretary of the Federation, were nominated for this post.

In addition to McCurdy, officers nominated without opposition were: Vice-President F. N. Kerchaw of Baltimore; John Locher of Washington, Harry J. Thompson and G. Kingston Howard of Baltimore, John L. Geist of Hagerstown and Paul W. England of Cumberland; Secretary, Mr. England; Treasurer, Robert Lester of Washington and Organizer, Robert J. Buxbaum of Baltimore.

The resolution supporting the parent body headed the list adopted Others endorsed the 35-hour work week for federal employes; opposed discrimination against workers over 40 and asked for "investigations by scientifically trained police officers of traffic accidents in the District of Columbia."

Lazaron Hits Dictators

Rabbi Morris S. Lazaron of Baltimore attacked Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini as "demagogues preying upon the fears and suspicions of the people of Germany and Italy."

"The powers loose in the world do not respect the rights of labor or religion," he said. "The same forces that attack religion today may attack labor tomorrow."

Turning to domestic problems, Rabbi Lazaron criticized what he called "economic mossbacks" in congress. They are the legislators, he said, who preach economy in government, then vote for appropriations amounting to extravagances.

Howard T. Colvin of the U. S. Department of Labor called the right of collective bargaining "the outstanding accomplishment of labor in America." He predicted fewer strikes and lockouts in the future.

He praised the labor leader who has "risen from the ranks" as a more valuable asset to the labor movement "than the theorist whose ideas have come solely from the classrooms."

Senator Mish Speaks

State Senator Joseph D. Mish of Washington county, I. M. Ornburn, Secretary-Treasurer of the Label Trades Department of the AFL, and Frank Fenton, General Organizer for the AFL, were other speakers.

Mish said Maryland had made great strides in workers' legislation during the year, particularly in changes to the workmen's compensation act.

Finland, and an alliance of the three big powers, the arrangement would lack the vital element of reciprocity. She feared being drawn into war without British and French support if other small countries on her border were not given guarantees.

A note outlining Britain's concessions was expected to go to Moscow today.

The prompt reply to the Soviet note, received Monday, was decided upon after Moscow suddenly disappointed the British government yesterday by sending Ivan Maisky, her ambassador to London, as her representative at the League of Nations meeting next week instead of her Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs, Vladimir Potemkin.

Villagers File Protest Against Discontinuing B. & O. Flagstops

Charleston, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—Residents of six central West Virginia villages filed protests today against application of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to discontinue several flagstops.

Witnesses for the railroad appeared before the Public Service Commission to testify that business did not justify stopping trains Nos. 23 and 24 on the Parkersburg-Grafton division.

Residents of Petroleum, Silver Run, Central, Walker, Eatons and Davidsville, all in Dodridge, Ritchie or Wood county, filed written protests.

To offset the protests, the West Virginia Transportation Company, B. and O. subsidiary, offered to extend its Parkersburg-to-Walker service and take in the other communities.

ous and efficient leadership of our armies."

At the other end of the capitol, a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee gave further impetus to the defense program by approving the major provisions of the record-breaking $773,000,000 naval appropriations bill.

The measure, already passed by the house, carries funds for 500 new fighting planes and 23 new warships, including two 45,000-ton battleships—the fleet's largest.

The Senate subcommittee struck out a $500,000 item for work on a new airship for the navy. Chairman Byrnes (D-SC) told reporters "the navy believes that small blimps are quite successful, but it is not convinced that large dirigibles are of military value."

The Senate subcommittee wrote in one provision to authorize the navy to use $600,000 for purchase of new machinery at its Indianhead, Md., powder plant.

It deferred action of a house-approved prohibition against the purchase of Argentine canned corned beef for the navy to give Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) an opportunity to testify in support of it.

President Roosevelt recently ordered the navy to buy the Argentine product because, he said, it was both cheaper and better. His action provoked a storm of congressional criticism.

Meanwhile, the House Naval committee voted unanimously to table a navy department propasal that the government contribute $3,500,000 toward construction of a graving dock in New York Harbor capable of accommodating 45,000-ton battleships as well as the largest trans-Atlantic liners.

FBI AGENT IS Asked To Help In Murder Case

Judge McDevitt Issues Warrants for Mrs. Carina and Rodio

Philadelphia, May 16 (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation stepped into the investigation of the east's insurance murder syndicate tonight with instructions from J. Edgar Hoover to give Philadelphia authorities "the very greatest co-operation possible within our jurisdiction."

Hoover's message was delivered tonight to Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt by A. Bernard Leckie, head of the Philadelphia FBI office.

The FBI was brought into the ever-widening case on personal appeal from Judge Harry S. McDevitt to Hoover, asking that the Federal Bureau's resources be used to capture a man and woman fugitives. Leckie tonight received warrants for their arrests.

Judge McDevitt said the warrants were for:

Mrs. Rose Carina, accused of participation in at least one poison death of the total that may reach 100. She had been called a "lure" for the ring.

Dominic Rodio, named as an accessory in the drowning of Joseph Arena at Sea Isle City, N. J.

Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt charged Mrs. Carina kiled Peter Stea for insurance. He said Stea's body contained traces of two kinds of poison.

On another front of the far-reaching inquiry, Coroner Charles H. Hersch announced the bodies of two more men had been removed from graves to determine whether they had been slain.

Poison traces have ben discovered in at least six exhumed bodies.

Investigators contend more violent methods—fake accidents and even sluggings—were used in the ring's wholesale "slay-for-pay" business. The bodies dug up today were those of Antonio Giacobbe and Abraham Sherman. Their widows ar held.

Roosevelt Names Armistead Dobie A Federal Judge

Senators Byrd and Glass of Virginia Approve the Nomination

Washington, May 16 (AP)—The fight between President Roosevelt and the two Virginia senators over the appointment of a federal judge in that state came to an end today.

The chief executive named Dean Armistead M. Dobie of the University of Virginia law school to the post. Senator Byrd said he and his colleague, Senator Glass, were "consulted" and gave their approval before the nomination was sent to the senate. President Roosevelt told a press conference that his secretary had informed both senators the nomination was coming to the senate a half hour before it was sent.

Last winter President Roosevelt nominated Floyd H. Roberts for the same judgeship. Glass and Byrd told the senate that the nomination was "personably obnoxious" to them and asked that it be rejected. The senate voted 9 to 72 against confirmation.

Simultaneously with the announcement of the Dobie nomination today, Mr. Roosevelt entertained at luncheon Governor James H. Price of Virginia, leader of the faction in the Democratic party in Virginia opposed to Glass and Byrd. Price told reporters he first heard of the Dobie nomination at the luncheon.

Both Byrd and Glass gave the Dobie nomination their enthusiastic endorsement. The former, speaking for both, said the nominee was an old friend, and "unusually well qualified" for the post and was "one of the ablest lawyers in Virginia."

The Roberts nomination was sent to the senate after an exchange of letters in which Glass asked whether Price was controlling federal appointments for Virginia. Mr. Roosevelt asked Glass and Byrd to make recommendations for the appointment. They did so but, they said, Mr. Roosevelt disregarded their wishes and named Roberts.

Dobie is 58, a native of Norfolk, a graduate of the University of Virginia and a member of that institution's faculty since 1907. In 1920, he was a member of the Virginia delegation to the Democratic National Convention supporting Glass for the presidential nomination.

Charles Backman Is Flying Solo Across Atlantic

ceive weather reports and check his course, which he told Bangor, Me., airport attendants, he had mapped at 2,300 miles.

He estimated a full fuel load in extra gas tanks gave him seven additional flying hours after the Newfoundland-Stockholm distance was spanned.

Fair Weather Over Atlantic

His plane was equipped with a directional indicator, a periodic compass, cabin heater and usual standard equipment, but without some of the elaborate devices of some ships set to cross the Atlantic.

Meteorologists said Backman was favored by "fair" weather for the hop.

Backman landed at the Newfoundland airport last night after a hop from Bangor, Me. He arrived at Bangor Sunday night after a non-stop hop from St. Louis.

More than twelve hours after his little "flying gas tank" had lumbered into the dawn, there was no word from Backman.

The North Atlantic shipping lanes are little used at this time of year because of the danger of ice, so reports from ships sighting him were likely to be few.

Delivering New Plane

Chicago, May 16 (AP) — Charles Backman, the aviator who is over the Atlantic enroute to Stockholm, Sweden, is making a transoceanic delivery of an airplane to a Swedish buyer, his brothers, Gust and Andrew, said tonight.

Backman, a 34 year old partner in a Chicago painting and decorating concern, had planned an Atlantic flight for more than a year, his brothers said, but had been unable to get permission for such a flight from the Department of Commerce.

The brothers said it was their understanding that Backman, in trying to find another way in which he could have the flight sanctioned, sold and agreed to deliver a plane to Gunnar Prossel, a pilot friend, living in Liksand, Sweden. The ship then was entered in Swedish registry and permission for the flight was obtained from Sweden, they said.

Ora W. Young, Senior Aeronautical Inspector for the Chicago area, said Backman had made no application here for a permit to fly the Atlantic.

"If Backman is really making a delivery on the ship," Young commented, "it is probably the first time a land ship has ever been delivered by flying it across the ocean."

Lakehurst, N. J., May 16 (AP) — Commander Jessie L. Kenworthy and a crew of eight men escaped injury today when the Navy's newest lighter-than-air ship, the K-2, was damaged while landing at the Naval Air Station.

The blimp struck the ground and the gas bag was torn, causing it to deflate on the field.

the Union shop contract had been signed.

This was the Big Sandy-Elkhorn Coal Operators' Association, which met with U. M. W. representatives at Ashland. The conference began yesterday. Plans were made immediately for most of the miners to return to their jobs tomorrow with all operating by Thursday. Observers said this also would mean many railroad men, laid off since the stoppage of mine work, would return to work within a few days.

No Serious Disturbance

There was no serious disturbance in the Harlan area during the day.

At Brookside several hundred miners and their wives protected against the location of a machine gun set up to command a sweep of the town. The gun, which the protesting group claimed was on a miner's property, was moved and the crowd dispersed on request of Turnblazer.

Brigadier General Ellerbe Carter, commanding the militia, said a national guard officer had been relieved of the command of a machine gun company for failure to show "the proper aggressiveness."

The officer was in charge of a detachment at Totz where C. V. Bennett, Manager of the Harlan Central Coal Company, reported miners in automobiles returning from work yesterday were stoned by pickets.

All power to the Harlan Central mine was cut off when a power line pole carrying electricity to the plant was sawed in two shortly after noon. This stopped the fans blowing fresh air into the mine tunnels and the miners were forced to come to the surface. Company officials said repairs could not be made until tomorrow.

Chandler Defends Action

Frankfort, Ky., May 16 (AP) — Gov. A. B. Chandler said today in a statement "I do not believe John L. Lewis or anybody else has the right to make" any person "join the CIO union or be deprived of a job."

Replying to Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, who had called Chandler a "madman" in a speech at Philadelphia last night, the Bluegrass Governor asserted:

"Lewis said he personally would take charge of Kentucky. The people of Kentucky do not want John L. Lewis to run the affairs of this state and they are not going to be bullied by him."

Chandler said the "sole issue" before Kentucky was "are you ready to surrender your right of citizenship to the dictatorship tactics of John L. Lewis? x x x I shall continue to fight any threat of the people of our state coming under control of such a man."

Referring to Lewis' critical remarks of his order dispatching troops into Harlan county during the coal mine controversy, the Governor said:

"The County Judge of Harlan county requested me to send troops to give all miners who wanted work and who did not desire to join the union a chance to work free of molestation.

"In the present controversy we are not trying to force men to go back to work but, if they want to work, the state of Kentucky can and will protect them from molestation from John L. Lewis or anyone else.

Louisville, Ky., May 16 (AP) — Alexander Jeffrey, president of the Kentucky State Federation of Labor, in a statement tonight, said the organization "condemns in no uncertain terms the action of our governor in restoring to the use of troops in the coal fields of our state, as it will, the action of any governor in such instances.

Roosevelt Announces "Hands Off" Policy

Washington, May 16 (AP)—A hands off policy was announced by President Roosevelt today in the dispute over Governor Chandler's order sending Kentucky National Guardsmen to the Harlan county coal field.

The president said at his press conference he had not yet received a protest from the United Mine Workers against use of the troops. He added in response to a question that the calling of guardsmen was primarily up to the Kentucky governor.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had no intention of intervening in the controversy.

Meanwhile the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation said it had shipped food to Harlan county for distribution among families on relief and that it was "probable" that some of the products went to miners involved in the labor dispute in the Harlan district.

Officials said the commodities were sent at the request of the Kentucky Emergency Relief Administration, an agency of the Kentucky Works Progress Administration.

Officials explained that determination of who should receive surplus commodities furnished by the FSCC was left up to state and local relief officials.

Enthusiasm Is Great

The two-day delay in the arrival of their majesties — originally scheduled for Monday but set back because the Empress was held up by fog in the North Atlantic ice fields—did nothing to dampen enthusiasm.

The great majority of visitors here for Monday stayed on, and other thousands poured in today by special train and automobile. Many motor cars had United States license plates.

Formal opening of the month-long visit of the King and Queen to Canada and the United States will be signalled by a 21-gun salute fired from the heights above the river as his Majesty steps on Canadian soil.

The Empress will weigh anchor in the morning at 7 A. M. (Eastern Daylight Time) (6 A. M., E.S.T.) and dock at Wolfe's Cove at 8:30 A. M. At 10:25 Prime Minister Mackenzie King will go aboard and five minutes later, with the guns booming, the Premier will escort the King and Queen ashore.

Federal, provincial and municipal officials will be presented to the Royal couple and the King will inspect a guard of honor in a 25-minute ceremony that will precede departure for the Quebec Parliament Building.

Leaving at 12:15 P. M., the King and Queen will then spend 30 minutes at the Citadel, summer residence of the Governor-General of Canada, Lord Tweedsmuir.

Then comes a luncheon given by the Dominion Government at the Chateau Frontenac, and an afternoon crowded with a demonstration by school children at Battlefields Park and a tea at Spencer Wood, residence of the Lieutenant Governor.

In the evening the King and Queen will leave for the Chateau Frontenac for a banquet given by the Quebec Government at which they will eat snowbirds, caught on the Island of Orleans, and drink rare vintage wines.

They are to spend the night at the Citadel, closing the Quebec trip with departure at 9:30 A. M., Thursday after a parade.

Edward Brown Dismissed As Guard at House of Correction

Baltimore, May 16 (AP) — State Employment Commissioner Harry C. Jones dismissed Edward Brown, a House of Correction guard, today after Brown failed to answer charges of neglect of duty.

Commissioner Jones said the guard asked for a hearing, which was set for yesterday, but failed to appear. The dismissal followed automatically.

Brown was charged specifically with continual tardiness in reporting for work.

Pennsylvania Legislature To Adjourn May 27

Leaders Decide To Concentrate on Four Major Subjects

Harrisburg, Pa., May 16 (AP)—Leaders of the Pennsylvania legislature decided today to concentrate on four major subjects, shelve all insignificant measures, and adjourn the 1939 session May 27.

The adjournment resolution was drafted for presentation to the house and senate.

Singled out for action in the final days were:

1—Relief revision as proposed in the Van Allsburg bill, passed by the house. It was sent to a subcommittee in the senate today for deletion of certain objectionable features. One senator said it would have been "killed" if brought up for a vote today. The bill would remove 5,000 unemployed relief workers from civil service.

2—Workmen's compensation. Five bills revising the schedule of payments to injured employees have been approved by the house and are before a senate committee.

3—Liquor control. The house sent the senate yesterday three bills to set up local licensing boards, reduce the number of hotel licenses, mark up the licenses fees and increase the size of the "dry zones" around churches and schools.

4—Appropriations. Many of the sums asked by the governor to operate the state government in the next two years have been sanctioned by the house and several dozen have been sent to the senate. This topic is the last major issue before the house.

Republicans are one vote short of the 26 needed to assure passage of legislation affecting these principal subjects. At times, two Democrats—William J. Eroe and Joseph P. Dando—have voted with them, however.

President Says Much of Nation's Savings Is in "Stagnant Pools"

of analyzing the financial machine in its relation to the creation of more needed wealth. We know that the mechanism can be improved. Improvement can only be made on a basis of clear analysis. Having made that analysis, I hope that your committee will then be able to indicate ways by which the machine may be made to function more efficiently.

Wants Wealth To Move

"The problem is to use our added savings and increased credit to get this wealth moving, that is, to get it now in productive enterprise; and, at the same time, to make savings available for use in all categories of private enterprise, as well as for the great and recognized enterprises which can command capital, but have less actual need of capital than many smaller but equally deserving enerprises.

"There is also the problem of determining how credit can best be made available for instrumentalities of local government and for those quasi-public enterprises which must do the work which cannot be done by private enterprises."

In commenting on the letter, O'Mahoney expressed the opinion that "big business," which he defined as business owned by one group and operated by another group, "has not suffered anthing like little business."

President Defends Purchase of Beef

Washington, May 16. (AP)—President Roosevelt defended the purchase of Argentine canned corned beef for the Navy again today with an assertion that the South American country the best cuts of beef are used for canning.

In the United States, he added, the best cuts are sold on the fresh meat market and other grades used for ground meat products. In the Argentine, on the other hand, he said, there is not a sufficient market to absorb the supply of best cuts, a surplus exists, and it goes into cans.

An order approved by the president for the purchase of 48,000 pounds of the South American product has aroused a storm of controversy in congress.

The president's statement today was made at a press conference.

At a previous conference he had defended the purchase as involving both a cheaper price and better beef.

Earlier in the day, Senator Capper (R-Kas) laid before the senate protests against the order by D. M. Hildebrand of Seward, Neb., President of the United States Livestock Association, and by Governor Payne Ratner of Kansas.

O'Conor Is Studying 236 Bills; Will Veto about Ten

Annapolis, May 16 (AP)—Gov. O'Conor tonight studied 236 legislative acts, last of the 778 signed by the legislature, which he has calendared for executive action tomorrow.

O'Conor said he would veto about ten measures and sign the rest. His action will "button up" the work of the 1939 legislature.

Only measure definitely ticketed for the gubernatorial ax is the Jones Bill, which would have ousted Harry C. Jones, State Employment Commissioner, from office.

FBI AGENT IS Asked To Help In Murder Case

Judge McDevitt Issue Warrants for Mrs. Carina and Rodio

Philadelphia, May 16 (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation stepped into the investigation of the east's insurance murder syndicate tonight with instructions from J. Edgar Hoover to give Philadelphia authorities "the very greatest co-operation possible within our jurisdiction."

Hoover's message was delivered tonight to Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt by Bernard Leckie, head of the Philadelphia FBI office.

The FBI was brought into the ever-widening case on personal appeal from Judge Harry S. McDevitt to Hoover, asking that the Federal Bureau's resources be used to capture a man and woman fugitive. Leckie tonight received warrants for their arrests.

Judge McDevitt said the warrants were for:

Mrs. Rose Carina, accused of participation in at least one poison death of the total that may reach 100. She had been called a "lure" for the ring.

Dominic Rodio, named as an accessory in the drowning of Joseph Arena at Sea Isle City, N. J.

Assistant District Attorney Vincent P. McDevitt charged Mrs. Carina kiled Peter Stea for insurance. He said Stea's body contained traces of two kinds of poison.

On another front of the far-reaching inquiry, Coroner Charles H. Hersch announced the bodies of two more men had been removed from graves to determine whether they had been slain.

Poison traces have ben discovered in at least six exhumed bodies.

Investigators contend more violent methods—fake accidents and even sluggings—were used in the ring's wholesale "slay-for-pay" business. The bodies dug up today were those of Antonio Giacobbe and Abraham Sherman. Their widows ar held.

Allner was first named in 19[illegible] O'Conor said the state health department recommended his retention on the board. The post is unsalaried.

Three Sisters Burn To Death in Maine

Fort Kent, Me., May 16. (AP) Three sisters, aged six, eight and [illegible] years, burned to death today as two other members of their family were seriously burned in a fire that destroyed their little home at New Canada, 11 miles from here.

The dead: Janet, six; Georgeanne, eight, and Solange, 11. The mother, Mrs. Eddie Dubois, 44, in critical condition after attempting to save them, and their sister Teresa, seven, were taken to a hospital at Eagle Lake.

Authorities reported the fire started when Wilson Dubois, 13, lighted a match to feed his three-year old brother in a second-floor bedroom. The older boy carried the child to safety.

The Blood (Its Diseases and Treatment: No. 1)

Great Advances Made In Study of "Organ"

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Forty years ago we thought we knew all about the blood, all but a few little things.

Then about 15 years ago a new field of research opened up. Today I believe there is more good research being done on the blood than in any other field of medicine.

At the meeting of the American College of Physicians in New Orleans in March, I noticed marked attention in the papers as well as in the exhibits to this subject.

The blood is the easiest of the internal "organs" to examine. And one has to consider the blood as an organ, or rather, a system. Suppose we could, without harm or pain to the individual, take out a part of the heart muscle and examine it under the microscope, or part of the kidneys, or the liver—think what an advantage we would have in knowing whether the organ is normal or not!

Do It with Blood

But we have always been able to do that with the blood—ever since we had microscopes, at least. Ever since, in fact, a thin little German professor, Vierdort, stuck a needle in his own finger, obtained a drop of blood and looked at it under the 'scope.

He saw three kinds of cells. The most numerous by far were the red cells. These are the oxygen carriers, the exchange or liason officers of the body's army.

They are, to make a brand-new, up-to-date simile, like the diplomatists who keep scurrying around Europe nowadays. One comes from France to England with some information, leaves it in England, gets some other (English) kind of information, and goes hurrying back to France to give it up there.

The red blood cells get some oxygen from the lungs, go scurrying to the liver with it, feed it to the liver cells, take in exchange some of the dirt (carbon dioxide) they have to get rid of, and go back to the lungs with it, giving it up to be exhaled in the breath.

Constant in Health

The red cells are remarkably constant in health in all sorts of individuals. In fact, we know the German professor was thin and little because he examined the blood of a number of robust peoples and saw a number of fat ladies, and he was astonished to find that the proportionate number of red cells in all was the same as his, in spite of the fact that he so thin "und mager (hungry-looking) bin."

The second type of cells which he saw were the white cells, which look like the unicellular animals, such as amoebae that are so beautifully pictured photographically in Professor Buckbaum's new book, Animals Without Backbone.

The third type of blood cell is the platelet. It has to do with the clotting of the blood.

Their Origin

It was wondered for a long time where these cells came from. They gorge the blood vessels, are lost in hemorrhage and die off, but still new ones come along to take their place. Whence do they come? It was finally determined that they came from the marrow of the bones. That is the manufacturing center for blood cells.

One of the new procedures which are the result of the research I mentioned is to take a piece of bone marrow out of a patient and examine it. It is a neat little optration that is practically painless and consists in sticking a hollow needle into the center of the breast bone. It may seem frightening but it yields great and new funds of information for the diagnosis and treatment of these conditions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. H.: "Almost every night after going to sleep I lay in bed and the perspiration just pours out of me. Doctors tell me that they are the night sweats. I do not cough or spit."

Answer—Night sweats occur in tuberculosis and in any kind of infection. They are also caused by an upset nervous system due to excessive use of alcohol or emotional strain. In any case, I think a physicial examination by a doctor is in order.

Asks Federal Aid in Building Flood Walls

Point Pleasant, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—A group of citizens backing a proposed flood wall for this Ohio river town circulated a petition today asking the federal government to help for right-of-way costs in the event it is shown the city cannot put up sufficient funds.

The petition came after a public hearing at which various persons opposed the method proposed to pay for right of way costs.

Board of Education Fight In Summers Will Go To Supreme Court

Hinton, W. Va., May 16 (AP) — One phase of impeachment proceedings against Summers county school officials was started toward the Supreme court today after Judge Mark L. Jarrett removed Miss Margaret Nicely from the list of defendants.

Miss Nicely, county superintendent, was named with the five members of the Summers county school board in ouster proceedings instituted by the county court.

Judge Jarrett in sustaining a demurrer held Miss Nicely could not be regarded as a county official and could be removed only by the board of education itself.

John T. Simms, attorney for the county court, announced the pleading in the demurrer would be submitted to the Supreme court for review. In the meantime, a scheduled hearing in the case, originally set for May 22, will be postponed indefinitely.

Impeachment Petition Against Billups Dropped

Beckley, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—An impeachment petition against Frank Billups, Raleigh county school board members, was dismissed today by Circuit Judge E. B. Pennybacker.

The dismissal came after Ashton File, Billups' counsel, said five citizens who had signed the petition withdrew their names.

George Williams, counsel for the complainants, said a new petition would be filed.

Billups was charged specifically with taking a bribe from County Superintendent E. Van Dorsey.

Common Sense About Constipation
A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with constipation is get at its cause. That way you don't have to endure it first and try to cure it afterward—you can avoid having it.
Chances are you won't have to look far for the cause if you eat the super-refined foods most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk"! And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines.
If this is what you lack, try crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast. It contains just the "bulk" you need.
Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and "Join the Regulars." Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Penny Parking

FROSTBURG is going in for parking meters and has installed a type that will afford parkers a penny's worth of parking time as well as a nickel's worth and a dime's worth.

For a penny one will get a twelve minutes' parking privilege. The nickel will provide an hour's time and two nickels will allow two hours.

Cumberland may watch with interest the financial yield of this form of meter, and if it proves relatively more profitable and gives an added public convenience, or both, it may serve as a guide for future added installations here at least, and possibly suggest alteration of those now in use.

The panny meters are coming into favor in a growing number of cities, according to a report coming to hand from the American Municipal Association. Complaints by motorists in many cities that they must pay for a full hour's parking privilege when they park for only a few minutes have led many of the cities to install the penny meters.

In some places the penny parking is allowed for one, two, three and four pennies, twelve minutes being allowed for each penny. Such a machine has just been installed in Salt Lake City, where 2,000 of them are in use in the business district. One nickel will buy an hour's time and if the motorist wants to shop for more than an hour, or attend a movie, two nickels may be inserted in the meter.

Other cities lately using the penny-nickel devices are Auburn, N. Y., and Fredericksburg and Lynchburg, Va. They are also now in use in Atlantic City, N. J., where the old style nickel meters have been altered to provide penny parking.

The Beef Blunder

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT continued to use his peculiar brand of arithmetic with respect to the Argentine canned beef he ordered the navy to purchase.

The president told newspapermen at his last press conference that he had been impressed both with the superiority of Argentine canned beef and with the fact that its price was fifteen cents a pound, including a six-cent tariff, compared with about twenty-three cents for the domestic product.

The navy would pay the tariff but it would be covered into the United States treasury, the president explained, so there would be no tariff expense. But the president stopped his arithmetic at that point, just as he is wont to do with a lot of other calculations. He failed to include as a factor the displacement of American labor at higher wages than is paid in Argentine, the return to the United States treasury of the taxes paid all along the line in the raising, sale, slaughtering, canning and marketing of American beef products, and the need for stimulating domestic business as an aid in the recovery movement.

If the tariff tax is considered on the one hand, certainly there is logical reason to consider the taxes paid into the federal treasury on the other hand. But, as in the case of his other tax planning, the president simply fails to look beyond his nose.

The president's opinion about the alleged superiority of the Argentine beef does not seem to fit in very well with the ban long placed on that product by reason of the fear that it is not free from hoof and mouth disease contamination.

It is no wonder that criticism of the president's order is finding voice in Congress nor that a resolution has been introduced calling for an inquiry into this prospective navy department purchase. It is pertinent to learn whether the "Buy American" act would be violated. It is of interest to note that this criticism comes from Democratic as well as Republican members of Congress.

Some of the criticism is rather pointed. As Senator Adams, Democrat of Colorado, said, every pound of Argentine beef sold in this country "reduces the demand for the domestic product just that much"; and as Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming, says, the American navy should not be used for the purpose of "supporting Argentine jobs." These senators are from cattle raising states and there is another factor in the case the president appeared to have entirely overlooked despite the fact, as reported by Mark Sullivan, the statement about the beef business was not an offhand, impulsive, casual remark, but apparently had been well studied in advance.

This beef blunder can be added to the long list of blunders already debited to presidential management.

More Women Jurors

ENACTMENT by the Illinois and Montana legislatures of laws granting women the right to serve on juries brings to twenty-five the number of states which have taken this action, the Council of State Governments reports. Upon signature of the governor, the Illinois law becomes effective July 1. Montana's law goes into effect January 1, 1940.

To enact the new law, Illinois legislators had only to insert three words—"of both sexes"—into the present jury law. Although this statute merely says that jurors shall be chosen from voters, the state supreme court in 1925 held that it meant only men voters.

Opposition to the proposal—which won final approval in the house, 100 to 15—was based in part on grounds that local governments could not afford the expense of providing extra quarters for women jurors. Other arguments against the bill were that women were emotional, and were lacking in logical judgment.

Illinois, in approving the proposal, becomes the thirteenth state to make jury service compulsory for women as well as for men. The other states are California, Connecticut, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Women are permitted to serve on juries, but may decline under certain exemptions, in twelve states. Including Montana, they are: Arkansas, Delaware, Kansas, Louisiana, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin, and in Alaska and the District of Columbia.

Women-on-jury proposals were sponsored during 1939 sessions in several state legislatures. One passed the Maryland House of Delegates but was killed in the Senate. A similar bill is before the Massachusetts legislature. In Texas the Senate killed a proposed constitutional amendment to permit women jurors, while in Vermont a bill was defeated when several women legislators argued their sex was not prepared for jury duty.

Michigan, in 1915, became the first state to grant women the right to serve on juries, and Maine and Utah followed soon after. The action by Illinois was the first since 1937, and the third by any state since 1927.

At Last, but What?

AFTER long, weary, desolate and disheartening months representing a delay for which there has been no sensible excuse, a bill revising the strangulating taxes on corporations will be introduced in Congress and pressed to a vote, according to late advices from the national capital.

But there is a lamentable drawback about it. The measure must yield approximately as much revenue as do current taxes. That is to say, for every rate that is repealed, a substitute must be found. Business is to be appeased by withholding a staggering slap on one jaw and administering an equally stunning blow on the other. Yes, Business and Industry, big things are going to be done for you. You are to be helped half way up the stairs and then kicked back down again. You should appreciate this kindly consideration and take heart. The world is a fine place in which to live after all.

Why must there be an even-Steven offset for burdensome taxes instead of an actual lightening of the load? There is one answer aside from the necessity of carefully refraining from allowing the president to eat his own unhappy words about taxation methods. It is that, in the present deplorable and alarming condition into which the nation's finances have dropped, taxes just can't be whittled down.

That is to say, those in charge are so fearful of what might happen if the tax yield should drop further they do not dare let it drop. The present level is to be taken care of by President Roosevelt's plan to get the national income up to eighty billions, even though plain arithemetic doesn't gibe with it. Pushing up the income is predicated on the wholesale spending theory. It is a pity the fact cannot be sufficiently impressed somewhere that giving business and industry a chance to do the spending, instead of the government, that the resulting increase would produce still more taxes. Business and industry would get that chance through a tax revision that would lighten the load.

Exasperating

IF there is anything more exasperating than to step into a wad of discarded chewing gum as one walks along the street, it would be interesting to know what it is. The stuff isn't easy to get off one's shoe.

One wonders why there can be such carelessness, such disregard for the rights of others. But we have a large number of happy-go-lucky, care-free, heedless persons. They are the ones who eat bananas along the way and drop the peelings on the sidewalk, who throw trash there, who spit whenever and wherever they feel like it and who commit other petty nuisances regardless.

It is probably enough to say that good manners and bad manners speak for themselves.

Noted surgeons believes an operation may cure baldness. Of course, if it doesn't work a fellow must go through life wearing an unsolved crossword puzzle instead of hair.

Now that the world's fair is on full blast, to New Yorkers their city seems to be bound on the east by the Atlantic ocean and on the south, west and north by relatives.

An Illinois politician passed out 16,930 candy bars to children. Such foresight—going after the 1952 vote already!

To the fellow who doesn't have to pay taxes the national debt is just nine zeros hitch-hiking on a small number.

Just a List of Words

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Here's a list of words. If you read them over, pausing for five seconds at each word and reflecting on your reaction to each of them . . . you will discover something about yourself.

Marshall Maslin

Because words are odd things. When you see them they stir something in you—anger you, please you, excite you, leave you cold. . . . They stand for what you hate or what you love. . . . And the sum of all these words, whatever it may be, is a mirror of your own personality, known only to you. . . . The sum of these words will show you not what you say or what you do, but how you feel about life today. . . . Here's that list I have made up:

Chamberlain	The Future	Czecho-Slovakia
Relief	Robert Taylor	Third Term
Harry Hopkins	Vacation	Myrna Loy
Taxes	Change	Happiness
The Constitution	Shirley Temple	The Movies
Auto accidents	Sleep	France
Stalin	Home	Cancer
Divorce	Babies	Supreme Court
Joe Louis	The Sweepstakes	Hitler

Did any of those words stir any feeling in you? The mere writing of them made my blood pressure fluctuate—did they do that to you?

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

A few years ago on a week-end up the river we were talking, after dinner, about iron-clad battleships and how they started. So far as we knew, the battle between the Monitor and Merrimac at Hampton Roads was the first engagement between ships so armored.

Edwin C. Hill

Later that evening, the Korean houseboy asked me, with great deference and many apologies, if he might have a word with me. He explained that his country had made the first "great ship of iron to go in fight," and that it had overwhelmed all the ships the Japanese could bring against it. What with the boy's quaint English and with my mind on other matters, I didn't follow the story closely, but it seemed that all this happened "so long ago I almost forgot."

I was mildly amused and wondered where the lad got his idea. But it was Gospel truth. Several years later, I ran it down in the history books. Early in the Sixteenth century, the Koreans made a huge, eight-decked ironclad battleship which pinned back the ears of the Japanese as nothing ever did before or since.

The vessel was built like a tortoise, with the creature's rearing head fanged, pop-eyed and bristling—a truly ferocious monster, as the old prints show it. They put a chimney in it, through the turtle's neck, stoked up a fire in the hold, and as it bore down on the Japanese fleet of Admiral Hideyoshi in Chinhai Bay, there was a horrendous belch of flame and smoke from the turtle's mouth. It was a quick, clean-cut victory for the Koreans, and the Japanese didn't bother them for a long time after that.

Old Turtle Pads Along

The Japanese hare has far outrun the Korean tortoise, but the old turtle is still padding along after just 4,272 years of recorded history, and just now it is belching smoke and beginning to look tough again—even if it is tethered by the Japanese.

Of the 23,000,000 Koreans, it has been estimated that about 5,000,000 are scattered throughout the world, organizing, agitating and proselyting for the liberation of their country, snatched by Japan in 1910. They have an insatiable yen for education, as the first article of their revolutionary faith is that only by knowledge can they free their homeland.

The Ivy League, colleges, as well as a score or more of colleges throughout the country, have been running through an increasing number of Koreans in the last few years—Columbia well up in the lead.

Pu Jogam, who was graduated from Occidental College in 1924, is supposed to be the world leader of their movement. I believe he also American University at Washington took a post-graduate degree at the —although it is not certain that the above is his real name. Hazards of their cause make it expedient at times for these Korean boys to take any name which may pop into their head.

Done With Smiles

In Washington the other day, Dr. Syngman Rhee, the first president of the Korean republican, established the headquarters of Korean Nationalist Mission, the avowed purpose of which is to jerk Korea back from the rule of Japan.

An envoy from the Japanese embassy arrived to make polite inquiries about Dr. Rhee's plans. He replied, also politely, that his plan was to give the boot to Japan with any and all opportunities, until his people were "no longer enslaved." They both bowed and the smiling visitor departed.

Such encounters between Japan and Korea have been taking place for about 2,000 years. Dr. Rhee, sentenced to execution, but, instead, jailed for seven years, picked up a Princeton Ph. D. and a Harvard master of arts after he escaped, first to Honolulu and then to the mainland.

In an unsuccessful Korean revolt of 1919 he was chosen president—and he says that is just what he still is.

He was a friend of Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and William Howard Taft. He has been fighting for Korean freedom for forty-five years and says he is just getting a fast, running start. Faith in freedom is a durable plant and dies hard—and that goes for the rest of the world where this ancient growth undergoes considerable hacking and gouging. Incidentally, that first ironclad battleship which licked the Japanese was invented by a great inventor named Yi Soon Sin.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Throttling Enterprise

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

In an ably reasoned essay in the Atlantic Monthly, Sumner H. Slichter discusses "The Great American Experiment." At the end, he sums up his views in these words:

"The spirit of enterprise is more than an economic force; it is the very basis of free democratic institutions. Only so long as opportunity is abundant is social conflict mild, and only when social conflict is mild are men willing to settle their differences by voting, by negotiating or by arbitrating rather than by fighting. The basis for opportunity is expansion. Upon the willingness and ability of democracies to encourage investment will depend their ability to keep opportunity abundant and, therefore, to preserve the free institutions which are the first casualties of severe social conflict."

There is a vastly important, and often overlooked, historical truth here, an dits meaning is plain.

It is a tragic commentary on our confused times that the American people, who have expressed the strongest dislike and distrust of the European totalitarian states, have unconsciously permitted the totalitarian gospel, under a variety of names, to make ominous advances here. More and more has the government stepped into our economic life. Less and less have been the opportunities for expansion by individuals or businesses. One by one old liberties have been abrogated.

THE GROWING BEANSTALK

Legislators Fearful, President Sullen Over Revision of Deterrent Taxation

BY MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, May 16.—President Roosevelt and his Treasury aides have at last got together with the Democratic leaders in Congress on the subject of tax revision. The "getting together", so far, is physical—they met in the same room. Whether there is a getting together in thought we will not know until we see what happens in Congress.

Mark Sullivan

This laest incident is the climax in a strange series. It began February 23. First move came from Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury. He publicly suggested that Congress "take a careful look at the tax laws to see if there are any deterrents holding the business man back."

At once came accent from the Democratic leaders in Congress who have charge of tax matters, Chairman Doughton, and the House Ways and Means committee, and Chairman Harrison, of the Senate Finance committee. Pointedly they repeated Secretary Morgenthau's word, "deterrents". They jointly wrote a letter to Secretary Margenthau in which they asked him to give them "the views and recommenrations of the Treary department relating to any provisions of the tax laws which in your judgment, act as a deterrent to outsiders,"

Buck Is Passed

There ensued, between the Democratic leaders in Congress and Mr. Morgenthau and other officials of the administration, a series of gestures of the sort which American slang calls "passing the buck," and which the polite French describe as "After you, Alphonse—no no, after you, my dear Gaston." Both were willing, but each wanted the other to take the lead and the responsibility.

In effect the leaders in Congress said to Mr. Morgenthau and the administration: "You make the recommendation—tell us what taxes should be changed." In effect Mr. Morgenthau and the administration replied: "You start it and we'll give you any information you need."

One gathered that Mr. Morgenthau and others in the administration would be perfectly willing to make the recommendation—it is quite in accord with custom for the Treasury to do this. One gathered, indeed, that Mr. Morgantheau, and others in the administration, were very earnest in wishing the changes, that they know just what changes ought to be made, that they believed the changes were headed for business recovery, and that they were earnest and anxious about helping recovery.

Afraid To Step Out

But one garnered that Mr. Morgenthau and the others in the administration were a little fearful about stepping out in front. They seemed to fear President Roosevelt might not like it. Mr. Morgenthau had a manner of holding his hands over his ears, lest they be slapped down. Key man in the situation was President Roosevelt. His attitude seemed to be one of sullen coyness. One gathered that he felt the changes ought to be made, that he was, in a not very excited way, concerned about business recovery, but that he wanted the Remocratis leaders in Congress to propose the changesand take the responsibility.

As the situation developed and pressure for revision became acute, Mr. Roosevelt became more resistant. He brought forward objections. He got to the point, last week of saying, in a press conference, that there is no such thing as a "deterrent tax"—that no one tax is more deterrent than any other. On this point Mr. Roosevelt ought to consult his Treasury officials. I think it was the Treasury that first used the term "deterrent tax"—certainly Mr. Morthenthau used it on February 23d. An equivalent term, "friction taxes" also come of of the Treasury. Anyhow,, expert opinion is just about unanimous that certain taxes put brakes an business. These taxes deter business as business would not be deterred by taking the same amount of money through ordinary taxes.

A Bit of History

Back of the whole situation, is a bit of history. A year ago,, the Democratic leaders in Congress put through a partial tax revision, which somewhat reduced two of the taxes now in discussion, the capital gains tax and the undistributed surplus tax. This Mr. Roosevelt did not like. He refused to sign the ball, letting it become law by passage of the statutory ten days—the first and only time Mr. Roosevelt has taken this course. He made a speech condemning the reduction in these two taxes.

This, in turn, irritated the Democratic leaders in Congress. Senator Harrison publicly "talked back" at the president.

From that incident some of the present situation arises. If Mr. Roosevelt were now to initiate and take responsibility for further reducing these two and other deterrent taxes he would seem to be going back on what he strongly said a year ago. At the same time there is, perhaps, on the part of the Democratic leaders in congress, a little harmless malice. If they can so maneuver as to make Mr. Roosevelt or his secretary of the treasury take responsibility for initiating the tax reductions, they will be making the president eat his words a year ago. And Mr. Roosevelt is not a man to swallow gracefully a meal of his own words. Further, these taxes, or resistance to reducing these taxes, has considerable demagogue value. The taxes come largely from rich individuals anr corporations, but have a powerful effect in deterring all business, big and little, and all employment.

Penny Wise and Pound Foolish

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Secretary Morgenthau, who is the only genuine "business appeaser" in the Roosevelt cabinet, has not given up hope that Congress may at this session modify taxes that are deterring business. That was the gist of his talk with reporters, in which he said that he still intends to testify before the House Ways and Means committee next week on tax changes.

The trouble is that Mr. Morgenthau is less influential in this administration than Harry Hopkins and the ever-present battery of "bright young men." More important, Morganthau's sound ideas about taxation are repeated by the President's well known policy: there must be no tax changes which would reduce the Federal Government's revenue.

This is the policy of "penny wise, pound foolish" as applied to taxation. It is a policy of squeezing all the revenue you can out of today's income regardless of the effect upon the income of tomorrow. Practically all tax experts outside the New Deal agree that some forms of corporation and income taxation are now crippling business. Most businessmen know this is true from bitter experience. Both groups agree that if needed tax reforms were made, the federal income would in all probability increase within the near future. But how prove this to a government official whose vision extends only to the end of his nose?

Not long ago the impartial Brookings Institution issued a report on taxation. Following an exhaustive survey of their effects, the report recommended repeal or drastic revision of the taxes on inter-corporate dividends, excessively high surtax rates on income, the tax on undivided profits, the capital stock and excess profits levies. The author of the report, James D. Magee of New York university, admitted that repeal of these levies might temporarily reduce federal income. But he expressed confidence that increased revenue from increased business would quickly offset any temporary loss—while jobless men would be put back to work.

This is simple common sense, whose truth has been confirmed by the experience of every government which has reached the point of diminishing returns in taxation. The president's yardstick of tax revision is narrow, short-sighted and oblivious of experience. And it is quite obviously not working.

Johnson OK's Coal Transfer

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C., May 16—The president's transfer of administration of the Guffey act from the Bituminous Coal Commission to the Interior Department is 100 per cent right. That this stricken industry can be put into a position to earn reasonable profits and afford reasonable employment and compensation was proved beyond peradventure of doubt by the coal code. That went into effect within sixty days after the problem was tackled and in a situation which, nine months earlier, had been the most chaotic and hopeless in our economy.

HUGH JOHNSON

The Bituminous Coal Commission has been so ridden by politics and incompetency that, with much clearer powers, it has never been able to reproduce a similar result along a well-charted path.

Honest Harold Ickes and the writer have had their very vocal public differences notwithstanding a genuine private personal mutual respect, perhaps approaching affectionate regard. I don't want to appear to be reneging on any stand I have taken in this too much publicized feud, but I owe it to candor and fairness to say that I think he is eh best pulic administrator for this kind of system that could be selected.

Better Equipped

I negotiated the petroleum code but he administered it. His department was much better equipped for that kind of job than anything we had in NRA. I asked him to take over the administration of the coal code also. But he was too canny. The Bureau of Mines is one of the best technical organizations in all government. It just wasn't good sense not to put that problem there at the outset.

Honest Harold is supposed to be my business and intimate of dragons and a companion of ogres. From my observations, he is the most practical administrator in the whole New Deal. I think the petroleum industry will bear that out and I believe that the coal industry will find it so.

Sees Ghosts

Surely he is suspicious. He sees in corners ghosts of gents with little black bags who formerly haunted those halls. But Harold understands the two-three-fours of business. He won't go to sleep with his thumb in anybody's mouth. But he doesn't expect bricks to be made without straw. If I were in the coal business I would be willing to try my case with him, especially in view of the proved efficiency of the Bureau of Mines.

Except for the code period and a short time during the British coal strike, that industry on the average hasn't made any profits since the World war. Approximately 400,000 miners, breadwinners for 1,500,000 people, are peculiarly dependent on this business for support. Furthermore, it is an industry that simply must be preserved. It is our essential reserve for fuel, solid and liquid, after our petroleums is exhausted.

Requires Support

Its present situation in competition with gas, oil and hydro-electric power is one that absolutely requires artificial support from the government, even to the extent of outright price-fixing and an unusual degree of cooperation among capital, labor and government.

Critics of John Lewis can find plenty of pegs on which to hang an argument in other activities than C.I.O., but an honest appraisal will find few in his conduct of labor relations in coal mining. Most honest coal operators will concede that he has done more to keep that industry on a liveable basis than any mine owner in the business.

The president's intervention in the recent coal labor negotiations reveals him at his best. He knows that industry better than any other. His action was in no sense political and it is unfair to suggest that it was taken in favor of one side or the other of the feud between the A. F. of L. and the C.I.O. It was absolutely necessary in the national interest. — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Penny Parking

FROSTBURG is going in for parking meters and has installed a type that will afford parkers a penny's worth of parking time as well as a nickel's worth and a dime's worth.

For a penny one will get a twelve minutes' parking privilege. The nickel will provide an hour's time and two nickels will allow two hours.

Cumberland may watch with interest the financial yield of this form of meter, and if it proves relatively more profitable and gives an added public convenience, or both, it may serve as a guide for future added installations here at least, and possibly suggest alteration of those now in use.

The panny meters are coming into favor in a growing number of cities, according to a report coming to hand from the American Municipal Association. Complaints by motorists in many cities that they must pay for a full hour's parking privilege when they park for only a few minutes have led many of the cities to install the penny meters.

In some places the penny parking is allowed for one, two, three and four pennies, twelve minutes being allowed for each penny. Such a machine has just been installed in Salt Lake City, where 2,000 of them are in use in the business district. One nickel will buy an hour's time and if the motorist wants to shop for more than an hour, or attend a movie, two nickels may be inserted in the meter.

Other cities lately using the penny-nickel devices are Auburn, N. Y., and Fredericksburg and Lynchburg, Va. They are also now in use in Atlantic City, N. J., where the old style nickel meters have been altered to provide penny parking.

The Beef Blunder

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT continued to use his peculiar brand of arithmetic with respect to the Argentine canned beef he ordered the navy to purchase.

The president told newspapermen at his last press conference that he had been impressed both with the superiority of Argentine canned beef and with the fact that its price was fifteen cents a pound, including a six-cent tariff, compared with about twenty-three cents for the domestic product.

The navy would pay the tariff but it would be covered into the United States treasury, the president explained, so there would be no tariff expense. But the president stopped his arithmetic at that point, just as he is wont to do with a lot of other calculations. He failed to include as a factor the displacement of American labor at higher wages than is paid in Argentine, the return to the United States treasury of the taxes paid all along the line in the raising, sale, slaughtering, canning and marketing of American beef products, and the need for stimulating domestic business as an aid in the recovery movement.

If the tariff tax is considered on the one hand, certainly there is logical reason to consider the taxes paid into the federal treasury on the other hand. But, as in the case of his other tax planning, the president simply fails to look beyond his nose.

The president's opinion about the alleged superiority of the Argentine beef does not seem to fit in very well with the ban long placed on that product by reason of the fear that it is not free from hoof and mouth disease contamination.

It is no wonder that criticism of the president's order is finding voice in Congress nor that a resolution has been introduced calling for an inquiry into this prospective navy department purchase. It is pertinent to learn whether the "Buy American" act would be violated. It is of interest to note that this criticism comes from Democratic as well as Republican members of Congress.

Some of the criticism is rather pointed. As Senator Adams, Democrat of Colorado, said, every pound of Argentine beef sold in this country "reduces the demand for the domestic product just that much"; and as Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming, says, the American navy should not be used for the purpose of "supporting Argentine jobs." These senators are from cattle raising states and there is another factor in the case the president appeared to have entirely overlooked despite the fact, as reported by Mark Sullivan, the statement about the beef business was not an offhand, impulsive, casual remark, but apparently had been well studied in advance.

This beef blunder can be added to the long list of blunders already debited to presidential management.

More Women Jurors

ENACTMENT by the Illinois and Montana legislatures of laws granting women the right to serve on juries brings to twenty-five the number of states which have taken this action, the Council of State Governments reports. Upon signature of the governor, the Illinois law becomes effective July 1. Montana's law goes into effect January 1, 1940.

To enact the new law, Illinois legislators had only to insert three words—"of both sexes"—into the present jury law. Although this statute merely says that jurors shall be chosen from voters, the state supreme court in 1925 held that it meant only men voters.

Opposition to the proposal—which won final approval in the house, 100 to 15—was based in part on grounds that local governments could not afford the expense of providing extra quarters for women jurors. Other arguments against the bill were that women were emotional, and were lacking in logical judgment.

Illinois, in approving the proposal, becomes the thirteenth state to make jury service compulsory for women as well as for men. The other states are California, Connecticut, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Women are permitted to serve on juries, but may decline under certain exemptions, in twelve states. Including Montana, they are: Arkansas, Delaware, Kansas, Louisiana, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin, and in Alaska and the District of Columbia.

Women-on-jury proposals were sponsored during 1939 sessions in several state legislatures. One passed the Maryland House of Delegates but was killed in the Senate. A similar bill is before the Massachusetts legislature. In Texas the Senate killed a proposed constitutional amendment to permit women jurors, while in Vermont a bill was defeated when several women legislators argued their sex was not prepared for jury duty.

Michigan, in 1915, became the first state to grant women the right to serve on juries, and Maine and Utah followed soon after. The action by Illinois was the first since 1937, and the third by any state since 1927.

At Last, but What?

AFTER long, weary, desolate and disheartening months representing a delay for which there has been no sensible excuse, a bill revising the strangulating taxes on corporations will be introduced in Congress and pressed to a vote, according to late advices from the national capital.

But there is a lamentable drawback about it. The measure must yield approximately as much revenue as do current taxes. That is to say, for every rate that is repealed, a substitute must be found. Business is to be appeased by withholding a staggering slap on one jaw and administering an equally stunning blow on the other. Yes, Business and Industry, big things are going to be done for you. You are to be helped half way up the stairs and then kicked back down again. You should appreciate this kindly consideration and take heart. The world is a fine place in which to live after all.

Why must there be an even-Steven offset for burdensome taxes instead of an actual lightening of the load? There is one answer aside from the necessity of carefully refraining from allowing the president to eat his own unhappy words about taxation methods. It is that, in the present deplorable and alarming condition into which the nation's finances have dropped, taxes just can't be whittled down.

That is to say, those in charge are so fearful of what might happen if the tax yield should drop further they do not dare let it drop. The present level is to be taken care of by President Roosevelt's plan to get the national income up to eighty billions, even though plain arithemetic doesn't gibe with it. Pushing up the income is predicated on the wholesale spending theory. It is a pity the fact cannot be sufficiently impressed somewhere that giving business and industry a chance to do the spending, instead of the government, that the resulting increase would produce still more taxes. Business and industry would get that chance through a tax revision that would lighten the load.

Exasperating

IF there is anything more exasperating than to step into a wad of discarded chewing gum as one walks along the street, it would be interesting to know what it is. The stuff isn't easy to get off one's shoe.

One wonders why there can be such carelessness, such disregard for the rights of others. But we have a large number of happy-go-lucky, care-free, heedless persons. They are the ones who eat bananas along the way and drop the peelings on the sidewalk, who throw trash there, who spit whenever and wherever they feel like it and who commit other petty nuisances regardless.

It is probably enough to say that good manners and bad manners speak for themselves.

Noted surgeons believes an operation may cure baldness. Of course, if it doesn't work a fellow must go through life wearing an unsolved crossword puzzle instead of hair.

Now that the world's fair is on full blast, to New Yorkers their city seems to be bound on the east by the Atlantic ocean and on the south, west and north by relatives.

An Illinois politician passed out 16,930 candy bars to children. Such foresight—going after the 1952 vote already!

To the fellow who doesn't have to pay taxes the national debt is just nine zeros hitch-hiking on a small number.

Just a List of Words

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Here's a list of words. If you read them over, pausing for five seconds at each word and reflecting on your reaction to each of them . . . you will discover something about yourself.

Marshall Maslin

Because words are odd things. When you see them they stir something in you—anger you, please you, excite you, leave you cold. . . . They stand for what you hate or what you love. . . . And the sum of all these words, whatever it may be, is a mirror of your own personality, known only to you. . . . The sum of these words will show you not what you say or what you do, but how you feel about life today. . . . Here's that list I have made up:

Chamberlain	The Future	Czecho-Slovakia
Relief	Robert Taylor	Third Term
Harry Hopkins	Vacation	Myrna Loy
Taxes	Change	Happiness
The Constitution	Shirley Temple	The Movies
Auto accidents	Sleep	France
Stalin	Home	Cancer
Divorce	Babies	Supreme Court
Joe Louis	The Sweepstakes	Hitler
Mussolini	Debts	Inflation
Communism	Love	The Law
Marriage	The President	Success
G-Men	Safety	Fun
Lindberg	The Past	Old Age
Hunger	War	Propaganda
Cost of Living	Drought	Adventure
Martin Dies	Youth	Religion
Mrs. Roosevelt	Duke of Windsor	Failure
Politics	Labor Unions	Capitalism

Did any of those words stir any feeling in you? The mere writing of them made my blood pressure fluctuate—did they do that to you?

The Human Side Of the News

Edwin C. Hill

A few years ago on a week-end up the river we were talking, after dinner, about iron-clad battleships and how they started. So far as we knew, the battle between the Monitor and Merrimac at Hampton Roads was the first engagement between ships so armored. Later that evening, the Korean houseboy asked me, with great deference and many apologies, if he might have a word with me. He explained that his country had made the first "great ship of iron to go in fight," and that it had overwhelmed all the ships the Japanese could bring against it. What with the boy's quaint English and with my mind on other matters, I didn't follow the story closely, but it seemed that all this happened "so long ago I almost forgot."

I was mildly amused and wondered where the lad got his idea. But it was Gospel truth. Several years later, I ran it down in the history books. Early in the Sixteenth century, the Koreans made a huge, eight-decked ironclad battleship which pinned back the ears of the Japanese as nothing ever did before or since.

The vessel was built like a tortoise, with the creature's rearing head fanged, pop-eyed and bristling—a truly ferocious monster, as the old prints show it. They put a chimney in it, through the turtle's neck, stoked up a fire in the hold, and as it bore down on the Japanese fleet of Admiral Hideyoshi in Chinhai Bay, there was a horrendous belch of flame and smoke from the turtle's mouth. It was a quick, clean-cut victory for the Koreans, and the Japanese didn't bother them for a long time after that.

Old Turtle Pads Along

The Japanese hare has far outrun the Korean tortoise, but the old turtle is still padding along after just 4,272 years of recorded history, and just now it is belching smoke and beginning to look tough again—even if it is tethered by the Japanese.

Of the 23,000,000 Koreans, it has been estimated that about 5,000,000 are scattered throughout the world, organizing, agitating and proselyting for the liberation of their country, snatched by Japan in 1910. They have an insatiable yen for education, as the first article of their revolutionary faith is that only by knowledge can they free their homeland.

The Ivy League, colleges, as well as a score or more of colleges throughout the country, have been running through an increasing number of Koreans in the last few years—Columbia well up in the lead.

Pu Jogam, who was graduated from Occidental College in 1924, is supposed to be the world leader of their movement. I believe he also American University at Washington took a post-graduate degree at the —although it is not certain that the above is his real name. Hazards of their cause make it expedient at times for these Korean boys to take any name which may pop into their head.

Done With Smiles

In Washington the other day, Dr. Syngman Rhee, the first president of the Korean republican, established the headquarters of Korean Nationalist Mission, the avowed purpose of which is to jerk Korea back from the rule of Japan.

An envoy from the Japanese embassy arrived to make polite inquiries about Dr. Rhee's plans. He replied, also politely, that his plan was to give the boot to Japan with any and all opportunities, until his people were "no longer enslaved." They both bowed and the smiling visitor departed.

Such encounters between Japan and Korea have been taking place for about 2,000 years. Dr. Rhee, sentenced to execution, but, instead, jailed for seven years, picked up a Princeton Ph. D. and a Harvard master of arts after he escaped, first to Honolulu and then to the mainland.

In an unsuccessful Korean revolt of 1919 he was chosen president—and he says that is just what he still is.

He was a friend of Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson and William Howard Taft. He has been fighting for Korean freedom for forty-five years and says he is just getting a fast, running start. Faith in freedom is a durable plant and dies hard—and that goes for the rest of the world where this ancient growth undergoes considerable hacking and gouging. Incidentally, that first ironclad battleship which licked the Japanese was invented by a great inventor named Yi Soon Sin.—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Throttling Enterprise

From the Johnstown, Pa., Tribune

In an ably reasoned essay in the Atlantic Monthly, Sumner H. Slichter discusses "The Great American Experiment." At the end, he sums up his views in these words:

"The spirit of enterprise is more than an economic force; it is the very basis of free democratic institutions. Only so long as opportunity is abundant is social conflict mild, and only when social conflict is mild are men willing to settle their differences by voting, by negotiating or by arbitrating rather than by fighting. The basis for opportunity is expansion. Upon the willingness and ability of democracies to encourage investment will depend their ability to keep opportunity abundant and, therefore, to preserve the free institutions which are the first casualties of severe social conflict."

There is a vastly important, and often overlooked, historical truth here, an dits meaning is plain.

It is a tragic commentary on our confused times that the American people, who have expressed the strongest dislike and distrust of the European totalitarian states, have unconsciously permitted the totalitarian gospel, under a variety of names, to make ominous advances here. More and more has the government stepped into our economic life. Less and less have been the opportunities for expansion by individuals or businesses. One by one old liberties have been abrogated.

From the Cincinnati Times-Star

Secretary Morgenthau, who is the only genuine "business appeaser" in the Roosevelt cabinet, has not given up hope that Congress may at this session modify taxes that are deterring business. That was the gist of his talk with reporters, in which he said that he still intends to testify before the House Ways and Means committee next week on tax changes.

The trouble is that Mr. Morgenthau is less influential in this administration than Harry Hopkins and the ever-present battery of "bright young men." More important, Morganthau's sound ideas about taxation are repeated by the President's well known policy: there must be no tax changes which would reduce the Federal Government's revenue.

This is the policy of "penny wise, pound foolish" as applied to taxation. It is a policy of squeezing all the revenue you can out of today's income regardless of the effect upon the income of tomorrow. Practically all tax experts outside the New Deal agree that some forms of corporation and income taxation are now crippling business. Most businessmen know this is true from bitter experience. Both groups agree that if needed tax reforms were made, the federal income would in all probability increase within the near future. But how prove this to a government official whose vision extends only to the end of his nose?

Not long ago the impartial Brookings Institution issued a report on taxation. Following an exhaustive survey of their effects, the report recommended repeal or drastic revision of the taxes on inter-corporate dividends, excessively high surtax rates on income, the tax on undivided profits, the capital stock and excess profits levies. The author of the report, James D. Magee of New York university, admitted that repeal of these levies might temporarily reduce federal income. But he expressed confidence that increased revenue from increased business would quickly offset any temporary loss—while jobless men would be put back to work.

This is simple common sense, whose truth has been confirmed by the experience of every government which has reached the point of diminishing returns in taxation. The president's yardstick of tax revision is narrow, short-sighted and oblivious of experience. And it is quite obviously not working.

THE GROWING BEANSTALK

BY MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, May 16.—President Roosevelt and his Treasury aides have at last got together with the Democratic leaders in Congress on the subject of tax revision. The "getting together", so far, is physical—they met in the same room. Whether there is a getting together in thought we will not know until we see what happens in Congress.

Mark Sullivan

This laest incident is the climax in a strange series. It began February 23. First move came from Secretary Morgenthau of the Treasury. He publicly suggested that Congress "take a careful look at the tax laws to see if there are any deterrents holding the business man back."

At once came accent from the Democratic leaders in Congress who have charge of tax matters, Chairman Doughton, and the House Ways and Means committee, and Chairman Harrison, of the Senate Finance committee. Pointedly they repeated Secretary Morgenthau's word, "deterrents". They jointly wrote a letter to Secretary Margenthau in which they asked him to give them "the views and recommenrations of the Treary department relating to any provisions of the tax laws which in your judgment, act as a deterrent to outsiders,"

Buck Is Passed

There ensued, between the Democratic leaders in Congress and Mr. Morgenthau and other officials of the administration, a series of gestures of the sort which American slang calls "passing the buck," and which the polite French describe as "After you, Alphonse—no no, after you, my dear Gaston." Both were willing, but each wanted the other to take the lead and the responsibility.

In effect the leaders in Congress said to Mr. Morgenthau and the administration: "You make the recommendation—tell us what taxes should be changed." In effect Mr. Morgenthau and the administration replied: "You start it and we'll give you any information you need."

One gathered that Mr. Morgenthau and others in the administration would be perfectly willing to make the recommendation—it is quite in accord with custom for the Treasury to do this. One gathered, indeed, that Mr. Morgantheau, and others in the administration, were very earnest in wishing the changes, that they know just what changes ought to be made, that they believed the changes were headed for business recovery, and that they were earnest and anxious about helping recovery.

Afraid To Step Out

But one gatnered that Mr. Morgenthau and the others in the administration were a little fearful about stepping out in front. They seemed to fear President Roosevelt might not like it. Mr. Morgenthau had a manner of holding his hands over his ears, lest they be slapped down. Key man in the situation was President Roosevelt. His attitude seemed to be one of sullen coyness. One gathered that he felt the changes ought to be made, that he was, in a not very excited way, concerned about business recovery, but that he wanted the Remocratis leaders in Congress to propose the changesand take the responsibility.

As the situation developed and pressure for revision became acute, Mr. Roosevelt became more resistant. He brought forward objections. He got to the point, last week of saying, in a press conference, that there is no such thing as a "deterrent tax"—that no one tax is more deterrent than any other. On this point Mr. Roosevelt ought to consult his Treasury officials. I think it was the Treasury that first used the term "deterrent tax"—certainly Mr. Morthenthau used it on February 23d. An equivalent term, "friction taxes" also come of of the Treasury. Anyhow,, expert opinion is just about unanimous that certain taxes put brakes an business. These taxes deter business as business would not be deterred by taking the same amount of money through ordinary taxes.

A Bit of History

Back of the whole situation, is a bit of history. A year ago,, the Democratic leaders in Congress put through a partial tax revision, which somewhat reduced two of the taxes now in discussion, the capital gains tax and the undistributed surplus tax. This Mr. Roosevelt did not like. He refused to sign the ball, letting it become law by passage of the statutory ten days—the first and only time Mr. Roosevelt has taken this course. He made a speech condemning the reduction in these two taxes.

This, in turn, irritated the Democratic leaders in Congress. Senator Harrison publicly "talked back" at the president.

From that incident some of the present situation arises. If Mr. Roosevelt were now to initiate and take responsibility for further reducing these two and other deterrent taxes he would seem to be going back on what he strongly said a year ago. At the same time there is, perhaps, on the part of the Democratic leaders in congress, a little harmless malice. If they can so maneuver as to make Mr. Roosevelt or his secretary of the treasury take responsibility for initiating the tax reductions, they will be making the president eat his words a year ago. And Mr. Roosevelt is not a man to swallow gracefully a meal of his own words. Further, these taxes, or resistance to reducing these taxes, has considerable demagogue value. The taxes come largely from rich individuals anr corporations, but have a powerful effect in deterring all business, big and little, and all employment.

Johnson OK's Coal Transfer

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C., May 16—The president's transfer of administration of the Guffey act from the Bituminous Coal Commission to the Interior Department is 100 per cent right. That this stricken industry can be put into a position to earn reasonable profits and afford reasonable employment and compensation was proved beyond peradventure of doubt by the coal code. That went into effect within sixty days after the problem was tackled and in a situation which, nine months earlier, had been the most chaotic and hopeless in our economy.

HUGH IOHNSON

The Bituminous Coal Commission has been so ridden by politics and incompetency that, with much clearer powers, it has never been able to reproduce a similar result along a well-charted path.

Honest Harold Ickes and the writer have had their very vocal public differences notwithstanding a genuine private personal mutual respect, perhaps approaching affectionate regard. I don't want to appear to be reneging on any stand I have taken in this too much publicized feud, but I owe it to candor and fairness to say that I think he is eh best pulic administrator for this kind of system that could be selected.

Better Equipped

I negotiated the petroleum code but he administered it. His department was much better equipped for that kind of job than anything we had in NRA. I asked him to take over the administration of the coal code also. But he was too canny. The Bureau of Mines is one of the best technical organizations in any government. It just wasn't good sense not to put that problem there at the outset.

Honest Harold is supposed to be my business and intimate of dragons and a companion of ogres. From my observations, he is the most practical administrator in the whole New Deal. I think the petroleum industry will bear that out and I believe that the coal industry will find it so.

Sees Ghosts

Surely he is suspicious. He sees in corners ghosts of gents with little black bags who formerly haunted those halls. But Harold understands the two-three-fours of business. He won't go to sleep with his thumb in anybody's mouth. But he doesn't expect bricks to be made without straw. If I were in the coal business I would be willing to trust my case with him, especially in view of the proved efficiency of the Bureau of Mines.

Except for the code period and a short time during the British coal strike, that industry on the average hasn't made any profits since the World war. Approximately 400,000 miners, breadwinners for 1,500,000 people, are peculiarly dependent on this business for support. Furthermore, it is an industry that simply must be preserved. It is our essential reserve for fuel, solid and liquid, after our petroleums is exhausted.

Requires Support

Its present situation in competition with gas, oil and hydro-electric power is one that absolutely requires artificial support from the government, even to the extent of outright price-fixing and an unusual degree of cooperation among capital, labor and government.

Critics of John Lewis can find plenty of pegs on which to hang an argument in other activities of the C.I.O., but an honest appraisal will find few in his conduct of labor relations in coal mining. Most honest coal operators will concede that he has done more to keep that industry on a liveable basis than any mine owner in the business.

The president's intervention in the recent coal labor negotiations reveals him at his best. He knows that industry better than any other. His action was in no sense political and it is unfair to suggest that it was taken in favor of one side or the other of the feud between the A. F. of L. and the C.I.O. It was absolutely necessary in the national interest. — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

2 Bosses 1 Too Many!

. . . So, as a Result, There's Problem of Getting Children to Eat Meals Properly

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

From Brooklyn, New York, a mother writes:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I am a widow with three children, aged two and a half, four and six, and would appreciate any suggestions you can offer in helping me solve my problem.

"My greatest trouble is getting my children to eat. Usually takes one hour and longer at one meal. I have tried many ways of getting them to eat, such as giving gold stars, making eating a game, having the children eat alone and also with grown-ups, but it is always the same long, drawn-out affair in which both my mother and myself almost lose patience and hope.

"My mother plans and cooks the meals which are wholesome, simple and nourishing."

Two Bosses

Answer—Your main problem is that there are two bosses. Reduce that number to one. Unless your mother is far more calm and self-controlled than you are, relieve her entirely of managing their eating; otherwise, you go on the retired list.

Cut out the stars and don't add any stripes. Discontinue games. Such devices work for a little while sometimes, but if these children are to grow up they will always eat as long as they live. Assuming you are going to be sole engineer, work on yourself to say nothing.

Place before each child a small helping of just one food, nothing least likely to want. The moment else—the one he most needs and is he refuses it, let him get down and count the meal ended. He must have nothing else until the next regular mealtime.

Then Give Another

Should he eat all the small helping given him, give him a small helping of another essential food, and proceed as before. Say nothing. If the child cries, let that be his unlimited privilege, but pust act as if you don't hear him.

Since these children have made the problem a kind of social one, it might be better to have the youngest eat alone before the others do, or both the younger ones, younger ones improve, it might be well to let the older one think himself an adult, to whom no one will say a word about his eating or even supervise the amount he shall have on his plate. It's never wise to class a six-year-old with one of two or four.

2 Bosses 1 Too Many!

. . . So, as a Result, There's Problem of Getting Children to Eat Meals Properly

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

From Brooklyn, New York, a mother writes:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I am a widow with three children, aged two and a half, four and six, and would appreciate any suggestions you can offer in helping me solve my problem.

"My greatest trouble is getting my children to eat. Usually takes one hour and longer at one meal. I have tried many ways of getting them to eat, such as giving gold stars, making eating a game, having the children eat alone and also with grown-ups, but it is always the same long, drawn-out affair in which both my mother and myself almost lose patience and hope.

"My mother plans and cooks the meals which are wholesome, simple and nourishing."

Two Bosses

Answer—Your main problem is that there are two bosses. Reduce that number to one. Unless your mother is far more calm and self-controlled than you are, relieve her entirely of managing their eating; otherwise, you go on the retired list.

Cut out the stars and don't add any stripes. Discontinue games. Such devices work for a little while sometimes, but if these children are to grow up they will always eat as long as they live. Assuming you are going to be sole engineer, work on yourself to say nothing.

Place before each child a small helping of just one food, nothing least likely to want. The moment else—the one he most needs and is he refuses it, let him get down and count the meal ended. He must have nothing else until the next regular mealtime.

Then Give Another

Should he eat all the small helping given him, give him a small helping of another essential food, and proceed as before. Say nothing. If the child cries, let that be his unlimited privilege, but pust act as if you don't hear him.

Since these children have made the problem a kind of social one, it might be better to have the youngest eat alone before the others do, or both the younger ones, younger ones improve, it might be well to let the older one think himself an adult, to whom no one will say a word about his eating or even supervise the amount he shall have on his plate. It's never wise to class a six-year-old with one of two or four.

Everyone Gets Chance To Run This Town

Vancouver, Wash., (AP)—The Vancouver city council is giving almost every adult a chance to find out, from the inside, the difficulties of administering municipal government.

Having a "boys' day," where youths became city fathers, is nothing new, but Vancouver is allowing unions to take over city government. Union members fill key positions for a day.

Mayor A. N. Stanley said the same privilege would be extended other workers and business men "so they can become familiar with our problems."

The Japanese beetle and the Dutch elm disease are two of the pests against which the United States department of the interior has to fight to save trees, shrubs and other vegetation.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TOO STRONG TO PASS

THE "TRAP PASS" is a cunning device to produce big scores, when it works. It consists of keeping your mouth shut when you are really strong enough to bid, in the hope that on your next turn you will have an opportunity to make a profitable penalty double of something higher or else stick in a bid of your own which the opponents will double under the impression that your first pass showed you were weak. It is unwise to try this, however, when you are so inordinately strong that it is unlikely anybody will be able to make another bid.

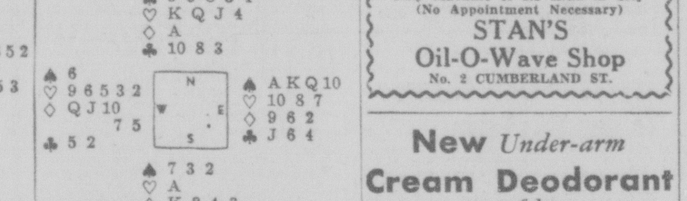

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

This deal produced utterly different results at various tables of a duplicate game. In most cases South opened with 1-Spade, West doubled, East responded with 2-Hearts and West bid 3-No trump. This was made easily after South rattled off three spades and then led another one.

At one table West thought he had a fine hand for a trap pass of 1-Spade and was extremely chagrined when North and East also had to pass. The contract was set two tricks, for a score of 200, whereas those who doubled and got into a No trump game made 400. West should have known that the chances of the other players bidding any more was extremely remote if he passed his powerhouse. He was too strong.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Elks Have Open House

Cumberland Lodge No. 63, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, held its first "open house" party of the new social season last night at its home on South Centre street.

John H. Mosner headed the committee on arrangements. He was assisted by Henry Jammer, John Treiber, Richard Kendall, Walter Fraley, and Charles Reid.

The Cumberland Community Choir sang under the direction of W. Wallace Ashley. "Whitey," of bass fiddle fame, and Eddie Ray and his Swingtet, showing at the Maryland hotel cocktail lounge, presented a floor show. Another attraction was "The Three Co-eds," now playing at Cass Taylor's Clary Club, and Jesse Hunter, local fast-stepping tap dancer.

Jimmy Andrews and his orchestra played for dancing in the ballroom.

The Joke's On You

—If You're Not Very Careful About Picking Your Hats

By HELEN FOLLETT

CASTING a reflective eye over millinery displays, we must come to the conclusion that designers are still playing jokes on us. You can get a chapeau the size of a beaten biscuit or a flappy lid that comes down to your shoulders. There are hats with crowns like funnels, and there are hats with no crowns at all. All help to stimulate the blood streams, keep the money flingers on their way.

Let us urge the beauty class to take time aplenty when making a selection. Regard the profile, take a long, thoughtful squint at your nose, see what the new bonnet will do to it. If you have a long tall neck, don't buy a tall, long hat. If you do, you will look like a ketchup bottle and your best feller won't love you.

While there are freaky lids, there are also those that are sweet and compelling. Choose soft, flattering colors, yielding fabrics. Observe the effect of the color on the skin. Some of those off-fuschia shades are terrible with a sallow complexion, as are faded, lifeless blues. And green isn't easy to get along with unless one is a true blonde or a redhead.

The chapeau is the most important detail of dress. One can wear a frumpy frock and get by, but the wrong hat knocks one's beauty hopes flat.

HAVE YOU any beauty problems? Let the Beauty Box Editor help you solve them. Address all inquiries regarding beauty to the Editor of the Beauty Box, care of this newspaper. Be sure to enclose an addressed, stamped (three cents) envelope for reply.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

TOO STRONG TO PASS

THE "TRAP PASS" is a cunning device to produce big scores, when it works. It consists of keeping your mouth shut when you are really strong enough to bid, in the hope that on your next turn you will have an opportunity to make a profitable penalty double of something higher or else stick in a bid of your own which the opponents will double under the impression that your first pass showed you were weak. It is unwise to try this, however, when you are so inordinately strong that it is unlikely anybody will be able to make another bid.

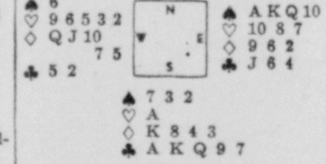

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

This deal produced utterly different results at various tables of a duplicate game. In most cases South opened with 1-Spade, West doubled, East responded with 2-Hearts and West bid 3-No trump. This was made easily after South rattled off three spades and then led another one.

At one table West thought he had a fine hand for a trap pass of 1-Spade and was extremely chagrined when North and East also had to pass. The contract was set two tricks, for a score of 200, whereas those who doubled and got into a No trump game made 400. West should have known that the chances of the other players bidding any more was extremely remote if he passed his powerhouse. He was too strong.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If West leads the Diamond Q, how should South plan to make 3-No trump?

The Joke's On You

—If You're Not Very Careful About Picking Your Hats

By HELEN FOLLETT

CASTING a reflective eye over millinery displays, we must come to the conclusion that designers are still playing jokes on us. You can get a chapeau the size of a beaten biscuit or a flappy lid that comes down to your shoulders. There are hats with crowns like funnels, and there are hats with no crowns at all. All help to stimulate the blood streams, keep the money fingers on their way.

Let us urge the beauty class to take time aplenty when making a selection. Regard the profile, take a long, thoughtful squint at your nose, see what the new bonnet will do to it. If you have a long tall neck, don't buy a tall, long hat. If you do, you will look like a ketchup bottle and your best feller won't love you.

While there are freaky lids, there are also those that are sweet and compelling. Choose soft, flattering colors, yielding fabrics. Observe the effect of the color on the skin. Some of those off-fuschia shades are terrible with a sallow complexion, as are faded, lifeless blues. And green isn't easy to get along with unless one is a true blonde or a redhead.

The chapeau is the most important detail of dress. One can wear a frumpy frock and get by, but the wrong hat knocks one's beauty hopes flat.

"Terror of Tiny Town" and "Risky Business" At Embassy

Casting an ordinary film is headache enough; casting a picture like Columbia's "The Terror of Tiny Town" is enough to send anybody into a nervous decline. The film, now at the Embassy Theatre with its all-midget cast, is a full-length comedy burlesquing the man-sized western epics so popular among fans.

In all the United States there were but 18 midgets with theatrical experience and they were scattered over the four corners of the country. Finally every know midget in the world was contacted by telegram or cable.

Fourteen pint-sized actors and actresses were reached in Honolulu, where they were appearing in vaudeville, and brought to the United States. Eight came from Austria and Hungary, two from Czechoslovakia.

Billy Curtis, the three-and-a-half-foot leading man, came from a vaudeville engagement in Chicago. Yvonne Moray, the leading lady, arrived by 'plane from New York city, and Little Billy who lives in Hollywood walked to the studio.

Several ex-stars of the screen now appearing as character actors are glimpsed in Universal's "Risky Business," radio drama with George Murphy and Dorothea Kent now playing at the Embassy Theatre.

Walter Byron appears, typically enough, as a Hollywood star in a movie city cafe scene. Richard Tucker as the district attorney, is another veteran in the cast.

Don't be in too much hurry to mow newly-seeded lawns before the grass shows signs of substantial growth. Nor should the tops of the spring flowering bulbs, such as the crocus and daffodils, ever be mowed down before they turn yellow.

Woman Worker With Cripples Is Helpless Herself

Mrs. Eleanor McCracken Made Invalid by Automobile Wreck

Wheeling, W. Va., May 16. (AP)—Eleanor McCracken Genther worked among crippled children for four years as a teacher, occupying their minds with things other than pain. Now she is helpless.

Mrs. Genther has been confined either to a bed or chair for the last five months as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Employed by the State Department of Public Assistance and the Works Progress Administration, she worked a minimum of four hours a day as a teacher at the Ohio Valley General Hospital.

But oftentimes she worked as many as eight and ten hours helping the state's wards in the institution.

Drawing, soap carving, weaving, handicrafts and music were taught the children, adapting the work to the child's abilities and preferences.

Then she started for Charleston by automobile December 8, 1938, to report on her work to W. W. Trent, state superintendent of schools, and to renew her teaching certificate.

With her and the driver was Frank Ott, a crippled boy being transferred to a Huntington hospital.

Near Marietta, O., the car and a truck collided. The driver escaped unhurt, the crippled lad suffered a fractured knee-cap and Mrs. Genther awoke six hours later in a Parkersburg hospital.

Nearly a month later she was returned to a Wheeling hospital and 15 days later was taken home.

Since then, although planning new ideas for occupational therapy, she has been unable to work.

However, the West Virginia Society for Crippled Children recognized her work—she was reelected to the state board of trustees while she lay in the Parkersburg hospital.

"Weaker Sex" Isn't, Life Guards Report

Los Angeles (AP)—That old idea that a life guard's work consists of rescuing bathing beauties of the weaker sex has been exploded.

Analysis of 2,830 rescues at Los Angeles beaches over a 10-year period shows 71 percent of the swimmers in distress were men.

C. P. L. Nicholls, city aquatic supervisor, found that the type most frequently in trouble was not the weak swimmer, but the youthful he-man type.

Want To Know a Law! Don't Ask a Policeman!

Tulsa, Okla., (AP)—Charged with peddling without a license, the defandant told the judge: "Well, the police lieutenant told me I could do it."

"Five dollars and costs," snapped Judge A. A. Hatch. "You ought to be fined for knowing so little as to ask a policeman a question about the law.

Extension Bill Is Sent to Governor

Harrisburg, May 16, (AP)—A two-year extension of the act enabling the state to take over county mental institutions has been voted by the legislature.

The bills, asked by Governor James as an economy measure, were sent by the Senate to the chief executive.

They postponed until 1942 the effective date of legislation passed by the General Assembly when it was Democratic-controlled last year.

New Job Interferes With Late's Bowling

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—City Manager Late B. Davisson is trying to develop a handshake that won't interfere with his bowling.

After receiving the congratulations of friends on his appointment and interviewing job seekers he went to a bowling alley for relaxation.

"Thanks," but No Pay

Pueblo, Colo., (AP)—A "thank you, sir" was the fee Perry C. Dunlap, justice of the peace, collected recently for marrying a couple who knocked at his door. The bridegroom's pockets were so empty Justice Dunlap even had to pay the county $1.50 as its share of the sum the law says a justice must collect for each marriage ceremony.

New York, May 16—Fog delay of the liner carrying the King and Queen of England to Canada not only brought about a two-day change to Wednesday in their landing at Quebec but sent broadcasters shifting their schedules in accordance.

Naturally, the programs they had on the list for Monday did not materialize, and have been transferred to Wednesday when the royal visitors are due to disembark.

The exact times of the broadcasts, subject to change, probably will follow the same layout as that arranged for Monday, which was announced as:

Starts at 9

Arrival at Quebec—WJZ-NBC 9, 9:30 and 11 a. m.; MBS-Chain 9, with WOR joining at 10:30; CBS chain at 11:10.

King's address at Canadian government luncheon — WJZ-NBC, WOR-MBS 12:15 and WABC-CBS 1:15 p. m.

Later there will be resumes of the day's activities on all networks.

The monthly land grant college program of the Farm and Home hour comes to the WJZ-NBC network at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday.

From Oklahoma

This one will originate from the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college, with an Oklahoma farmer and his wife as a feature of the broadcast. Members of the faculty, including President Henry G. Bennett also will participate.

More broadcasting from the biennial convention of the National Federation of Music clubs will originate from Baltimore on three networks.

First to tune in for the day is the CBS-chain, which at 2 p. m. will have a double feature, the Musical Arts chorus of Easton, Pa., and Philip Frank, Brooklyn violinist.

Sovereign Singers

Then for the fifteen-minute period at 3 the MBS-chain will be reproducing the vocal efforts of the Sovereign Singers of Joplin, Mo.

Finally, WJZ-NBC at 3:30 will have the Octave club chorus of Norristown, Pa., in an all-Schumann program.

The Phil Lord produced Gang Busters of WABC-CBS at 7 p. m. will relate the Kuykendall-Stamphill-Baker case as its weekly anti-crime drama.

Old Grad of Marshall Is Found in Tennessee

Huntington, W. Va., May 16. (AP)—Marshall College found one of its oldest graduates the other day.

Miss Flora Marsilliot, of Memphis, Tenn., wrote to Registrar W. N. Beetham, telling him she had forgotten the year she completed the course in the then tiny college, and wondered if records had been kept of all the graduates.

They had indeed, replied Beetham, and he told Miss Marsilliot she finished in the class of 1877. College records do not disclose where Miss Marsilliot lived when she attended Marshall, the card only bearing the notation, "graduated."

Beetham estimated, on the basis of the age of the average graduate, that Miss Marsilliot now is approximately 80 years of age. If she is, he said, she will be among the eldest of those who have finished the course. The oldest living alumnus of whom the college officials know is Rufus Switzer, who finished in 1875.

Woman Worker With Cripples Is Helpless Herself

Mrs. Eleanor McCracken Made Invalid by Automobile Wreck

Wheeling, W. Va., May 16. (AP)—Eleanor McCracken Genther worked among crippled children for four years as a teacher, occupying their minds with things other than pain. Now she is helpless.

Mrs. Genther has been confined either to a bed or chair for the last five months as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Employed by the State Department of Public Assistance and the Works Progress Administration, she worked a minimum of four hours a day as a teacher at the Ohio Valley General Hospital.

But oftentimes she worked as many as eight and ten hours helping the state's wards in the institution.

Drawing, soap carving, weaving, handicrafts and music were taught the children, adapting the work to the child's abilities and preferences.

Then she started for Charleston by automobile December 8, 1938, to report on her work to W. W. Trent, state superintendent of schools, and to renew her teaching certificate.

With her and the driver was Frank Ott, a crippled boy being transferred to a Huntington hospital.

Near Marietta, O., the car and a truck collided. The driver escaped unhurt, the crippled lad suffered a fractured knee-cap and Mrs. Genther awoke six hours later in a Parkersburg hospital.

Nearly a month later she was returned to a Wheeling hospital and 15 days later was taken home.

Since then, although planning new ideas for occupational therapy, she has been unable to work.

However, the West Virginia Society for Crippled Children recognized her work—she was reelected to the state board of trustees while she lay in the Parkersburg hospital.

"Weaker Sex" Isn't, Life Guards Report

Los Angeles (AP)—That old idea that a life guard's work consists of rescuing bathing beauties of the weaker sex has been exploded.

Analysis of 2,830 rescues at Los Angeles beaches over a 10-year period shows 71 percent of the swimmers in distress were men.

C. P. L. Nicholls, city aquatic supervisor, found that the type most frequently in trouble was not the weak swimmer, but the youthful he-man type.

Want To Know a Law! Don't Ask a Policeman!

Tulsa, Okla., (AP)—Charged with peddling without a license, the defandant told the judge: "Well, the police lieutenant told me I could do it."

"Five dollars and costs," snapped Judge A. A. Hatch. "You ought to be fined for knowing so little as to ask a policeman a question about the law.

Extension Bill Is Sent to Governor

Harrisburg, May 16. (AP)—A two-year extension of the act enabling the state to take over county mental institutions has been voted by the legislature.

The bills, asked by Governor James as an economy measure, were sent by the Senate to the chief executive.

They postponed until 1942 the effective date of legislation passed by the General Assembly when it was Democratic-controlled last year.

New Job Interferes With Late's Bowling

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—City Manager Late B. Davisson is trying to develop a handshake that won't interfere with his bowling.

After receiving the congratulations of friends on his appointment and interviewing job seekers he went to a bowling alley for relaxation.

"Thanks," but No Pay

Pueblo, Colo., (AP)—A "thank you, sir" was the fee Perry C. Dunlap, justice of the peace, collected recently for marrying a couple who knocked at his door. The bridegroom's pockets were so empty Justice Dunlap even had to pay the county $1.50 as its share of the sum the law says a justice must collect for each marriage ceremony.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

PHIL PARRISH must have known Eleanor very well when he told her that she must make a choice of staying in Bermuda or returning with him. It is indicated by what happened later that, had he thought for a moment she would not return with him, he would have made no ultimatums. Eleanor was the stronger, not necessarily the wiser, of the two. And they loved each other then.

Eleanor told him that she would return with him. And being Eleanor, she did it so that it was easy for both of them. She had a way of making the crises in their lives pass as easily as the childhood crises of their children. If there was not always a rainbow after their storms, there was sunshine. Warm sunshine. Eleanor had no use for half-way measures.

At their deck games on the boat that brought them home, her laughter was as carefree as Jessica's, her spontaneity as free of self-consciousness as her daughter's. They played on deck and swam in the pool on the boat, and after the children were asleep she and Phil danced in the salon and went out to lean over the deck rail and look at stars that were close to them.

The last night out, she put her hand in Phil's, saying: "Why so solemn?"

He said slowly: "Maybe you were right about staying in Bermuda."

Her tone was impatient. "Oh, that! We finished all that."

"I don't mean what you think I do, Nell. We . . . we had something precious for a few weeks. I'm wondering when we'll have it again."

"Now you're being boyishly romantic."

"Anything wrong with that?"

"Yes. We're adults. We have a family growing up. We had the young years of our marriage and we are too intelligent to want to develop cases of arrested development. We want to go on to other things—together, of course."

"Thanks for the crumbs."

"Oh, Phil, you sound as if we'd met and fallen in love on shipboard and were going to part at the dock and never meet again."

"People can live together for a lifetime without meeting often," he said. "I suppose I am being boyish and morose, but when you leave something beautiful behind you, you are naturally afraid you'll never experience it again."

His words were almost prophetic.

Eleanor said: "I'd like to stay up here all night, but we dock early and I've got to pack."

"I'll help," he offered.

"No, stay up here until you're sleepy. I don't need you."

He was in such a mood that her last words seemed written across the stars he looked at after she had gone below.

Suddenly he wanted no more of the night. He went into the bar and ordered a nightcap for himself.

"It's a dreadfully long way out, isn't it?" she said in the cab that took them to Great Neck.

"But it's home," he said with a smile. The smile was intended to convey the idea to her that he was kidding about his sentiment. Eleanor wouldn't like sentimentality about a house.

The post had piled up during their absence. It was a very interesting post. It contained letters from agents who wanted to handle her material. It contained bids from magazines to see her stories. There were offers and invitations for her to speak before women's clubs.

She said: "Let's not renew the lease on this place. I really ought to move back to New York, Phil. It's terribly inconvenient for me to leave my work and rush into town to keep an engagement. And then that awful slavery of time tables. It isn't as if we had to move back to some dark, pokey flat. We could really manage something quite comfortable."

"But we can't take Jessica out of school here. She's getting along beautifully."

She looked at her husband with an air of faint amusement. "Darling, you're so cute when you get paternal. Jessica has been out of school here since the first of November. Besides, I want her to go to a good private day school. I was thinking of Miss Maidstone's. It's only three thousand a year."

The Parrishes moved into an apartment in the East Fifties near the East river. Eleanor had said they needn't move into a dark, pokey place. This new one was not. There was a drawing room with a balcony that ran around it from which other rooms were entered. Jessica's room, Sonny's room, Eleanor and Phil's room. On the first floor of the duplex there were two servants' rooms, the kitchen and dining room and Eleanor's work room.

The rent was six thousand a year.

It was easy for Eleanor to pay it after that first year. It was easy for her to pay the cook, the houseman, the maid, Sonny's nurse and her secretary.

Phil paid the food and liquor bills. And for the telephone and lights. The rest of his money was piling up in the bank. The "rest of his money" was not the money he earned at the paper—it was the matter of commissions Eleanor insisted he accept. True, he was her agent, her manager, her critic and her sage, but he would not give up his job to be any of these. They'd had a terrific scene over the matter of commissions and he had finally agreed to accept them. He did not tell her that he put the money in the bank in her name.

There was a great deal of money that flowed into her hands from the magazines for which she wrote serials. They were not very good serials, but they were popular and the public bought the magazines to read her stories. She never read them in print. She didn't have the time or the appetite for them.

She worked, during those years, like one possessed. She had to keep up with her contracts. Yet she managed her home and her family with the efficiency that had marked her every project.

With her business managed adroitly by her husband, she was free to devote herself to story telling.

It was a grind that told on her after the first three years and Phil was insistant upon another holiday for them. When she refused, he took matters into his own hands.

He bought a cottage in the country. It wasn't very large, but it was charming. A Cape Cod type of white house, filled with lovely antiques, with big hearths and a smell of spice about it. He showed it to her proudly.

"You can work here as well as in town," he told her. "And I will keep the garden blooming for you. See what I have here."

He showed her a row of brave little hyacinths, first floral harbingers of spring, gay and bright and heady with perfume.

"Hyacinths," she murmured. "Remember the day you brought a pot of them to me before we were married?"

"I haven't much to give you, Nell, but you'll have hyacinths every spring of our lives."

She was to remember that.

Army Engineer River Workers Get Uniforms

Huntington, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—River employes of the District United States Engineer office at Huntington have been issued distinctive uniforms to denote their occupation and length of service.

The uniforms, selected a year ago, and issued for the first time this spring, consist of coveralls, slacks, shirts and caps of forestry green, bearing the engineer corps insignia and numbered to indicate rank or seniority.

The uniforms were issued to approximately 300 employes at dams and locks on the Ohio and Kanawha rivers and at the government boatyard at Marietta, O.

Three Qualities Make Up The Magic of Popularity

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

There must be few normal girls in existence who wouldn't like to be popular if they could.

So true is this that many girls, sadly conscious of exercising no magnetic attraction, very sensibly try to find out what popularity means and to remedy their won defects.

How is popularity achieved?

The senior girls at Rochester University set to work recently to discover the answer to this really important problem, and surely nobody could accuse them of wasting their time. On the contrary, a world of women, if it knew what they were about, might feverishly await the outcome of their investigations.

Secret is Revealed

Well, the secret is now revealed, so far as these college girls discover it. And most women will be surprised, I think, at one omission in the report.

No mention is made of the siren's gift, the come-hither quality, which has been supposed to be a necessary part of the really popular girl's otherwise mysterious success.

What has become of the girl "vamp," and of that mysterious magic of hers, so desired and so dreaded? Since here is, of course, an almost impossible art to imitate if you aren't born that way, a pretty big sigh of relief is going to be heard if girls can come to believe that they can operate successfully without it.

Must Have Poise

Instead, this new report announces that three qualities are essential to the popular girl of today. She must have poise. Which means that she must be quietly sure of herself, without being unpleasantly cocky, or uncomfortably shy. And I believe the girls are right in placing this quality at the head of the list.

Second, she must have a sanse of humor, that means, to join naturally in the gay give-and-take of college life, never to be at a loss for a lively rejoinder. A girl couldn't make much headway in a youthful community if the current jokes passed over her head or if she didn't now and then contribute one of her own.

A Winning Quality

Third, friendliness is ranked as a winning quality. And well it may be. A girl couldn't be widely liked by boys, she couldn't play the game, unless she had plenty of humanity in her. The girl who is kind and sociable, who actively likes a lot of people, is certain to be liked in return.

But you're waiting for something to be said about good looks, attractiveness. According to this report, neatness is placed above beauty as a popularity-getter. Which gives one something to think about. I en don't like sloppiness. Any girl, pretty or not, can avoid being sloppy. Encouraging, isn't it? And we're not really talking about the beauties anyway. They ought to be able tc manage their own popularity.

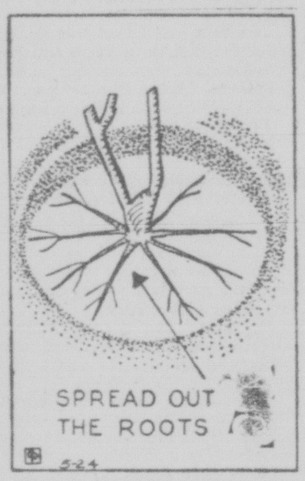

Dangerous Excess

Along with their positive recommendations, Rochester's young popularity experts throw in a warning which it may be wise to heed, old-fashioned as it is. "Don't show too much intelligence," they suggest. No boy exerts himself to make dates with a girl who is brighter than he is, who corrects his statements, who lets it be known that her teachers praise her work. Far from it. He's even willing that a girl rank as just a wee bit dumb, if she is easy to look at, sweet, sympathetic and all that.

One more point mustn't be overlooked. The popular girl has to be a "good sport."

The above suggestions, as you see, have been formulated by girls for girls. I think they're simple enough to be followed and I hope they will be. For I should like never to hear of another dismal tragedy such as the case of the out-and-out unpopular girl presents.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

Roses repay proper planting

Roses will repay proper planting with vigorous growth and profusion of blooms. Fall plant is usually recommended for rose planting, but roses properly planted in the Spring also will do well. Since in most sections of the country the Spring season has been backward, roses still can be planted with success if care is taken.

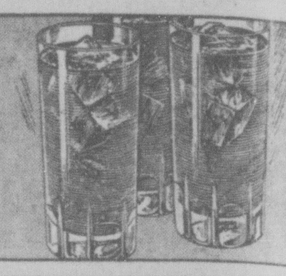

The Garden-Graph shows how to spread the roots properly when planting a rose bush. Many people make the mistake of digging too small a hole and then crowding the roots into it. The hole should oe large enough to accommodate the roots easily without crowding them, or permitting them to overlap. Also make sure that the tips of the roots point slightly downward.

After the roots of the rose bush have been properly spread in the hole cover them with a loose, friable soil that can be tramped down firmly. Fill with water the depression left by tramping. After the water has seeped down to the roots add more soil until the hole is filled to the level of the ground. Leave the top layer of soil fairly loose.

Three Qualities Make Up The Magic of Popularity

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

There must be few normal girls in existence who wouldn't like to be popular if they could.

So true is this that many girls, sadly conscious of exercising no magnetic attraction, very sensibly try to find out what popularity means and to remedy their won defects.

How is popularity achieved?

The senior girls at Rochester University set to work recently to discover the answer to this really important problem, and surely nobody could accuse them of wasting their time. On the contrary, a world of women, if it knew what they were about, might feverishly await the outcome of their investigations.

Secret is Revealed

Well, the secret is now revealed, so far as these college girls discover it. And most women will be surprised, I think, at one omission in the report.

No mention is made of the siren's gift, the come-hither quality, which has been supposed to be a necessary part of the really popular girl's otherwise mysterious success.

What has become of the girl "vamp," and of that mysterious magic of hers, so desired and so dreaded? Since here is, of course, an almost impossible art to imitate if you aren't born that way, a pretty big sigh of relief is going to be heard if girls can come to believe that they can operate successfully without it.

Must Have Poise

Instead, this new report announces that three qualities are essential to the popular girl of today. She must have poise. Which means that she must be quietly sure of herself, without being unpleasantly cocky, or uncomfortably shy. And I believe the girls are right in placing this quality at the head of the list.

Second, she must have a sanse of humor, that means, to join naturally in the gay give-and-take of college life, never to be at a loss for a lively rejoinder. A girl couldn't make much headway in a youthful community if the current jokes passed over her head or if she didn't now and then contribute one of her own.

A Winning Quality

Third, friendliness is ranked as a winning quality. And well it may be. A girl couldn't be widely liked by boys, she couldn't play the game, unless she had plenty of humanity in her. The girl who is kind and sociable, who actively likes a lot of people, is certain to be liked in return.

Grissom Defeats Bees 4-1 and Reds Move into Second

Southpaw Proves Tough in Second Win as Mates Pound Ball

Cincinnati, May 16 (AP)—Paced by Bill Werber and Ernie Lombardi, the Cincinnati Reds moved into a second place tie with Boston today, defeating the Bees 4 to 1 behind the seven-hit hurling of southpaw Lee Grissom.

Only an error by Shortstop Billy Myers prevented a shutout, his muff of Craft's throw-in enabling Fletcher to score on Lopez' second inning double.

Grissom, racking up his second victory of the year, was "tough" throughout. He failed to strike out anyone, but on the other hand issued but two passes.

Meanwhile, his mates, led by Werber and Lombardi with three-for-four, got to Jim Turner for 10 safties and three walks.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, May 16 (AP)—They haven't quite reached the point where they award degrees of doctors of billiards, but colleges and universities, through the medium of their student unions, now have reached the point where they accept the ancient pastime as an intercollegiate sport.

And the man responsible for taking the eight ball from the musty, smoke-laden atmosphere of the corner pool room, and sending it to college is a medium-sized deaconish, idealistic citizen whose card reads Charles C. Peterson, and bears the modest challenge: "show me a billiard shot I can't make."

Peterson breezed into town after a tour which took him to 151 schools in all parts of the country.

"Sixty-three schools belong to the students' association," he enthused, "and 21 of them took part in an intercollegiate tournament last year. Mark me, the future billiard champions are coming from our colleges, just like other sports are drawing their young blood from the schools."

Peterson, 60 years old and with nerves as unruffled as a mill pond in August, first got the idea of giving billiards an education back in 1906.

"They laughed at me," he recalls. "I tried again in 1919, and again was ridiculed. In 1930 I was invited to give an exhibition at the University of Wisconsin.

"Since then its progress has been rapid. I visit the schools, usually two days at each. We try to stress biallards instead of pool. In fact, we don't recognize pool: It's pocket billiards."

Peterson's own history would fill a book. He started playing quite by accident in Milwaukee when he was 15, improved rapidly, and in 1898 won his first tournament, the Florida State. When Willie Hoppe won the world championship in 1906, Pete as he is generally known, joined him as trainer, and from 1916 to 1924 toured with Hoppe giving exhibitions.

His own career as a tournament player was snapped when he suffered serious injuries in an automobile accident. He thought his playing days were over, but during his convalescence he began trying trick shots, gradually perfecting himself unutil today he can make any shot you can name.

Three Yankee Homers Turn Back St. Louis 7-5

New York, May 16 (AP) — The Yankees called on their old trademark, the home run, three times today to whip the St. Louis Browns, 7-5, in the opening tilt of their home stand and stretch their winning streak to six straight games.

The victory maintained the Yanks' game-and-a-half lead in the American League standings.

Although each team made only eight hits, the Yankee homers accounted for six of their seven runs.

The Browns didn't give up without a fight. After being held to two runs and three hits by Bump Hadley through the first seven innings, they threatened in the eighth until fireman Johnny Murphy came in to stop them. But in the ninth, they climbed aboard Johnny for four hits and three runs and fell just short of catching up, as relief twirler Atley Donald "put out the fire" with the tying runs on base. Hadley took credit for the win.

Celebrate Return to Boston with Onesided Victory Over White Sox

Boston, May 16 (AP)—The Red Sox celebrated their return to Fenway Park today by going on a 19-hit rampage that overwhelmed the Chicago White Sox, 18-4, and gave freshman pitcher Woody Rich his third triumph of the season.

Every member of the Boston team hit safely against the Chicago pitching, supplied by Johnny Rigney, Vic Frasier and Art Herring. Lou Finney, filling in at first base for Jimmy Foxx, hospitalized with sinus trouble, was one of the Red sockers to bang out three hits.

Rich held the Chisox to six hits and all but one of their runs were unearned.

Giants Kick Away Lead

St. Louis, May 16 (AP)—The Cardinals had to come from 'way behind with a three-home run attack today to nip the New York Giants 7 to 6 in the opening game of their home stand and boost their National League lead to a game and a half.

The Giants worked hard to boot this one, but they finally accomplished it after kicking away a five-run lead they had piled up in the first three frames. The defeat dropped Bill Terry's troupe into seventh place in the league standings.

The "meat balls" served by Harry Gumbert and Cliff Melton to Johnny Mize, Ducky Medwick and Pepper Martin were all belted for homers and produced six of the Cards' seven runs. The winning marker came home in the seventh on a walk, Melton's error, and infield out and Lynn Myers' pinch-single.

Southpaw Proves Tough in Second Win as Mates Pound Ball

Cincinnati, May 16 (AP)—Paced by Bill Werber and Ernie Lombardi, the Cincinnati Reds moved into a second place tie with Boston today, defeating the Bees 4 to 1 behind the seven-hit hurling of southpaw Lee Grissom.

Only an error by Shortstop Billy Myers prevented a shutout, his muff of Craft's throw-in enabling Fletcher to score on Lopez' second inning double.

Grissom, racking up his second victory of the year, was "tough" throughout. He failed to strike out anyone, but on the other hand issued but two passes.

Meanwhile, his mates, led by Werber and Lombardi with three-for-four, got to Jim Turner for 10 safties and three walks.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, May 16 (AP)—They haven't quite reached the point where they award degrees of doctors of billiards, but colleges and universities, through the medium of their student unions, now have reached the point where they accept the ancient pastime as an intercollegiate sport.

And the man responsible for taking the eight ball from the musty, smoke-laden atmosphere of the corner pool room, and sending it to college is a medium-sized deaconish, idealistic citizen whose card reads Charles C. Peterson, and bears the modest challenge: "show me a billiard shot I can't make."

Peterson breezed into town after a tour which took him to 151 schools in all parts of the country.

"Sixty-three schools belong to the students' association," he enthused, "and 21 of them took part in an intercollegiate tournament last year. Mark me, the future billiard champions are coming from our colleges, just like other sports are drawing their young blood from the schools."

Peterson, 60 years old and with nerves as unruffled as a mill pond in August, first got the idea of giving billiards an education back in 1906.

"They laughed at me," he recalls. "I tried again in 1919, and again was ridiculed. In 1930 I was invited to give an exhibition at the University of Wisconsin.

"Since then its progress has been rapid. I visit the schools, usually two days at each. We try to stress biallards instead of pool. In fact, we don't recognize pool: It's pocket billiards."

Peterson's own history would fill a book. He started playing quite by accident in Milwaukee when he was 15, improved rapidly, and in 1898 won his first tournament, the Florida State. When Willie Hoppe won the world championship in 1906, Pete as he is generally known, joined him as trainer, and from 1916 to 1924 toured with Hoppe giving exhibitions.

His own career as a tournament player was snapped when he suffered serious injuries in an automobile accident. He thought his playing days were over, but during his convalescence he began trying trick shots, gradually perfecting himself unutil today he can make any shot you can name.

Three Yankee Homers Turn Back St. Louis 7-5

New York, May 16 (AP) — The Yankees called on their old trademark, the home run, three times today to whip the St. Louis Browns, 7-5, in the opening tilt of their home stand and stretch their winning streak to six straight games.

The victory maintained the Yanks' game-and-a-half lead in the American League standings.

Although each team made only eight hits, the Yankee homers accounted for six of their seven runs.

The Browns didn't give up without a fight. After being held to two runs and three hits by Bump Hadley through the first seven innings, they threatened in the eighth until fireman Johnny Murphy came in to stop them. But in the ninth, they climbed aboard Johnny for four hits and three runs and fell just short of catching up, as relief twirler Atley Donald "put out the fire" with the tying runs on base. Hadley took credit for the win.

Red Sox Bang out 19 Hits and Rich Hangs up 18-4 Win

Celebrate Return to Boston with Onesided Victory Over White Sox

Boston, May 16 (AP)—The Red Sox celebrated their return to Fenway Park today by going on a 19-hit rampage that overwhelmed the Chicago White Sox, 18-4, and gave freshman pitcher Woody Rich his third triumph of the season.

Every member of the Boston team hit safely against the Chicago pitching, supplied by Johnny Rigney, Vic Frasier and Art Herring. Lou Finney, filling in at first base for Jimmy Foxx, hospitalized with sinus trouble, was one of the Red sockers to bang out three hits.

Rich held the Chisox to six hits and all but one of their runs were unearned.

Giants Kick Away Lead

St. Louis, May 16 (AP)—The Cardinals had to come from 'way behind with a three-home run attack today to nip the New York Giants 7 to 6 in the opening game of their home stand and boost their National League lead to a game and a half.

The Giants worked hard to boot this one, but they finally accomplished it after kicking away a five-run lead they had piled up in the first three frames. The defeat dropped Bill Terry's troupe into seventh place in the league standings.

The "meat balls" served by Harry Gumbert and Cliff Melton to Johnny Mize, Ducky Medwick and Pepper Martin were all belted for homers and produced six of the Cards' seven runs. The winning marker came home in the seventh on a walk, Melton's error, and infield out and Lynn Myers' pinch-single.

Great Cacapon also holds a victory over Berkeley Springs but the county seat nine can carry off the title by turning back the G. C. boys in Friday's game at Berkeley Springs.

Belmont Rockwell allowed but two hits and fired the third strike 11 times. Park and Zihlman Replay Ordered

The latter part of last Tuesday's Zihlman-Narrows Park game in the County Softball League, protested by the Park on the grounds that the Zihlman hurler made two illegal pitches in the fifth inning, was ordered replayed from the point of controversy by loop officials following a meeting at Corriganville Monday night.

Zihlman finished the game in front 5-4 but the contest will not be entered on the records until after the replay which will be staged when the teams next meet on the Park's home field. The "setting" will be Park at bat in the last of the fifth with the score 2-2, runners on third and second, one down and two balls called on the batter.

Allegany Hi and Fort Hill Lose In School Loop

Former Bows to Hyndman 8-7 and Latter to Keyser 7-5

Keyser High School's Golden Tornado turned back Fort Hill High 7 to 5 yesterday and Allegany Hi's nine lost to Hyndman 8 to 7 yesterday.

Although Wisegarver limited Keyser to six hits and fanned the same number of batters, Fort Hill's batters were helpless before the slants of Hoffman and Smith who shared the pitching honors for Keyser.

Robinson and Spangler pitched good enough ball to win while holding Hyndman to seven hits, but Cook throttled Allegany's attack after the locals had amassed six hits off Kinton, Hyndman's starting slinger. Seigner hurled the last frame for Hyndman.

PUNK PLUG PICKER Alias Paddock Pete

Desolated! Out, out and out! Armstrong got dunked into the fourth hole yesterday. He will be up there where the eagles shed their wings through the pay off windows one of these days and—if we don't have a war meanwhile—P.P. will be right there to get an armfull. Yep!

The laundry—my other shirt—is due today. Got to come to taw somehow. I'll hook up Ambuscade and Boston Pal at Suffolk Downs for a change of linen.

Quarter,

Saddle Strap Sam's Postscript to P.P.

We got away on the right foot yesterday with Happy Road, even if it won in a dead heat . . . . but the rest of our horses were there or thereabouts although our Suffolk Selections were "hot"! Today however, despite our Charles Town Selections elsewhere, we're handing out some of that "hot stuff info" from the feed bag.

Here 'tis:

Boulder Dam in the fourth.
Lady Dunlin in the fifth.
Celtic Legend in the sixth.

As we get it they've been primed for "killings" the first time out and today's the first time.

—o—

At Churchill Downs there's Buddy Treacy in the first.
Lady Wo in the third.
Bucket Head in the fourth.
Broadus for a comeback in the fifth.

Allegany Hi and Fort Hill Lose In School Loop

Former Bows to Hyndman 8-7 and Latter to Keyser 7-5

Keyser High School's Golden Tornado turned back Fort Hill High 7 to 5 yesterday and Allegany Hi's nine lost to Hyndman 8 to 7 yesterday.

Although Wisegarver limited Keyser to six hits and fanned the same number of batters, Fort Hill's batters were helpless before the slants of Hoffman and Smith who shared the pitching honors for Keyser.

Robinson and Spangler pitched good enough ball to win while holding Hyndman to seven hits, but Cook throttled Allegany's attack after the locals had amassed six hits off Kinton. Hyndman's starting slinger, Seigner hurled the last frame for Hyndman.

PUNK PLUG PICKER Alias Paddock Pete

Desolated! Out, out and out! Armstrong got dunked into the fourth hole yesterday. He will be up there where the eagles shed their wings through the pay off windows one of these days and—if we don't have a war meanwhile—P.P. will be right there to get an armfull. Yep!

The laundry—my other shirt—is due today. Got to come to taw somehow. I'll hook up Ambuscade and Boston Pal at Suffolk Downs for a change of linen.

Quarter,

Saddle Strap Sam's Postscript to P.P.

We got away on the right foot yesterday with Happy Road, even if it won in a dead heat . . . but the rest of our horses were there or thereabouts although our Suffolk Selections were "hot"! Today however, despite our Charles Town Selections elsewhere, we're handing out some of that "hot stuff info" from the feed bag.

Here 'tis:

Boulder Dam in the fourth.
Lady Dunlin in the fifth.
Celtic Legend in the sixth.

As we get it they've been primed for "killings" the first time out and today's the first time.

—o—

At Churchill Downs there's Buddy Treacy in the first.
Lady Wo in the third.
Bucket Head in the fourth.
Broadus for a comeback in the fifth.
And our old friend.
Slave Song in the sixth.

At Belmont, where the bookies will bet you 1 to 5 that it will snow somewhere next winter,, we like Cisneros to repeat for us in the fourth.. In the long sixth at Suffolk we'll go to Lourdes, and in the sixth to Griewrack.

Saddle Strap Sam.

Stocks Drop Fractions to Two Points as Selling Hits Market

Liquidation by Tired Holders and Tax Situation Blamed for Drop

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, May 16 (AP)—Selling of a more insistent type hit the stock market today and dropped leaders fractions to around 2 points. There were a few isolated losers of 4 or so. Final prices were near the lows of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 1.1 points at 44.8. It was the largest recession since April 8. Transfers totalled 620,540 shares compared with 334,600 the day before.

Part of the day's set-back was attributed to liquidation by tired holders. In addition, Wall street was none too confident that any important tax relief would be granted by the present congress. The opinion was that European developments proved a neutral market influence, with war fears tending to fade.

Steel and automotive stocks were among the relatively active sliders, apparently reflecting doubts any appreciable come-back in orders and production in these industries was probable in the near future.

Rails and Utilities were hardly as depressed as other groups.

Losses of fractions to more than a point in the Curb were posted for Lockheed, Electric Bond & Share, Consolidated Copper, Standard Steel Spring and Niagara Hudson Power. Turnover of 116,000 shares compared with 68,000 Monday.

"Pygmalion" George Bernard Shaw's Greatest Comedy Ends Run Today

"The Hardy's Ride High" Tomorrow at the Maryland; Style Show Thursday and Friday

"The Hardy's Ride High," sixth of the beloved Hardy Family series, opens an engagement of four days at the Maryland Theatre tomorrow with the screen family inheriting a fortune.

Lewis Stone continues as Judge Hardy, with Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Sarah Haden and Don Castle. New faces appear in the large supporting cast, including Virginia Grey, Minor Watson, John King, John T. Murray, Halliwell Hobbes, George Irving, Aileen Pringle and Marsha Hunt. The director was George B. Seitz, who has occupied that post in all of the Hardy Family pictures.

The complications of wealth face the Hardys when the Judge is advised that he is the legal heir to the estate of an ancestor. The family flies to Detroit to occupy the estate. Enroute, Sara Haden as Aunt Milly meets a middle-aged business man who wants to sell her real estate, but she is under the impression that he seeks marriage.

In the city, the family is overwhelmed by luxury. Mickey steps out to his first night club, meets a dancing siren and when she permits him to call on her is so terrified that he runs away. Cecilia buys lavish gowns and charges them to the Judge. Only Mother Hardy and the Judge keep their heads.

Rosenbaum's Style Show of summer wear, is an added attraction Thursday and Friday.

"Up the River" Is Jail-Grid Comedy

Said to be a hilarious combination of music, broad comedy situations and prison football, the film is a happy departure from the cycle of grim prison melodramas with their lofty but solemn messages of social reform and is, in the opinion of Director Alfred Werker, a refreshing exploration into a novel background for comedy.

Most of the action takes place within the walls of a mythical state penitentiary, where the happy inmates boast of a radio in every cell and gates that are practically revolving doors. Tony Martin and Phyllis Brooks handle the romantic interest, and the cast also includes Alan Dinehart, Eddie Collins, Jane Darwell and Sidney Toler. Sol M. Wurtzel was executive producer.

It could only happen in Hollywood. When Edward Norris played his first scene for "On Trial," the Warner Bros. melodrama opening today at the Garden Theatre, his ex-wife, Ann Sheridan, was on the stage to wish him luck.

Norris plays an attorney and his initial scene was a speech to the jury. When he finished it, Miss Sheridan applauded. Miss Sheridan is under contract to Warner Bros.

Will Osborne's Orchestra At Crystal Thursday

Will Osborne 'way back in 1926 originated the soft crooning style of music that for several years was so popular with radio audiences. With the increased size of theatres and auditoriums, he found, with his advent into Personal Appearances that it was necessary to augment his orchestra from six to ten: from ten to thirtetn and eventually to fourteen solo artists and himself: which is today conceded to be one of the finest musical organizations in the amusement world.

In 1933 Osborne and his slide orchestra were the envy of every other radio attraction when they established an all time record for broadcasting—having 14 broadcasting periods a week: going out over the five New York major stations: five of these weekly programs were sponsored by commercial advertisers.

Having studied music in the United States, Canada, London and Paris, Will Osborne is a thorough musician and an authority on the modern classics and it is for this reason that just a musician without exceptional ability is not acceptable to him for his organization. He has never taken a single lesson and it is quite by accident that he discovered the value of his voice and its individual tone quality and he fears that voice culture in his case might destroy the individuality that is known and acceptable to millions of radio fans today.

"Almost a Gentleman" Starts Tomorrow at Liberty

"Almost a Gentleman," starting tomorrow at the Liberty, new and distinctly different film, brings to the screen an intriguing story of a man's regeneration through his love and faith in a remarkable dog, and through the love of an understanding woman for that man. James Ellison and Helen Wood, with "Ace," a trained shepherd dog, have the principal roles in this dramatic offering, in which Robert Kent and June Clayworth are also featured. The story opens with Ellison, embittered because of his ill-fated marriage to June Clayworth, returning to his home town where he meets Miss Wood, a novelist who has rented his house.

Ellison's chief resentment is against Miss Clayworth's family. When he has a chance to irritate them by matching a dog of mixed breed against their thoroughbreds, he does so, despite Miss Wood's protest that he is spoiling his whole life for the sake of revenge. The scheme works out in a dramatic climax in which Ellison's dog proves its superiority to its canine rivals by solving a kidnapping case and ending the feud.

Robert Kent, as Ellison's brother-in-law; Robert Warwick, John Wray, Brandon Tynan, Leonard Penn, Earl Hodgins and Harlan Briggs have the other principal roles in the offering, which was produced

"WHAT'LL DE MOB THINK!"

Warren Hymer has a right to worry about appearances in Columbia's "The Lady and the Mob," what with Ida Lupino and Fay Bainter behaving as they do in this scene from the Strand Theatre comedy showing Thursday and Friday. Hymer heads the "mob" collected by recent Academy Award winner Fay Bainter, currently seen as an eccentric dowager turned gang-buster. On the stage will be "Follies Continental" a forty-people stage revue.

"THE HARDY'S RIDE HIGH" OPENS TOMORROW

ROMANCE NOTE!

Helen Wood and James Ellison are here shown in a scene from their first co-starring venture, RKO Radio's "Almost a Gentleman", starting tomorrow at the Liberty in which they are the romantic leads. Included in the featured cast are also Robert Kent and June Clayworth, and Ace, the Wonder Dog, whose marvelous screen work adds no little to the film's entertaining and novelty value.

Stocks Drop Fractions to Two Points as Selling Hits Market

Liquidation by Tired Holders and Tax Situation Blamed for Drop

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, May 16 (AP)—Selling of a more insistent type hit the stock market today and dropped leaders fractions to around 2 points. There were a few isolated losers of 1 or so. Final prices were near the lows of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 1.1 points at 44.8. It was the largest recession since April 8. Transfers totalled 620,540 shares compared with 334,600 the day before.

Part of the day's set-back was attributed to liquidation by tired holders. In addition, Wall street was none too confident that any important tax relief would be granted by the present congress. The opinion was that European developments proved a neutral market influence, with war fears tending to fade.

Steel and automotive stocks were among the relatively active sliders, apparently reflecting doubts any appreciable come-back in orders and production in these industries was probable in the near future.

Rails and Utilities were hardly as depressed as other groups.

Losses of fractions to more than a point in the Curb were posted for Lockheed, Electric Bond & Share, Consolidated Copper, Standard Steel Spring and Niagara Hudson Power. Turnover of 116,000 shares compared with 68,000 Monday.

"Pygmalion" George Bernard Shaw's Greatest Comedy Ends Run Today

"The Hardy's Ride High" Tomorrow at the Maryland; Style Show Thursday and Friday

"The Hardy's Ride High," sixth of the beloved Hardy Family series, opens an engagement of four days at the Maryland Theatre tomorrow with the screen family inheriting a fortune.

Lewis Stone continues as Judge Hardy, with Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Sarah Haden and Don Castle. New faces appear in the large supporting cast, including Virginia Grey, Minor Watson, John King, John T. Murray, Halliwell Hobbes, George Irving, Aileen Pringle and Marsha Hunt. The director was George B. Seitz, who has occupied that post in all of the Hardy Family pictures.

The complications of wealth face the Hardys when the Judge is advised that he is the legal heir to the estate of an ancestor. The family flies to Detroit to occupy the estate. Enroute, Sara Haden as Aunt Milly meets a middle-aged business man who wants to sell her real estate, but she is under the impression that he seeks marriage.

In the city, the family is overwhelmed by luxury. Mickey steps out to his first night club, meets a dancing siren and when she permits him to call on her is so terrified that he runs away. Cecilia buys lavish gowns and charges them to the Judge. Only Mother Hardy and the Judge keep their heads.

Rosenbaum's Style Show of summer wear, is an added attraction Thursday and Friday.

Said to be a hilarious combination of music, broad comedy situations and prison football, the film is a happy departure from the cycle of grim prison melodramas with their lofty but solemn messages of social reform and is, in the opinion of Director Alfred Werker, a refreshing exploration into a novel background for comedy.

Most of the action takes place within the walls of a mythical state penitentiary, where the happy inmates boast of a radio in every cell and gates that are practically revolving doors. Tony Martin and Phyllis Brooks handle the romantic interest, and the cast also includes Alan Dinehart, Eddie Collins, Jane Darwell and Sidney Toler. Sol M. Wurtzel was executive producer.

It could only happen in Hollywood. When Edward Norris played his first scene for "On Trial," the Warner Bros. melodrama opening today at the Garden Theatre, his ex-wife, Ann Sheridan, was on the stage to wish him luck.

Norris plays an attorney and his initial scene was a speech to the jury. When he finished it, Miss Sheridan applauded. Miss Sheridan is under contract to Warner Bros.

Will Osborne's Orchestra At Crystal Thursday

Will Osborne 'way back in 1926 originated the soft crooning style of music that for several years was so popular with radio audiences. With the increased size of theatres and auditoriums, he found, with his advent into Personal Appearances that it was necessary to augment his orchestra from six to ten: from ten to thirtetn and eventually to fourteen solo artists and himself: which is today conceded to be one of the finest musical organizations in the amusement world.

In 1933 Osborne and his slide orchestra were the envy of every other radio attraction when they established an all time record for broadcasting—having 14 broadcasting periods a week: going out over the five New York major stations: five of these weekly programs were sponsored by commercial advertisers.

Having studied music in the United States, Canada, London and Paris, Will Osborne is a thorough musician and an authority on the modern classics and it is for this reason that just a musician without exceptional ability is not acceptable to him for his organization. He has never taken a single lesson and it is quite by accident that he discovered the value of his voice and its individual tone quality and he fears that voice culture in his case might destroy the individuality that is known and acceptable to millions of radio fans today.

"Almost a Gentleman" Starts Tomorrow at Liberty

"Almost a Gentleman," starting tomorrow at the Liberty, new and distinctly different film, brings to the screen an intriguing story of a man's regeneration through his love and faith in a remarkable dog, and through the love of an understanding woman for that man. James Ellison and Helen Wood, with "Ace," a trained shepherd dog, have the principal roles in this dramatic offering, in which Robert Kent and June Clayworth are also featured. The story opens with Ellison, embittered because of his ill-fated marriage to June Clayworth, returning to his home town where he meets Miss Wood, a novelist who has rented his house.

Ellison's chief resentment is against Miss Clayworth's family. When he has a chance to irritate them by matching a dog of mixed breed against their thoroughbreds, he does so, despite Miss Wood's protest that he is spoiling his whole life for the sake of revenge. The scheme works out in a dramatic climax in which Ellison's dog proves its superiority to its canine rivals by solving a kidnapping case and ending the feud.

Robert Kent, as Ellison's brother-in-law; Robert Warwick, John Wray, Brandon Tynan, Leonard Penn, Earl Hodgins and Harlan Briggs have the other principal roles in the offering, which was produced

Mining Operations Step Up in the West Virginia Coal Fields

Demand Is Down, Outlook Uncertain, Operators Say

Preston County Booms with Production Away Up

Charleston, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—The revived coal output in West Virginia stepped still nearer normal level today, albeit amid much divergence of opinion on how much business can be depended upon.

Some operators, on the second day since the end of the long Appalachian shutdown, said they had not received the orders expected and saw few ahead.

Others looked for heavy production for a month but withheld predictions beyond that point.

Still others were of the opinion it would be a week or ten days before anything definite could be determined.

Based on last year's figures, the state output averages around 550,000 tons daily.

Far Short of Average

So far since signing by most operators of the "union shop" contract with the United Mine Workers the 550,000-ton figure has not been reached by many thousands of tons.

That is because some mines, particularly in the newly-signed Kanawha field, just reopened today; because miners are "soft" after the lay-off and are rot up to putting out their usual work; and because continuing clean-up work has slowed actual output.

A Pocahontas-Tug river field spokesman said normal levels could not be expected for at least ten days.

Comment from mine owners about the immediate future went this way:

Fayette county—W. E. Tissue, of the New River Company, which operates ten mines in Fayette and Raleigh: "there is no demand for coal right now, and a good bit of our market has gone to oil."

Logan—Operators foresaw at least four weeks at good production levels but everything uncertain after that.

Buyers' Strike Seen

Beckley—Lillybrook Coal Company officials said, "there is a buyers' strike on."

Pocahontas field—Spokesman said buyers' strike is "ridiculous" and only time will tell.

Huntington—T. M. Wyatt, of the Hooper-Mankin Company, said the shutdown raised "false hopes" for a boom, adding, "the larger users are buying very little and are waiting. If you hear of any large orders I would like to know about it."

Island Creek Coal Company official said they "never expected any pick-up we couldn't handle."

Preston Prosperous

The seven weeks shutdown during Appalachian wage negotiations brought prosperity to one county—Preston—in the opinion of operators and railroad men.

A majority of the Preston mines are operated on a non-union basis and ran throughout the suspension in the rest of the state. Operators and railroaders said production had not reached such levels since the war.

State Trooper W. C. Davis, of Kingwood, said detachments were on duty at points where pickets tried to dissuade miners from working but there were no serious disorders. He said all special details were withdrawn yesterday.

Most mines in the Kanawha field, which signed the union shop contract yesterday, were open for the first time since April 1.

Down at Gary

United States Coal and Coke Company operations at Gary remained idle amid conflicting reports as to possible reopening. The UMWA has said the four mines will stay down until there is a contract. Members of an independent union have said they expected to resume.

Carter Coal Company operations at Caretta and Coalwood also stayed shut, along with several "captive" mines in Logan county and in the northern section of the state.

"No Work" signs were posted at three McKell company mines at Siltix, Tamroy and Oswald in Fayette county, indicating indefinite suspension. The mines were picketed yesterday and there was no work.

Holt Rejoices over Doom of Commission

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Senator Holt (D-WVa) rejoiced today in the coming abolition of the National Bituminous Coal Commission.

He inserted in the Senate record a lengthy statement reviewing his three-year battle against the commission, which is to be abolished under President Roosevelt's second reorganization order.

Senator Holt, frequently at odds with the administration, called attention to Mr. Rosevelt's statement that three years experience "has shown that direct administration will be cheaper, better and more effective than through the cumbersome medium of an unnecessary commission."

In his statement Holt said the coal commission was created "to give jobs to the favorites" and "pay off a campaign contribution" of $500,000 to the democratic party by the United Mine Workers of America, led by John L. Lewis.

Lewis, Holt said, had told "the miners he had the power to pass the Guffey act, therefore it was important to the politicians to see that the man who had donated $500,000 to the campaign war chest, as well as to their political ventures, would have his face saved."

Holt said the only group that had benefitted from the act were "the payrollers."

He charged the commission had "cost the taxpayers millions of dollars" and destroyed "the stabilization of the industry."

Deranged Woman Kills Baby, Self

Uses Razor Blade after Child Is Drowned in Bathtub

Charleston, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—Mrs. Nellie Dooley, 37, former Assistant Secretary of the State Sinking Fund Commission, was found dead and her four-month-old son was found drowned today in their Kanawha City home, Police Chief W. A. Tully reported.

Tully said reports from Lieutenant A. F. Pitzer and Detective Lieutenant Edgar Bourne were that the baby was drowned in the bathtub and Mrs. Dooley died of razor wounds.

Mrs. Dooley, wife of J. Beverly Dooley, resigned from the Sinking Fund Commission in December, a month before the baby was born.

Dr. C. F. Sayre, county Coroner, returned a verdict of suicide, and said Mrs. Dooley "undoubtedly was temporarily deranged."

The coroner related Mrs. Dooley told her maid during the morning that she was going to "lie down for awhile", then went to the bathroom and locked the door.

The deaths were not discovered until afternoon, when the maid went to arouse Mrs. Dooley and was unable to get any answer. She called authorities.

Dr. Sayre said Mrs. Dooley and the baby had been dead "three or four hours".

Mrs. Dooley was the former Nellie Littton, and a native of Wayne county. Her family lived in Clendenin for many years.

She had been married about ten years.

The appointment to the Sinking Fund Commission Post was made April 24, 1933. She was an active Democrat and for some time was Treasurer of the Young Democratic Club here.

Her husband is employed as an insurance adjuster for several concerns in this section.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her parents, six brothers and sisters.

Strawberries Will Be On Way To Market Saturday

The section's second annual strawberry festival is scheduled for early next month.

New Marriage Mill With Medical Service Opens at Wellsburg

Wellsburg, W. Va., May 16 (AP) — Cupid's helpers in this once nationally-famous Gretna Green were ready today to grapple with the newest obstacle to a speedy elopement—blood tests for altar-bound couples.

The Wellsburg Taxi Company, which has guided thousands of couples through the "marriage mill," arranged to provide a physician day or night to make the tests for venereal diseases, under a law effective May 26.

In 1937, when the state enacted a measure requiring couples to wait three days for marriage after making application for a license, the company found a loophole in "mail order" licenses.

Couples went before notaries public in Pennsylvania or Ohio and made application. The company took the application and had the license ready for the prospective bride and bridegroom when they arrived here.

The company's efforts brought 3,096 couples here during the first year of the three-day law, about one-third of the number who were married here annually when the path to the altar was smoother.

Discussing the new legislation, taxi company president Harry J. McGlumphy said:

"We have arranged for a physician to take the blood tests at any hour, day or night and at regular intervals on Sunday. He will establish a laboratory in his office and employ a chemist to make the blood analysis. We will be able to take care of that and procure the wedding license, act as witness and guarantee to keep the whole thing secret for a standard price of $11."

Once, he lamented, a five-dollar bill would pay for the license, the preacher and the taxi company's fee.

Caldwell Is Ruled Out As Candidate For Keyser Mayor

Council Decides He Is Ineligible under City Charter Provision

Keyser, W. Va., May 16—Members of the city council in regular session here today determined that Robert C. Caldwell, who Saturday announced his candidacy for mayor in the primary city election May 23, was ineligible to run for the office.

Caldwell was found ineligible on the grounds that he was not assessed with the minimum $500 worth of property required by the city charter for a candidate for mayor. His property is registered in the name of his wife, Mrs. Ida Caldwell.

With Caldwell out of the running, only two candidates remain: John C. Freeland, incumbent, whose term expires July 1, and William A. Murray, who filed announcement papers late Saturday afternoon. The deadline for the announcement of candidacy was 5 o'clock Saturday evening.

At today's meeting councilmen, upon recommendation of the state fire marshal and Keyser Fire Chief Wade Thomas, voted that parking be restricted near amusement houses and theatres during amusement hours. It was pointed out that this would leave the way clear for the setting up and operation of fire-fighting equipment, in the event of a fire, and would also remove what might prove to be a "fatal obstacle" to the outward movement of audiences.

Council members also voted that a no-parking area be marked off from the main entrance of Potomac Valley hospital on south Mineral street to the emergency ward entrance at the south end of the building. Mayor Freeland said Dr. Thomas E. Bess, head of the hospital, had told hi mthat an ambulance carrying a patient was unable to gain entrance to the emergency ward one night recently, until cars parked in front of the hospital were moved.

Coronation of Miss Mollie Browning Long, Keyser, as May Queen at Potomac State School is scheduled for Thursday afternoon on the college campus, as a part of the annual May Day celebration held by the student body. Miss Louise Welch, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. R. A. Welch, north Water street, was notified in a letter from Senator D. Grove Mohler, of Martinsburg, today of her appointment as princess from the Sixteenth senatorial district to the tenth Mountain State Forest Festival at Elkins October 5, 6 and 7.

Mining Operations Step Up in the West Virginia Coal Fields

Preston County Booms with Production Away Up

Charleston, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—The revived coal output in West Virginia stepped still nearer normal level today, albeit amid much divergence of opinion on how much business can be depended upon.

Some operators, on the second day since the end of the long Appalachian shutdown, said they had not received the orders expected and saw few ahead.

Others looked for heavy production for a month but withheld predictions beyond that point.

Still others were of the opinion it would be a week or ten days before anything definite could be determined.

Based on last year's figures, the state output averages around 550,000 tons daily.

Far Short of Average

So far since signing by most operators of the "union shop" contract with the United Mine Workers the 550,000-ton figure has not been reached by many thousands of tons.

That is because some mines, particularly in the newly-signed Kanawha field, just reopened today; because miners are "soft" after the lay-off and are not up to putting out their usual work; and because continuing clean-up work has slowed actual output.

A Pocahontas-Tug river field spokesman said normal levels could not be expected for at least ten days.

Comment from mine owners about the immediate future went this way:

Fayette county—W. E. Tissue, of the New River Company, which operates ten mines in Fayette and Raleigh: "there is no demand for coal right now, and a good bit of our market has gone to oil."

Logan—Operators foresaw at least four weeks at good production levels but everything uncertain after that.

Buyers' Strike Seen

Beckley—Lillybrook Coal Company officials said, "there is a buyers' strike on."

Pocahontas field—Spokesman said buyers' strike is "ridiculous" and only time will tell.

Huntington—T. M. Wyatt, of the Hooper-Mankin Company, said the shutdown raised "false hopes" for a boom, adding, "the larger users are buying very little and are waiting. If you hear of any large orders I would like to know about it."

Island Creek Coal Company official said they "never expected any pick-up we couldn't handle."

Preston Prosperous

The seven weeks shutdown during Appalachian wage negotiations brought prosperity to one county—Preston—in the opinion of operators and railroad men.

A majority of the Preston mines are operated on a non-union basis and ran throughout the suspension in the rest of the state. Operators and railroaders said production had not reached such levels since the war.

State Trooper W. C. Davis, of Kingwood, said detachments were on duty at points where pickets tried to dissuade miners from working but there were no serious disorders. He said all special details were withdrawn yesterday.

Most mines in the Kanawha field, which signed the union shop contract yesterday, were open for the first time since April 1.

Down at Gary

United States Coal and Coke Company operations at Gary remained idle amid conflicting reports as to possible reopening. The UMWA has said the four mines will stay down until there is a contract. Members of an independent union have said they expected to resume.

Carter Coal Company operations at Caretta and Coalwood also stayed shut, along with several "captive" mines in Logan county and in the northern section of the state.

"No Work" signs were posted at three McKell company mines at Siltix, Tamroy and Oswald in Fayette county, indicating indefinite suspension. The mines were picketed yesterday and there was no work.

Holt Rejoices over Doom of Commission

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Senator Holt (D-WVa) rejoiced today in the coming abolition of the National Bituminous Coal Commission.

He inserted in the Senate record a lengthy statement reviewing his three-year battle against the commission, which is to be abolished under President Roosevelt's second reorganization order.

Senator Holt, frequently at odds with the administration, called attention to Mr. Rosevelt's statement that three years experience "has shown that direct administration will be cheaper, better and more effective than through the cumbersome medium of an unnecessary commission."

In his statement Holt said the coal commission was created "to give jobs to the favorites" and "pay off a campaign contribution" of $500,000 to the democratic party by the United Mine Workers of America, led by John L. Lewis.

Lewis, Holt said, had told "the miners he had the power to pass the Guffey act, therefore it was important to the politicians to see that the man who had donated $500,000 to the campaign war chest, as well as to their political ventures, would have his face saved."

Holt said the only group that had benefitted from the act were "the payrollers."

He charged the commission had "cost the taxpayers millions of dollars" and destroyed "the stabilization of the industry."

Deranged Woman Kills Baby, Self

Uses Razor Blade after Child Is Drowned in Bathtub

Charleston, W. Va., May 16 (AP)—Mrs. Nellie Dooley, 37, former Assistant Secretary of the State Sinking Fund Commission, was found dead and her four-month-old son was found drowned today in their Kanawha City home, Police Chief W. A. Tully reported.

Tully said reports from Lieutenant A. F. Pitzer and Detective Lieutenant Edgar Bourne were that the baby was drowned in the bathtub and Mrs. Dooley died of razor wounds.

Mrs. Dooley, wife of J. Beverly Dooley, resigned from the Sinking Fund Commission in December, a month before the baby was born.

Dr. C. F. Sayre, county Coroner, returned a verdict of suicide, and said Mrs. Dooley "undoubtedly was temporarily deranged."

The coroner related Mrs. Dooley told her maid during the morning that she was going to "lie down for awhile", then went to the bathroom and locked the door.

The deaths were not discovered until afternoon, when the maid went to arouse Mrs. Dooley and was unable to get any answer. She called authorities.

Dr. Sayre said Mrs. Dooley and the baby had been dead "three or four hours".

Mrs. Dooley was the former Nellie Litton, and a native of Wayne county. Her family lived in Clendenin for many years.

She had been married about ten years.

The appointment to the Sinking Fund Commission Post was made April 24, 1933. She was an active Democrat and for some time was Treasurer of the Young Democratic Club here.

Her husband is employed as an insurance adjuster for several concerns in this section.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her parents, six brothers and sisters.

New Marriage Mill With Medical Service Opens at Wellsburg

Wellsburg, W. Va., May 16 (AP) — Cupid's helpers in this once nationally-famous Gretna Green were ready today to grapple with the newest obstacle to a speedy elopement—blood tests for altar-bound couples.

The Wellsburg Taxi Company, which has guided thousands of couples through the "marriage mill," arranged to provide a physician day or night to make the tests for venereal diseases, under a law effective May 26.

In 1937, when the state enacted a measure requiring couples to wait three days for marriage after making application for a license, the company found a loophole in "mail order" licenses.

Couples went before notaries public in Pennsylvania or Ohio and made application. The company took the application and had the license ready for the prospective bride and bridegroom when they arrived here.

The company's efforts brought 3,096 couples here during the first year of the three-day law, about one-third of the number who were married here annually when the path to the altar was smoother.

Discussing the new legislation, taxi company president Harry J. McGlumphy said:

"We have arranged for a physician to take the blood tests at any hour, day or night and at regular intervals on Sunday. He will establish a laboratory in his office and employ a chemist to make the blood analysis. We will be able to take care of that and procure the wedding license, act as witness and guarantee to keep the whole thing secret for a standard price of $11."

Once, he lamented, a five-dollar bill would pay for the license, the preacher and the taxi company's fee.

Caldwell Is Ruled Out As Candidate For Keyser Mayor

Council Decides He Is Ineligible under City Charter Provision

Keyser, W. Va., May 16—Members of the city council in regular session here today determined that Robert C. Caldwell, who Saturday announced his candidacy for mayor in the primary city election May 23, was ineligible to run for the office.

Caldwell was found ineligible on the grounds that he was not assessed with the minimum $500 worth of property required by the city charter for a candidate for mayor. His property is registered in the name of his wife, Mrs. Ida Caldwell.

With Caldwell out of the running, only two candidates remain: John C. Freeland, incumbent, whose term expires July 1, and William A. Murray, who filed announcement papers late Saturday afternoon. The deadline for the announcement of candidacy was 5 o'clock Saturday evening.

At today's meeting councilmen, upon recommendation of the state fire marshal and Keyser Fire Chief Wade Thomas, voted that parking be restricted near amusement houses and theatres during amusement hours. It was pointed out that this would leave the way clear for the setting up and operation of fire-fighting equipment, in the event of a fire, and would also remove what might prove to be a "fatal obstacle" to the outward movement of audiences.

Council members also voted that a no-parking area be marked off from the main entrance of Potomac Valley hospital on south Mineral street to the emergency ward entrance at the south end of the building. Mayor Freeland said Dr. Thomas E. Bess, head of the hospital, had told hi mthat an ambulance carrying a patient was unable to gain entrance to the emergency ward one night recently, until cars parked in front of the hospital were moved.

Grove Mohler, of Martinsburg, today of her appointment as princess from the Sixteenth senatorial district to the tenth Mountain State Forest Festival at Elkins October 5, 6 and 7.

Mrs. C. A. Diehl, of Meyers avenue, returned Sunday from a visit with relatives and friends in Cumberland, Md.

James May, of Davidsville, spent Sunday afternoon as a guest of relatives and friends here and at Salisbury.

Mrs. Roy Deal, of Detroit, Mich., arrived here yesterday to visit her sister, Miss Margaret Hostetler, and brothers, Eugene, James and Harry Hostetler. Mrs. Deal was for a number of years a teacher in the local schools, and is an alumnus of the Meyersdale high school.

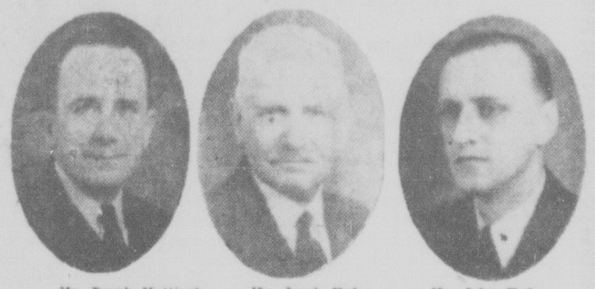

Mrs. C. C. Glass, of Main street, spent the forepart of this week in Pittsburgh visiting parents and friends.

Mrs. Martha W. Shoemaker, of Johnstown, was a guest yesterday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shoemaker, of North street.

A dream revealed to the real St. Nicholas that a certain poor nobleman was desperately in need of money to endow his three marriageable daughters, so the saint secretly threw three bags of gold into his house, hence originating the legend that Santa Claus comes down the chimney.

Daily, 10,000 birds and animals are killed on British roads.

Angry Mother Beats Veteran School Teache

State's Attorney Will Get Case, Board Decides

Miss Isadora Casey Ill at Home After Cresaptown Affair

Miss Isadora Casey, veteran Cresaptown teacher, was under a doctor's care at her home in Frostburg last night after an angry mother attacked and beat her in the corridors of the school yesterday morning, school officials reported.

William A. Gunter, president of the board of education, said last night that the case would be turned over to the State's Attorney for investigation as soon as the school board investigation is completed.

Because Miss Casey was suffering from shock yesterday, school officials were unable to question her concerning the attack.

Husband Encourages Attack

Mr. Gunter said that preliminary investigation revealed that Miss Casey was attacked by Mrs. Ralph Wertz, 28, of Pinto, while her husband, a plumber's assistant, stood by and said "Go on, give it to her."

Miss Casey was beaten about the face and head, her face scratched, and some of her hair pulled out, Mr. Gunter said.

The attack took place in a corridor outside Miss Casey's fourth grade room, Mr. Gunter said the board learned that the parents were angry because the teacher told their 11-year-old daughter, Gladys, that she had been absent from school much too often and that she would need an excuse for her absence Friday.

The teacher told the girl this in class on Monday, Mr. Gunter said. She told the girl that she had 35 absences marked up against her during the past 150 school days.

Excuse Required

Mr. Gunter said it was the duty of the teacher to call attention to the girl's absence and also to require an excuse from her parents.

The parents appeared in Miss Casey's classroom between 10:30 and 11 a. m. yesterday and started to critizise her for calling attention to their daughter's poor attendance record, Mr. Gunter said.

Miss Casey suggested that they step out in the hall, rather than discuss the matter before the children. When they were in the hall, Mrs. Wertz attacked the teacher, Mr. Gunter said the board learned.

Parents Flee

Miss Casey screamed. Another teacher, Miss Margaret Doak, of Louisiana avenue, Cumberland, came out of her room into the hall, and the two parents then left hurriedly. A nurse was called to take care of Miss Casey, and her father, John L. Casey, of Frostburg, soon called to take her home, where she was resting under a doctor's care last night.

Miss Casey lives with her parents in Frostburg. She has been a teacher for sixteen years.

Superintendent of Schools, Charles L. Kopp said last night that the attack on the teacher was absolutely without any provocation, as far as could be learned.

BELLING THE BRIDE—South Cumberland people had fun Monday night when friends of Mr. and Mrs. Olen C. Mother Sobs as German Father Seeks Son's Custody in Court

The question of the custody of a handsome four-year-old boy was laid before Associate Judge William A. Huster yesterday after a dramatic hearing in Circuit court, marked by a mother's sobs.

Mrs. Mary Golumbeck, the lad's mother, unable to support him, has given her consent to his adoption by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Leasure, of Cumberland, who have cared for him for more than a year.

During the half-day hearing before Judge Huster, the central figure in the drama alternated his attention between his dark-haired natural mother and his blonde foster-mother. His father he appeared studiously to ignore.

It was a double equity action which the court heard yesterday. The adoption petition of Mr. and Mrs. Leasure and the petition of Golumbeck for modification of the divorce decree which granted custody of the child to Mrs. Golumbeck. The modification he asks so that he and his second wife may have custody of the child.

The two cases were combined by agreement of counsel and tried as one.

Mr. and Mrs. Leasure, pleading for custody of the lad, Franz Joseph Golumbeck, declared they had learned to love him as if he were their own child. They said they could properly support and educate him.

Reputation Praised

Their reputation was praised by a score of neighbors, who said they would provide a good home for the boy.

The high standing of the Leasure's was not questioned by Attorney Horace P. Whitworth, representing Golumbeck.

Golumbeck, however, heard himself denounced by Attorneys Harold Naughton and Richard F. Wertheimer, who represented Mrs. Golumbeck and Mr. and Mrs. Leasure.

In his closing argument, Mr. Wertheimer pointed to Golumbeck and declared:

"He took her love. He took everything she had. And then he threw her aside.

"And now he wants to take the last thing that she has to recall the memory of her once-happy marriage."

Mrs. Golumbeck sobbed throughout most of the hearing. She obtained her divorce in June, 1938, and the custody of her child. Following the divorce, the husband went to California where he was employed. He returned last year, went back to California, and finally returned again. He has been engaged in painting work in this vicinity.

Golumbeck, 35, admitted he was a native of Germany and an unnaturalized alien. He declared he was an interior decorator who earned ten dollars or more per day. He never was out of work, he added.

Attorney Naughton told the court that he would prove that Golumbeck, as the father, was unfit to have the custody of his son. He charged that Golumbeck wanted to get the child to send him to Germany.

The attorney cross examined Golumbeck to some length regarding his business affairs with the witness admitting that he had liabilities, the same as any business man, which he intended to pay in full.

A separation agreement was read to the court entered into by the couple before the divorce whereby Golumbeck was to pay $10 weekly for support of the child and the mother. Later after the divorce, the payments were made to Naughton, it was revealed. However, the payments eased after Golumbeck went to California, it was stated.

Four Boys Held For Grand Jury

Charged with Burglary; Bond Set at $500

Four youths, two of them members of the Maryland National Guard, were ordered held for the grand jury on charges of burglarly yesterday when they waived preliminary hearings before Magistrate Frank A. Perdew.

Dale Montgomery, 420 North Centre street, and Claude L. Moore, 408 Chestnut street, were released on $500 bond furnished by the parents. Bernard Jones, 938 Maryland avenue, and Earl Collins, 218 Fulton street, were taken to the county jail when they did not make bond.

The first three youths were accused of entering the Soterakos confectionary, 313 North Centre street, on May 13 and taking a large quantity of candy, cigarettes, and other merchandise valued in all at $60.

Jones was accused of having accompanied the trio when they broke into the Columbia Street school. The youths were also accused of having broken into the First Baptist church and a North Cumberland service station.

Montgomery and Moore are members of Company G, Maryland National Guard, Captain Randolph Millholland said, but Montgomery is already under suspension. Both will face military hearings, Captain Millholland said, and will be dismissed from the militia immediately if found guilty.

Man Draws $4,500 from Bank Here, Loses All to Race Track Crooks

Hagerstown, Md., May 16 (AP) — An old-fashioned confidence game, complete with preliminary buildup, netted three men $4,500 here several days ago, State's Attorney Charles F. Wagaman disclosed today.

Wagaman said he had been asked by an unidentified Berkeley Springs, W. Va., merchant to look for three strangers who made off with the money after the merchant had "won" about $500 on a horse race.

The merchant told Wagaman he met the men at a Hagerstown hotel and they induced him to bet. He won $486 they told him. Then on their assurance that they had a "sure thing" which would net him $26,000, he gave them $4,500 he had withdrawn from a Cumberland bank. They took the money and disappeared, he said.

The merchant gave Wagaman and Sheriff Joseph D. Baker a description of the men, but the authorities expressed doubt they could be located.

Husband Called 'Not Domestic', Mrs. Vandegrift Wins Divorce

Mrs. Helen K. Vandegrift won an absolute divorce yesterday in Circuit court after she testified that her husband had "no natural domestic inclinations" and would not "settle down and lead a normal married life."

Associate Judge William A. Huster signed the decree granting her the divorce from Frank B. Vandegrift, owner and proprietor of the Southern hotel.

Her husband was good to her "in a way," Mrs. Vandegrift, 41, testified before a court examiner, but did not "have any desire for a home," and refused to "settle down."

The couple was married here December, 1917, and lived together intermittently until the spring of 1934, the testimony showed.

They had "several disagreements" during the last ten or twelve years of their married life, Mrs. Vandegrift, represented by Attorney Charles Z. Heskitt, said, "growing out of his conduct and inattention to me."

They separated "several times," she added, but effected reconciliations until the occasion in 1934. The separation previous to her husband's final desertion lasted one and one-half years, she declared.

At the end of that time, she continued, her husband asked her to take him back, and they lived together again for almost two years.

He "grew increasingly cranky and impatient," she told the court examiner, and in March, 1934 "announced he was going to leave me. He packed up and got out."

They had quarreled over his conduct, according to Mrs. Vandegrift. When she told him he was "not fair" to her, he "got mad, became abusive, packed up and left, and never came back."

Mrs. Vandegrift's testimony was substantially corroborated by her 20-year-old daughter.

The decree awards Mrs. Vandegrift custody of the daughter and of a son, 14. Mr. Vandegrift is ordered to pay $100 a month alimony.

In the meantime, suit for divorce was filed by a wife who charged her husband deserted her two months after their marriage.

Seeking an absolute divorce from William C. Roberts, Jr., Mrs. Margaret W. Roberts says that they were married in Elkton in March, 1935, and that he deserted her in May.

The suit, docketed by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, asks custody of a baby son.

Harry Little Is Fined $100

Had Pleaded Guilty To Beating Woman

A fine of $100 and costs was imposed on Harry Little in Circuit court after he pleaded guilty to assaulting Veda Rawlings.

Little, well-known in Cumberland sporting circles, was indicted for assault with intent to murder. He pleaded guilty to common assault, and the count of murderous assault was nolle prossed by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

A carpenter who pleaded guilty to violation of the workmen's compensation act received a suspended sentence when he agreed to pay $350 to a man injured while in his employ.

E. W. Abell, a carpenter-contractor, admitted that he failed to have compensation insurance, as required by law, when he employed Bain A. Twigg on a construction job.

Twigg was injured when he fell while working for Abell, according to the evidence, and was granted a compensation claim by the State Industrial Accident Commission. Abell, carrying no insurance, was unable to pay the claim, according to State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

Associate Judge William A. Huster fined Abell $350 and costs, but suspended the fine on condition that Twigg be paid $350.

Joseph M. Melvin, convicted by a jury for sale and possession of liquor without a license was given a suspended sentence of one year in the House of Correction.

He was warned to "refrain from the use of, the handling of, or the manufacture of alcoholic beverages."

Angry Mother Beats Veteran School Teache

State's Attorney Will Get Case, Board Decides

Miss Isadora Casey Ill at Home After Cresaptown Affair

Miss Isadora Casey, veteran Cresaptown teacher, was under a doctor's care at her home in Frostburg last night after an angry mother attacked and beat her in the corridors of the school yesterday morning, school officials reported.

William A. Gunter, president of the board of education, said last night that the case would be turned over to the State's Attorney for investigation as soon as the school board investigation is completed.

Because Miss Casey was suffering from shock yesterday, school officials were unable to question her concerning the attack.

Husband Encourages Attack

Mr. Gunter said that preliminary investigation revealed that Miss Casey was attacked by Mrs. Ralph Wertz, 28, of Pinto, while her husband, a plumber's assistant, stood by and said "Go on, give it to her."

Miss Casey was beaten about the face and head, her face scratched, and some of her hair pulled out, Mr. Gunter said.

The attack took place in a corridor outside Miss Casey's fourth grade room. Mr. Gunter said the board learned that the parents were angry because the teacher told their 11-year-old daughter, Gladys, that she had been absent from school much too often and that she would need an excuse for her absence Friday.

The teacher told the girl this in class on Monday, Mr. Gunter said. She told the girl that she had 35 absences marked up against her during the past 150 school days.

Excuse Required

Mr. Gunter said it was the duty of the teacher to call attention to the girl's absence and also to require an excuse from her parents.

The parents appeared in Miss Casey's classroom between 10:30 and 11 a. m. yesterday and started to criticize her for calling attention to their daughter's poor attendance record, Mr. Gunter said.

Miss Casey suggested that they step out in the hall, rather than discuss the matter before the children. When they were in the hall, Mrs. Wertz attacked the teacher, Mr. Gunter said the board learned.

Parents Flee

Miss Casey screamed. Another teacher, Miss Margaret Doak, of Louisiana avenue, Cumberland, came out of her room into the hall, and the two parents then left hurriedly. A nurse was called to take care of Miss Casey, and her father, John L. Casey, of Frostburg, soon called to take her home, where she was resting under a doctor's care last night.

Miss Casey lives with her parents in Frostburg. She has been a teacher for sixteen years.

Superintendent of Schools, Charles L. Kopp said last night that the attack on the teacher was absolutely without any provocation, as far as could be learned.

Mother Sobs as German Father Seeks Son's Custody in Court

The question of the custody of a handsome four-year-old boy was laid before Associate Judge William A. Huster yesterday after a dramatic hearing in Circuit court, marked by a mother's sobs.

Mrs. Mary Golumbeck, the lad's mother, unable to support him, has given her consent to his adoption by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene M. Leasure, of Cumberland, who have cared for him for more than a year.

Herman Golumbeck, his father, who remarried after Mrs. Golumbeck divorced him for infidelity, is fighting the adoption proceedings, seeking to obtain the lad's custody himself.

During the half-day hearing before Judge Huster, the central figure in the drama alternated his attention between his dark-haired natural mother and his blonde foster-mother. His father he appeared studiously to ignore.

It was a double equity action which the court heard yesterday. The adoption petition of Mr. and Mrs. Leasure and the petition of Golumbeck for modification of the divorce decree which granted custody of the child to Mrs. Golumbeck. The modification he asks so that he and his second wife may have custody of the child.

The two cases were combined by agreement of counsel and tried as one.

Mr. and Mrs. Leasure, pleading for custody of the lad, Franz Joseph Golumbeck, declared they had learned to love him as if he were their own child. They said they could properly support and educate him.

Reputation Praised

Their reputation was praised by a score of neighbors, who said they would provide a good home for the boy.

The high standing of the Leasure's was not questioned by Atorney Horace P. Whitworth, representing Golumbeck.

Golumbeck, however, heard himself denounced by Attorneys Harold Naughton and Richard F. Wertheimer, who represented Mrs. Golumbeck and Mr. and Mrs. Leasure.

In his closing argument, Mr. Wertheimer pointed to Golumbeck and declared:

"He took her love. He took everything she had. And then he threw her aside.

"And now he wants to take the last thing that she has to recall the memory of her once-happy marriage."

Mrs. Golumbeck sobbed throughout most of the hearing. She obtained her divorce in June, 1938, and the custody of her child. Following the divorce, the husband went to California where he was employed. He returned last year, went back to California, and finally returned again. He has been engaged in painting work in this vicinity.

Golumbeck, 35, admitted he was a native of Germany and an unnaturalized alien. He declared he was an interior decorator who earned ten dollars or more per day. He never was out of work, he added.

Attorney Naughton told the court that he would prove that Golumbeck, as the father, was unfit to have the custody of his son. He charged that Golumbeck wanted to get the child to send him to Germany.

The attorney cross examined Golumbeck to some length regarding his business affairs with the witness admitting that he had liabilities, the same as any business man, which he intended to pay in full.

A separation agreement was read to the court entered into by the couple before the divorce whereby Golumbeck was to pay $10 weekly for support of the child and the mother. Later after the divorce, the payments were made to Naughton, it was revealed. However, the payments eased after Golumbeck went to California, it was stated.

Man Draws $4,500 from Bank Here, Loses All to Race Track Crooks

Hagerstown, Md., May 16 (AP) — An old-fashioned confidence game, complete with preliminary buildup, netted three men $4,500 here several days ago, State's Attorney Charles F. Wagaman disclosed today.

Wagaman said he had been asked by an unidentified Berkeley Springs, W. Va., merchant to look for three strangers who made off with the money after the merchant had "won" about $500 on a horse race.

The merchant told Wagaman he met the men at a Hagerstown hotel and they induced him to bet. He won $486 they told him. Then on their assurance that they had a "sure thing" which would net him $26,000, he gave them $4,500 he had withdrawn from a Cumberland bank. They took the money and disappeared, he said.

The merchant gave Wagaman and Sheriff Joseph D. Baker a description of the men, but the authorities expressed doubt they could be located.

Husband Called 'Not Domestic', Mrs. Vandegrift Wins Divorce

Mrs. Helen K. Vandegrift won an absolute divorce yesterday in Circuit court after she testified that her husband had "no natural domestic inclinations" and would not "settle down and lead a normal married life."

Associate Judge William A. Huster signed the decree granting her the divorce from Frank B. Vandegrift, owner and proprietor of the Southern hotel.

Her husband was good to her "in a way," Mrs. Vandegrift, 41, testified before a court examiner, but did not "have any desire for a home," and refused to "settle down."

The couple was married here December, 1917, and lived together intermittently until the spring of 1934, the testimony showed.

They had "several disagreements" during the last ten or twelve years of their married life, Mrs. Vandegrift, represented by Attorney Charles Z. Heskitt, said, "growing out of his conduct and inattention to me."

They separated "several times," she added, but effected reconciliations until the occasion in 1934. The separation previous to her husband's final desertion lasted one and one-half years, she declared.

At the end of that time, she continued, her husband asked her to take him back, and they lived together again for almost two years.

He "grew increasingly cranky and impatient," she told the court examiner, and in March, 1934 "announced he was going to leave me. He packed up and got out."

They had quarreled over his conduct, according to Mrs. Vandegrift. When she told him he was "not fair" to her, he "got mad, became abusive, packed up and left, and never came back."

Mrs. Vandegrift's testimony was substantially corroborated by her 20-year-old daughter.

The decree awards Mrs. Vandegrift custody of the daughter and of a son, 14. Mr. Vandegrift is ordered to pay $100 a month alimony.

In the meantime, suit for divorce was filed by a wife who charged her husband deserted her two months after their marriage.

Seeking an absolute divorce from William C. Roberts, Jr., Mrs. Margaret W. Roberts says that they were married in Elkton in March, 1935, and that he deserted her in May.

The suit, docketed by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, asks custody of a baby son.

Harry Little Is Fined $100

Had Pleaded Guilty To Beating Woman

A fine of $100 and costs was imposed on Harry Little in Circuit court after he pleaded guilty to assaulting Veda Rawlings.

A carpenter who pleaded guilty to violation of the workmen's compensation act received a suspended sentence when he agreed to pay $350 to a man injured while in his employ.

E. W. Abell, a carpenter-contractor, admitted that he failed to have compensation insurance, as required by law, when he employed Bain A. Twigg on a construction job.

Twigg was injured when he fell while working for Abell, according to the evidence, and was granted a compensation claim by the State Industrial Accident Commission. Abell, carrying no insurance, was unable to pay the claim, according to State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

Associate Judge William A. Huster fined Abell $350 and costs, but suspended the fine on condition that Twigg be paid $350.

Joseph M. Melvin, convicted by a jury for sale and possession of liquor without a license was given a suspended sentence of one year in the House of Correction.

He was warned to "refrain from the use of, the handling of, or the manufacture of alcoholic beverages."
